GREAT ARMIES AT GRIPS Outcome May Decide Fate Of Rebellion PLANES FIGHT OVER REBEL HEADQUARTERS

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

With Northern Rebel Army, July 29.

Forty thousand rebels and even more loyalists are locked in a death battle in the vicinity of Buitrago, from which Madrid would be easily accessible.

Tons of bombs and grenades, killing hundreds on both sides, are being rained from the Guadarrama heights.

Following my arrival at the rebel headquarters I was arrested and gaoled on suspicion of espionage, but I was released in four hours after proving I was not from Madrid. Thereafter I saw an intensive aerial action. Five loyalist planes bombed a bridge and killed one and wounded thirty.

Rebel aircraft downed two of the loyalist machines, however, and the loyalists shot down one of the rebel machines, the occupants of which escaped death despite a rain of bombs from their adversaries. Camouflaged rebel artillery attacked the hostile planes throughout the engagement.

A General Staff spokesman said the rebel forces are better supplied and equipped.

"As soon as General Franco and General Mola move simultaneously, the war will be over," he said.

He admitted the loyalists had greater mobility due to the superior motorisation of this force, but he pointed out, also, that the loyalist fleet was handicapped by the shortage of fuel. The Saragossa rebels possessed the army's sole tank unit, he added. "Despite everything, we are sure of victory," he declared.

AERIAL INVASION PLANNED PLANES GATHER AT TETUAN SUBMARINES BOMBED

Successes Claimed

London, July 29. The Spanish Government claims that all Mediterranean and Atlantic ports are now in Government hands, with the exception of Cadix, and declares the surrender of Granada is imminent. The Government reports the capture of Villablado and several other small towns.

Loyal troops are preparing to march on Saragossa and Cordoba. An official decree authorises the War Minister to declare those parts of Spain affected by military operations "war zones."

Government forces' celebration of a victory at San Sebastian yesterday were apparently premature, as fighting broke out there again today. However, trains have started running between San Sebastian and Bilbao and the road is clear between San Sebastian and Irun.

Lisbon, July 29. General Franco, the commander-in-chief of the rebel forces, has arrived in Seville from Morocco, and will henceforth make his headquarters here, according to a radio despatch from Seville.

Tide Of War

Gibraltar, June 29. A sort of bird's eye view of affairs in Spain can be obtained from Gibraltar. The rebel broadsheets announce their commander, General Franco, has arrived by aeroplane at Seville and has assumed personal direction of the rebellion.

It is announced that loyalists at Huelva have surrendered. Meanwhile, it is apparent that a strong Government offensive is imminent near Malaga. The loyalists are enlarging their aerodrome there, preparing for operations against the southern rebels.

It is simultaneously announced that Carabineros at Parafillo defeated ten truckloads of Fascists. The rebels announce the capture of the cruisers Almirante, Cervara and several other warships, and have asked the Gibraltar authorities to warn British vessels to keep aloof from Spanish warships in case they may be bombed.

FEARS OF TANGIER TROUBLE

COMPLICATIONS IN MOROCCAN CITY
INTERNATIONAL POLICING

Tangier, July 29.

The International Committee of Control has decided to establish a commission, composed of the commanders of naval units sent to Tangier by the powers. The task of the commission will be to police the port and the international zone.

The International Committee is of the opinion that the presence of Spanish warships in Tangier, against which the Spanish rebels have protested, may provoke acts of war in the Tangier zone and menace the good relations between Britain, France, Italy and Spain, who jointly govern this city.

FRANCO'S AIM

Tangier, July 29.

It is not merely a national question which is involved in the revolt in Spain; it is international, declared General Franco, the rebel commander-in-chief, interviewed by Reuter just before he left his former headquarters in Tetuan.

He emphasised that his real aim was to help Spain by stamping out Communism. Surely, he remarked, Britain, Germany and Italy must sympathise with his cause.

General Franco appeared confident. He said the ability of the Spanish Government to hold out depended on the amount of help that might be given it from Moscow and the Popular Front Government of France.

MOTION
NOT PROVED

Mr. Charles Andrew Sutherland was suspended from practising as a solicitor for 12 months by the Full Court this morning, on a motion brought by the Incorporated Law Society of Hongkong, asking that his name be struck off the rolls of the Court for "disgraceful and dishonourable conduct."

The motion was brought on three grounds, two of which were found not proved. On the other the Court found that Mr. Sutherland had been guilty of a "reckless disregard for the ethics of his profession."

The full text of the decision will be given in the final edition of the Telegraph.

London, July 29.

The exact date for the laying of the keel for the sister ship of the Queen Mary has not yet been decided upon, but it is understood she will be ready for operation in 1940, which is the centenary of the Cunard Line.

Preparations on the Clyde have been completed for an immediate start on the ship, which will be known as No. 552. It will be remembered that when the Queen Mary was under construction she was known as No. 534.

The Treasury has agreed to making an advance for the building of the vessel.

ITALY WILL NOT SETTLE HER DEBTS

TRADE NEGOTIATION
MEETS OBSTACLE FOUR POWERS CONCERNED

London, July 29.

Anglo-Italian negotiations for the resumption of trade, following the removal of sanctions, have been suspended, owing to Italy's inability to accept the minimum British terms for the liquidation of frozen debts. These amount to between £2,000,000 and £3,000,000.

Belgium has suspended negotiations for the same reason, and Holland and France are meeting with identical difficulties, but negotiations are continuing.

In the event of failure to reach any agreement, British firms must export to Italy at their own risk, which means there will be little trade between the two countries.

BATTLESHIPS TO BE BUILT FOR BRITAIN Contracts Let For Two Big Vessels UNITED STATES LIKELY TO FOLLOW SUIT

London, July 29.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Samuel Hoare, announced in the House of Commons to-day that the Government had decided to give orders for two new battleships this year.

The contracts will be given to Vickers, Armstrong, Ltd., for their Tyneside yard, and Cammell, Laird at Birkenhead.

It is intended that the keels will be laid down at the earliest possible moment, in accordance with the Washington Naval Treaty, which will mean that work will start January next.

In order to expedite construction, the orders have been placed before the complete specifications are ready. It is therefore arranged that contracts be awarded now subject to a settlement price later. In the event of a disagreement on prices, the contractors undertake to accept the decision of the First Lord.

Sir Samuel Hoare revealed that the recommendations of the draft on the vulnerability of capital ships from aircraft will not affect the design of the new battleships.

ETHIOPIAN ATTACK REPULSED ITALIAN TROOPS IN ACTION CENSORED STORIES

Rome, July 29.

A communique issued to-day states that brigands attacked Italian garrison troops in the woods south of Addis Ababa on Tuesday.

This communique followed censored reports that Italian troops reconnoitring on the Imperial Highway fought a battle with 2,000 Ethiopians led by the son of the Ethiopian War Minister, Awerakasha.

The Italians were said to have slaughtered 600, after which the "frenzied population" of Addis Ababa killed an additional 500 of the bandits.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Geoffrey Mander questioned the Prime Minister regarding the plan disclosed by Mr. Pirow, South African Minister of Defence, and placed by him before the British Government when in London, for European Powers with African possessions each to give up a portion in order to make room for Germany, and asked whether any of the Powers in question had been approached or had signified their willingness to enter into such arrangement under any circumstances.

Mr. Baldwin replied that no such plan as that described by Mr. Mander had been communicated to the Government, nor so far as he was aware, to any other Government. The second part of the question did not therefore arise.

Well-dressed Dishes

make your food lovely to look at

A GARNISH is the final touch. It should please the eye and tempt the appetite. No right-minded person would send a piece of boiled beef to table without its attractive surroundings of carrots, onions, and dumplings, but other dishes might be spoiled even by little green sprig of parsley, watercress, or endive, or that neat slice of lemon, any of which can give an air of freshness and distinction to the plainest dish.

Brighten up the dull Meals

Then there are those triangles of toast which relieve the flatness of a hash, those neat and golden cubes of fried bread which seem to me indispensable with a thick soup, and those forcemeat balls which lessen the tedium of such things as veal and rabbit for those who find them ordinarily dull.

There are fish quenelles, shrimps and prawns which ornament dishes of fish, to say nothing of the sliced cucumber which almost too persistently flirts with the salmon.

There are the infant sausages which cling to the skirts of poultry, the thin curled bacon and the small croquettes of ham and tongue.

All dumplings, forcemeat balls, and the like should be small and shapely.

The amount of vegetables should be in proportion to the size of the dish. Their colour should form a pleasing contrast to the main theme.

The cooking or garnishes must be done to perfection. So must their draining.

Bread used for dice or fried croquettes should be two days old. Cut it into the required shapes and plunge them into deep, boiling fat. When they are cooked, to a golden colour, take them and drain them thoroughly. A greasy garnish is one of cooking's major crimes.

Overcooking is Fatal

For dumplings you season a quarter of a pound of flour with a little pepper and salt, and mix it with two ounces of finely chopped meat. The whole is then mixed into a paste with a little water, and it should be stiff rather than sloppy.

Shape it into little balls, and put them into boiling water, where they should simmer until cooked, which will be in ten minutes to a quarter of an hour. If they are overcooked they will "go back" and turn into little cannon balls.

Forcemeat balls can be made of all sorts of meat such as veal, lamb, tongue and veal.

Simple but Good

One of the simplest and at the same time most satisfying forms is made from sausage meat.

The main ingredients are a quarter of a pound of sausage meat mixed with half that quantity of bread-crumbs, bound together with the yolk of an egg.

The seasonings added will depend largely on the sausage meat.

If it is under-seasoned in the first place, chopped parsley or any other herbs which are liked, grated lemon rind, nutmeg, mace, or a touch of tomato sauce are some of the things which can be brought to the rescue, as well as pepper and salt.

WORM HOLES in your Furniture are made by beetles

and this is the way to cure them

YOU will not be surprised to hear that summer is the love-making time among beetles. Even furniture beetles start making love, so before they appear as fully fledged beetles have a look at the woodwork and furniture in your house and see if there are any worm holes in them.

It will soon be the time to treat your wood if it has been infected by the furniture beetle. Do not think that because a piece of wood has not worm holes in it the beetle is eating it all away. Quite possibly the wood has been treated.

Many people think that furniture beetles only attack old woodwork, antiques and church roofs. This is not so.

There are three common sorts of beetle found in woodwork. They are the Death Watch Beetle (Xestobium rufovillosum), the Common Furniture Beetle (Anobium punctatum), and Powder Post Beetles (differing species of Lyctus).

This is what happens in the life of these beetles. In the early summer, when they arrive (either from the wood or from the window), they are little brown creatures that you can hardly notice, never more than a quarter of an inch long and capable of skimming dead by tucking their legs under them and lying still when you touch them.

The female beetle lays her eggs (rarely fewer than a dozen) in cracks in the wood and in the grain of coarser woods and sometimes in the old worm holes.

A month later tiny white larval appear, little maggots, which soon bore their way through the surface of the wood, eating all the time.

When the maggot feels it would like to become a beetle, it turns from its wanderings inside the wood and cuts its way up towards the surface. A little short of the surface it hollows out a cell and waits. While it waits it turns into a chrysalis.

Then when the weather gets warm it emerges from the chrysalis as a fully grown beetle and cuts its way out of the wood. After it has mated, it dies. Mrs. Beetle leaves a legacy of eggs to some suitable wood, and all the trouble starts again.

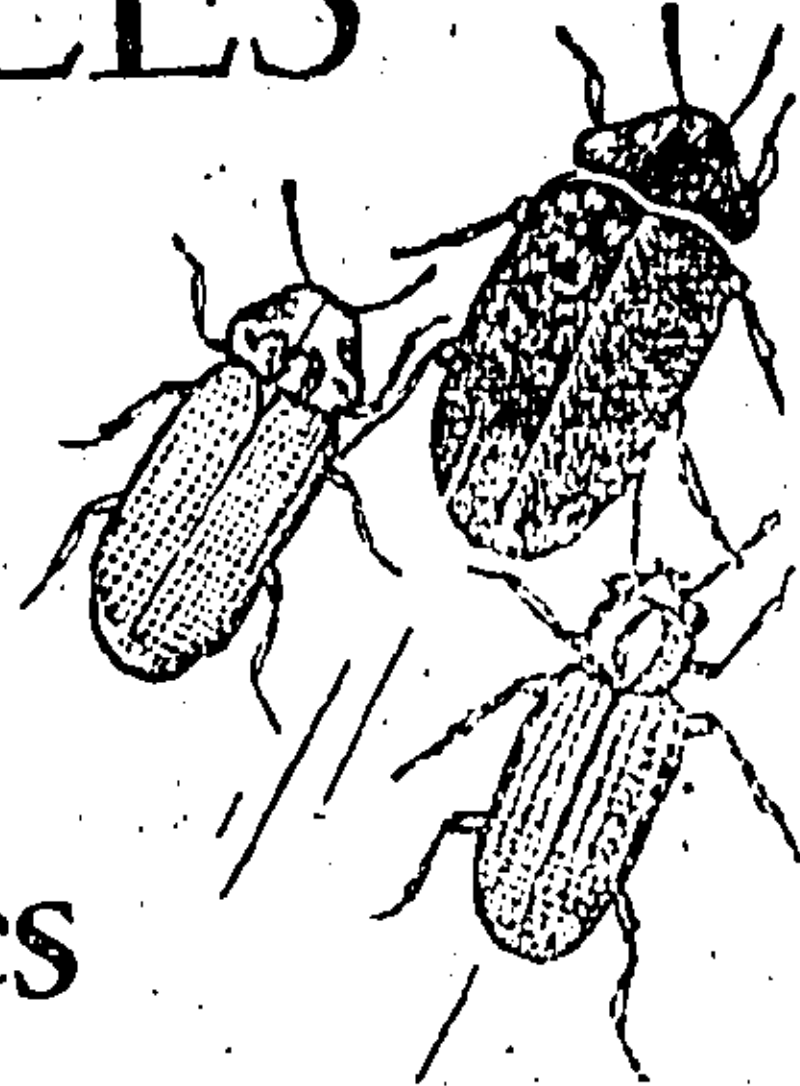

The Death Watch Beetle, or Clergyman's Curse, attacks old timber which is immovable, such as floorboards, rafters, joists and the roofs of churches. It likes wood which is damp and not ventilated.

The Common Furniture Beetle attacks almost any sort of wood, floorboards, pine and plywood, as well as furniture. You must treat the wood it attacks several times.

The Powder Post Beetle is not found in properly seasoned wood, and not in pine. It likes sapwood and the wood which is not heart wood. It also likes coarse grained wood. You may find its holes in quite new furniture.

There is no need to panic if the

(Lower) Powder post beetle.

"It will soon be the time to treat your wood if it has been infected by the furniture beetle."

In the same way turpentine or paraffin may be applied to unpolished wood. Boiling water can do the trick if the appearance of the wood is not important.

If structural timber is affected, and badly, an expert must be called. He will probably try fumigation, or heat (the beetles die in a temperature of over 135 deg. F.).

Benzine can be applied with a brush to unpolished surfaces (for instance, the underneath parts of old chairs). Be careful to keep benzine away from any flame. A hypodermic syringe should be used for squirting it down the worm holes. Naturally any worm holes after this should be filled up with benzine and turpentine, after swirling, so that no more eggs can be laid in them if any beetles survive the treatment till next year.

Treatment is advised at two periods, separated by about a month.

Men Need Chaperons

THE modern girl can take care of herself. She has shouted it from the housetops for quite a long while. That is why the chaperon has been discarded.

But—where men are concerned? If we may judge by the many cases that have recently been reported, men would go through life much more fearlessly if under some circumstances, they could indulge in a chaperon.

Man is ever to a certain extent at the mercy of a designing woman. And now that the sexes mingle so much more freely in the working world, man's danger has become greatly enhanced. In this age, when domestic servants have been discarded in many homes, the doctor often finds it necessary to be guarded. Also, insurance agents, inspectors, or men in any calling that takes them into a home where there may be just one woman.

Naturally enough, all women are not to be feared. It is only the unscrupulous or neurotic type. Hearty-minded men and women are now so accustomed to mutual participation in everyday affairs that the matter of sex rarely enters their minds. But should a man in the course of his duty come in contact with the wrong type of woman, his character can be torn to shreds, should she think it worth her while to tear it.

Imaginary Wrongs

Not long since, where in a case a woman made a charge against a professional man the solicitor conducting the defence stated that he thought we should soon need chaperons for men. The woman had no proof of the charge made, but in the same manner the professional man had no real way to refute the statement.

Supposing, for instance, a jealous wife reads in the paper that charges have been made against other men. That is why the chaperon has been discarded. She makes love to the wives with whom he comes in contact. And once the "green-eyed monster" in this shape creeps into a home, the chances of happiness are gone.

Such suspicions are, however, often created by the workings of the woman's imagination, but this does not make things any less real. Decent men are not made things any less real. Decent men are not made things any less real. Decent men are not made things any less real.

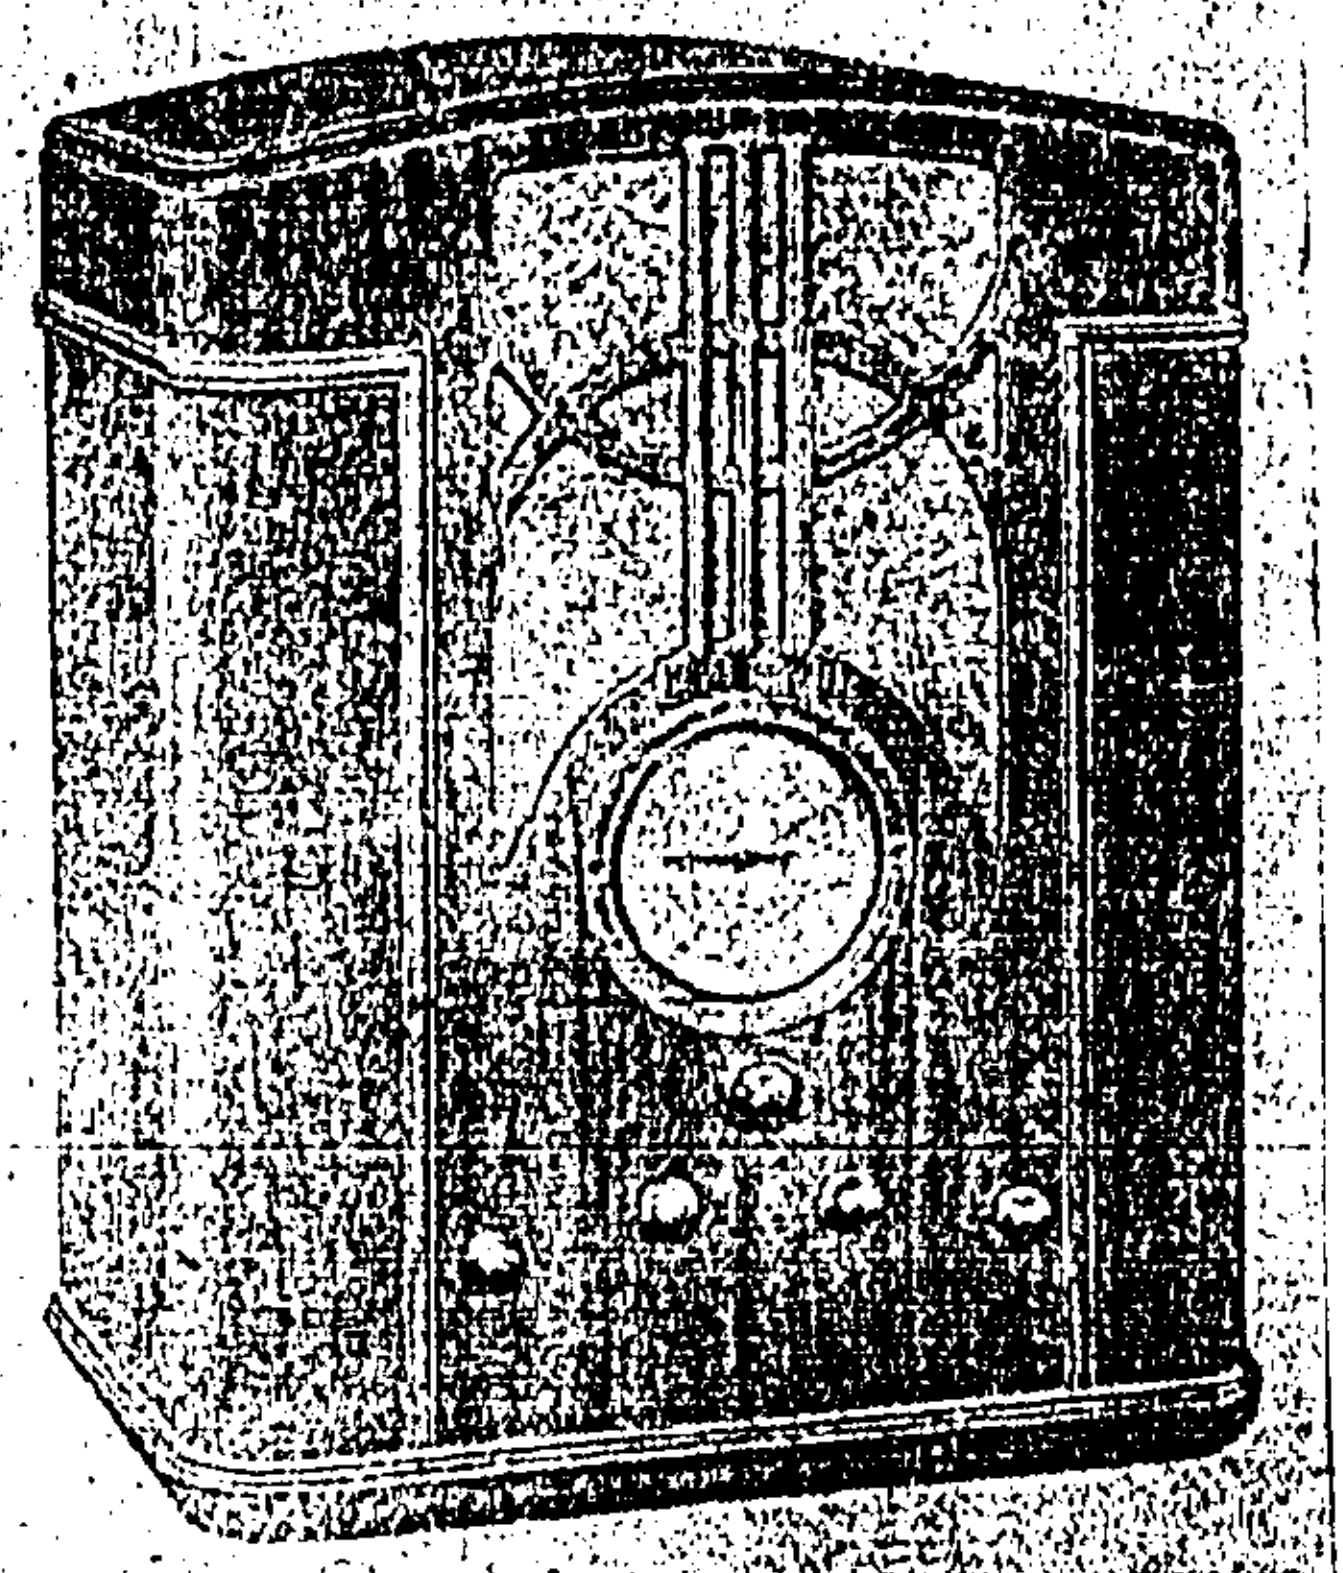

As an eminent K.C. stated after a particularly distressing case had ended, not to his satisfaction: "There is nothing easier than for a woman to bring charges against a man, and nothing more difficult to refute."

There are many men who won't attend a cinema alone for fear some false charge may be made against them; and, laugh at the caution as we may, there is a large dash of commonsense in it. Decent men are not made things any less real. Decent men are not made things any less real. Decent men are not made things any less real.

Looking at the matter dispassionately and seriously, it seems reasonable to believe that the man whose daily work takes him into a house where there may be only one woman would be in a decidedly safer position as regards his character, if he were accompanied by an "assistant" on his rounds.

A new job for young men, too—and better than the dole.

NEW YORK LABELS ITS LORDS

"Noblemen's Club" Tries to Keep Out Pretenders

Advice to Hostesses

"So you're a prince, are you? Where's your nobleman's card?"

These and similar questions are ruffling the drawing-room calm of New York's upper circles, thanks to the activities of the Noblemen's Club, formed recently with the declared object of unmasking pretenders posing as titled Europeans. The club announces that it is ready "to give formal reception" to noblemen of unquestioned authenticity arriving in New York and to furnish them with honorary cards of membership, but to others who are being hoisted to because of their supposed blue blood it is sending a series of diplomatically worded inquiries.

A GENTLE HINT

The first inquiry runs: "This organization having received inquiries about you, respectfully requests that you call at this office at your earliest convenience. Cordially yours, Noblemen's Club." If the recipient's earliest convenience is not within three days the club, still respectful, but less cordial, sends a second letter giving three more days in which to communicate. If the addressee then continues the club despatches an ultimatum in a registered letter giving the alleged nobleman 24 hours in which to make a personal appearance.

PUBLICITY THREAT

If this fails to produce results the individual's title falls "under suspicion" with the threat that his name will be given to the Press and to society hostesses throughout New York. The club gives this advice to hostesses:

"If your guest says he is a baron and shows you card, he is a baron. 'If you know any noblemen who do not have cards, ask them why.' Within the past fortnight the club has issued 15 cards. Its president, Baron Giorgio Suriani di Castelnuovo, declares that three 'noblemen' are 'under suspicion' but he refrains from publishing their names. His first disciplinary announcements are being awaited with a lively curiosity. The Noblemen's Club, however, is not having things all its own way.

15 MONTHS

It cannot be expected to enjoy the cooperation of the Russian Nobility Association, for this was made clear by Prince Alexis Obolonsky, the president of the latter organization, whose 125 members pay dues of 4s. a year to be devoted to genealogical research. These members see no need to pay another £1 a month for a crown-studded card guaranteeing one's title. Their inclination is lessened by the fact that Prince Guido Colonna, the Italian Vice-Consul in New York, told Prince Alexis that Italy's official list of recognized nobles does not contain any "Baron Giorgio Suriani di Castelnuovo."

That did not appear to surprise the baron, however, for when informed of this development he shouted excitedly: "To the devil with Gotha's Almanach!"

Refuting the implication that his own title might not be genuine, he produced a scrapbook of newspaper cuttings one of which was a page from a New York Sunday newspaper which traced his title back to Philip II. of Spain.

It was an impressive family tree, which the baron contended "comes straight from the heraldic office in Rome." The absence of his name from the Italian official list he was inclined to ascribe to his failure to answer the call to the colours in the Abyssinian war.

"BLACKLISTED ME"

"It is possible they may blacklist me," he said. "But I've been in the front pages of newspapers for years; they all know who I am," he added.

Numerous items have won him this notoriety, including his appearance in a dance Marathon, the announcement of his engagement to a millionaire, and an advertisement that he would marry any woman for £20,000.

Brunette Caused An Army Strike

Pretty sixteen-year-old Brunette, choir girl Winifred Butt, elected Queen of Northampton's show trade, it to lead a Carnival on Saturday. As Queen she must break Salvation Army's "Articles of War" pledges not to go to dances or theatres.

As Queen she starts year of office in theatre on Friday, dances on Saturday. Salvation Army has suspended her from the choir. And the Salvation Army bandmen are threatening to strike as a protest.

They are refusing to take part in carnival parade unless she is reinstated.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF

Eledon

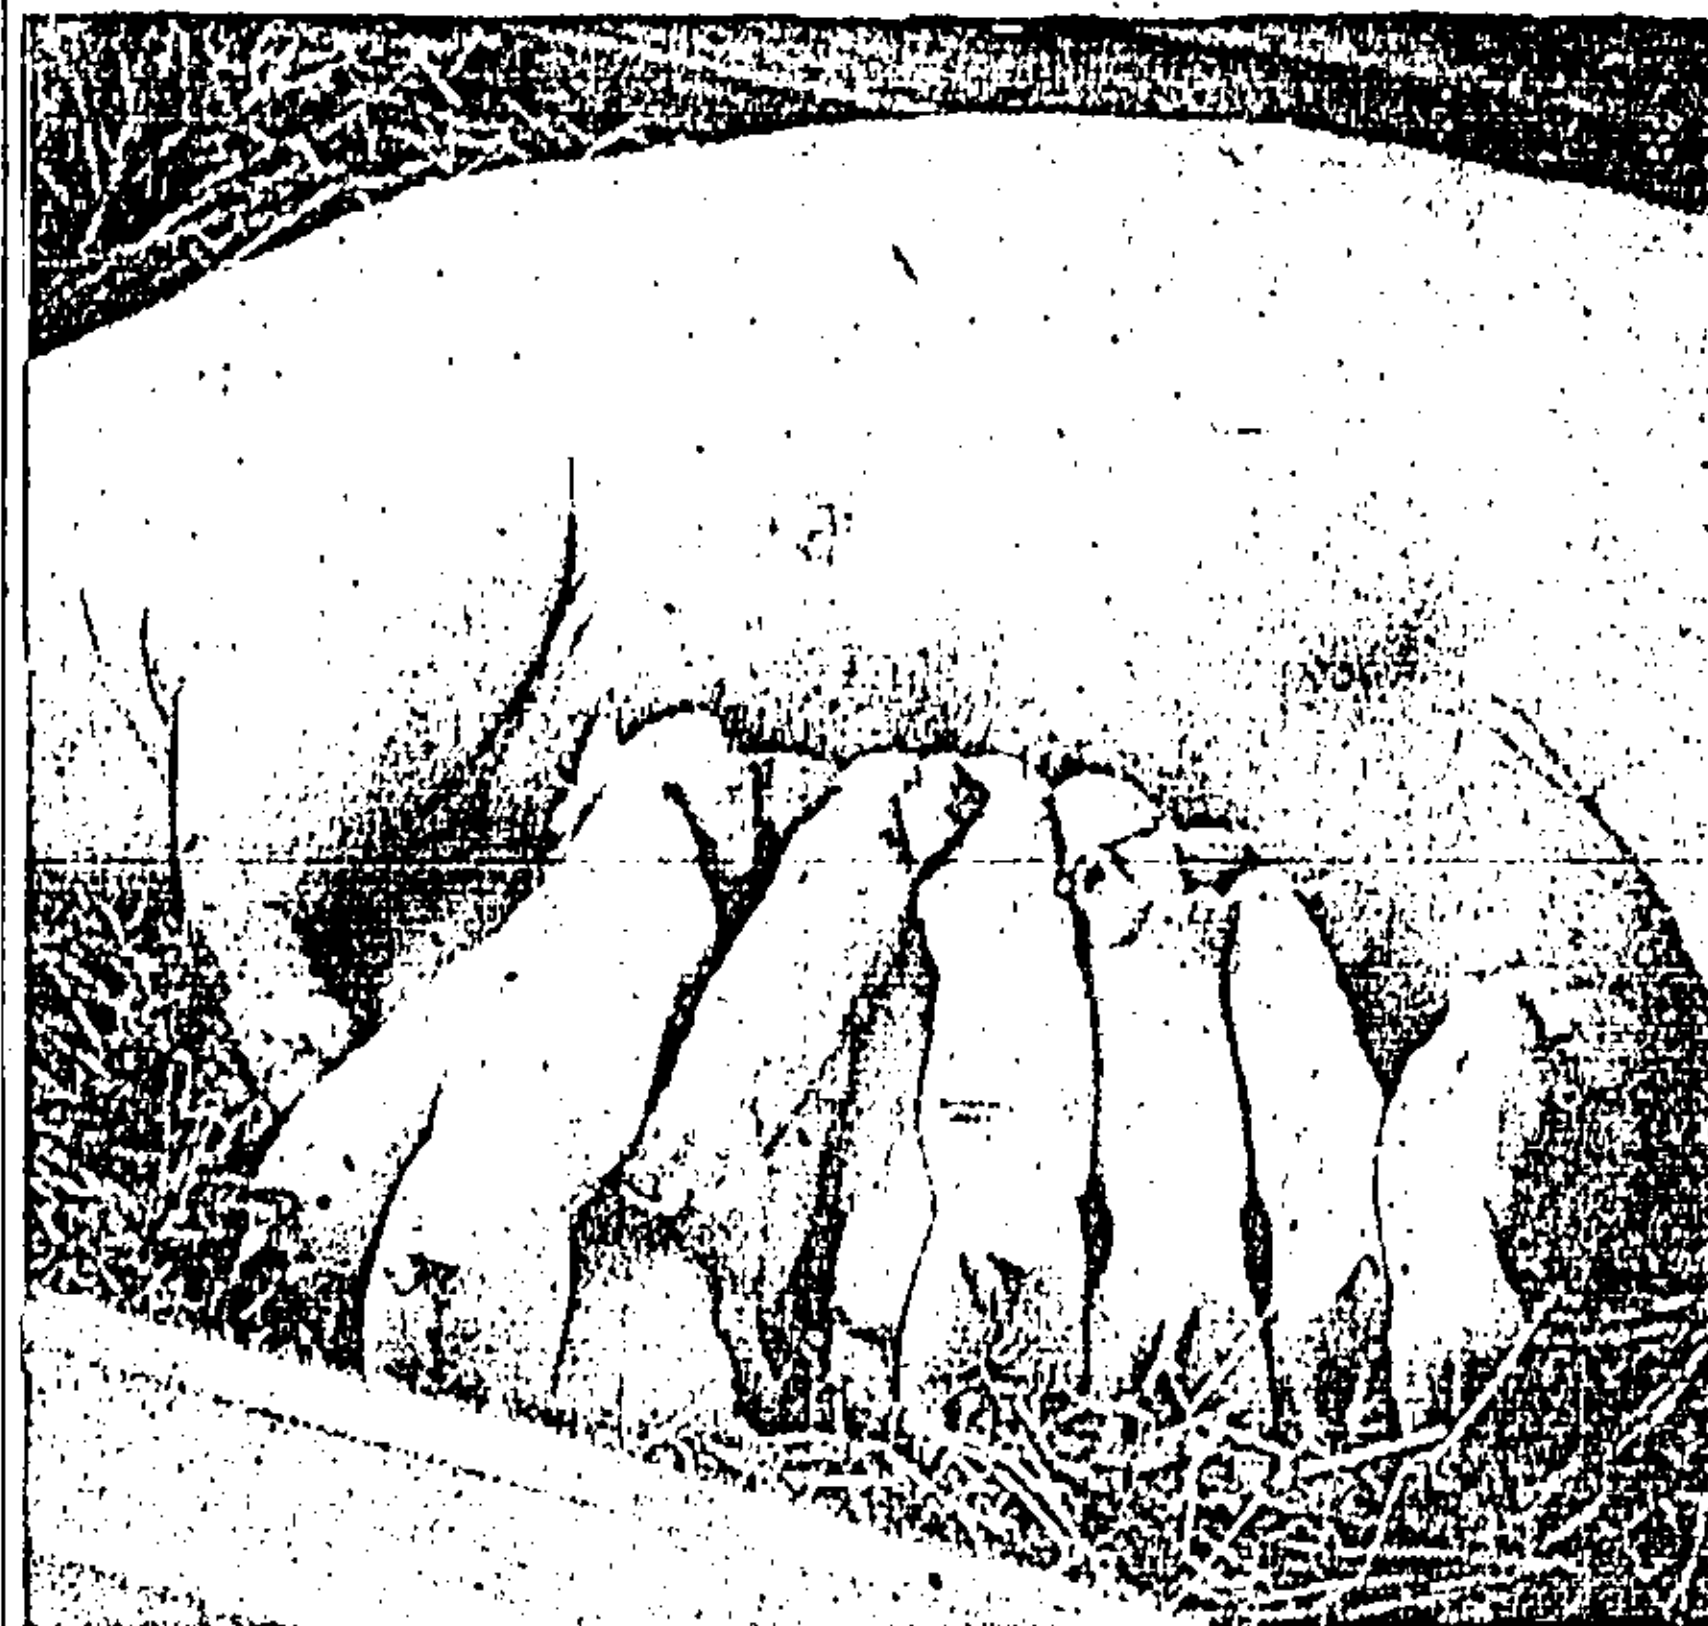

Over Ordinary Buttermilk.

1. Preparation from fresh cows' milk from selected and controlled sources.
2. The fat content is standardised to a definite percentage, sufficient to fulfil nutritional requirements.
3. The protein is in the form of fine flakes on which the gastric juices act more easily, and the stomach evacuates more rapidly than is the case with ordinary buttermilk.
4. The mineral salts, especially the calcium salts, are more soluble than is the case with ordinary buttermilk, and this facilitates their absorption.
5. The acidity is maintained at a constant degree.
6. The ability to vary the dilution when mixing is a decided advantage as the strength of the liquid can be made to suit individual requirements.
7. Many infants cannot tolerate whole milk acidified by the addition of lactic acid, and yet are able to tolerate Eledon.
8. The entire process of manufacture is subject to full scientific control.

Lipstick Murder Line-Up:

Chicago, July 21.

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD JIMMY, son of Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle, victim of the "Lipstick Murder," to-day stood before a line-up of suspects and lifted suspicion from every one present—except himself.

Detective had rounded up the men from the questionable night clubs of Chicago which Mrs. Castle loved to patronise.

One by one Jimmy dismissed them. None of the men, he said, was the man with whom he had coolly discussed the murder of his mother.

The boy is mystifying the police. Police Captain William H. H. said again to-day that he had not discarded the possibility of the precocious, film-struck youngster having attempted to end the home life he hated.

Psychologists, frankly sceptical of the boy's story—that his mother was killed by a man in faceblack—stood over the boy at police headquarters to-day and studied his answers to their questions.

They sought to find answers to why Jimmy, who said he questioned the murderer, then went back to sleep, dressed carefully, brushed his hair, and vanished his face before reporting the crime.

STICKS TO HIS STORY

They asked questions designed to gain further details about his reactions to the butterfly life his mother led with seven sweethearts.

But, Jimmy, who, they said, has the mind of a child of twelve and imagination stimulated by regular visits to gangster films, merely scowled at the psychologists and stuck to his story.

Meanwhile, handwriting experts examined the notepaper found in Jimmy's pocket, and compared it with the words, "Black Legion Game," found scrawled across Mrs. Castle's mirror with her lipstick.

When Jimmy went back to his hotel he became the simple boy instead of the problem child. Piling up eight pillows on the floor, he explained he was getting into

Anti-T.B. Vaccine For Babies

A NEW vaccine for treatment of tuberculosis—called B.C.G.—is being tested.

It is used to immunise babies and is given in the form of capsules which are swallowed.

So far it has been used only on the Continent. In Poland and France it has proved successful.

An official of the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis said:

"Until the babies grow up it will be unable to prove whether it is quite successful."

"You must remember that the disease is not hereditary."

"Thirty-nine thousand people die from tuberculosis in this country every year."

"Although the figures have gone down, certain types of persons show a marked increase. The chief are among young girls and men, particularly the girls."

"One reason is undoubtedly the slimming habit. Slimming can be very dangerous."

"Care should also be taken in sun bathing."

Five-Day Maximum For Air Race To S. Africa

ROYAL AERO CLUB'S official regulations governing the £10,000 London-Johannesburg air race in September have been issued.

The course is 6,540 miles long. Any airplanes not completing it in five days are automatically disqualified. Prize money, presented by Mr. I. W. Schlesinger, South African millionaire, is split into £4,000 for the first airplane home, and four prizes of £3,000, £1,500, £1,000 and £500.

The race will probably start on the night of September 15.

Pacific Aerial Network Soon

Manila, July 28.

When Pan-American Clippers begin carrying passengers between San Francisco and Manila only one missing link will remain for the completion of air passenger and mail services all the way around the world, and there are two possibilities that the remaining gap across the South China Sea may be closed soon.

Royal Netherlands Indies Airways (KNILM) is seeking to connect Manila by air with Soerabain, Java, present Far Eastern terminus of its line from Amsterdam to the Netherlands Indies.

If air field arrangements can be reached with the Philippine government, KNILM will put a fleet of airliners in operation from Soerabain across the eastern fringe of Borneo to Jolo, Zamboanga, Iloilo and Manila. Tentative plans call for stops in Borneo at Bandjermasin, Balikpapan and Tarakan.

Douglas DC-2 planes, similar to those on trans-continental routes in the United States, are to be used.

CONNECT WITH BRITISH

The service would also connect with Imperial Airways. British airline which passes through Soerabain on the London-Australia mail and passenger route.

Pan-American's proposed extension of its trans-Pacific Clipper service to Macao, Portuguese settlement a few miles from Hongkong has been anticipated for some time.

Imperial Airways recently opened a spur airline from Hongkong to Bangkok, connecting at the latter city with the London-Australia line, and the transfer of passenger and mail between Pan-American in Macao and Imperial in Hongkong would be a simple matter.

MACAO READY

Pan-American has already installed landing facilities in Macao that could be put in readiness on a few hours notice. The reason for delaying the inauguration of service to Macao has not been disclosed, but apparently the international aspects of the question is causing the delay.

President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippines recently declared that he was interested in encouraging international air communication between the Philippines and other Far-Eastern countries, but said the Philippines would co-operate fully with the state department in Washington on such questions.

Quezon expressed the opinion that foreign lines would not require a franchise such as Pan-American Airways obtained, but could be authorized by the proper government authorities to land and engage in foreign air traffic, on much the same basis as foreign ships enjoy the privileges of Philippine ports.

He pointed out that permission to operate thus obtained, however, would be revocable, whereas Pan-American Airways has the advantage of a definite commitment with respect to its privileges for the duration of the franchise.—United Press.

Plan To Close St. Pancras Station

London, July 25.

According to the Daily Telegraph plans are being considered for closing St. Pancras as a passenger station, and transferring its traffic to Euston, when the £5,000,000 reconstruction scheme at Euston is completed.

Under the original scheme, announced last year, for rebuilding Euston, it was proposed that St. Pancras should still be used for passengers.

Since then further plans have been made. If it should be decided to pull down St. Pancras Station, a huge site in Central London would become available for development of immense commercial importance since it is the gateway to the Midlands and the North. The station was opened 68 years ago.

CINEMA NOTES

"Colleen" Warner Brothers' latest musical film will be shown at the Oriental Theatre to-day, Friday and Saturday with an all star cast including Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler, Jack Oakie, Joan Blondell, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda and a couple of hundred chorus beauties and dancing youths. Robert Lord has provided real plot for this musical comedy, which is said to be packed with delightful and hilarious moments. As a spectacle, the picture presents two unique and unusual specialty numbers, in which scores of beautiful girls participate. One is staged aboard an ocean liner, with everyone from the captain to the crew as well as the passengers doing a dance rhythm. The other takes place in a modish shop in which a veritable style show is featured. Three original catchy songs, Powell sings two of these, one with Keeler, while the other, a comedy number is sung by Miss Blondell and Oakie.

"Ship Cafe" Carl Brisson, Paramount actor, has been called upon to put his versatile talents to good use in his most recent pictures. In addition to the regular requirements of the average performer, Brisson is currently appearing in Paramount's romantic comedy drama, "Ship Cafe," coming to-day to the Star Theatre, is a singer, a dancer and a fighter in between the times he is emulating before the camera. In "Ship Cafe," the star, in the role of a ship stoker, sings three hit tunes, "Fatal Fascination," and "Change Your Mind," goes through approximately five dance routines, and fights three times in as many scenes in the film. "I expected to dance and sing in some of my parts, but I never thought I'd ever have to fight again," declared Brisson, who once held the title of middleweight championship of Europe. "Ship Cafe" is a gay tune-filled romance revolving about the hilarious career of a stoker who becomes a night club singer and then a gladiator. Arline Judge, William Frawley, Mady Christians, Eddie Davis and Inez Courtney are in the cast. Lew Gensler, Harlan Thompson, and Ray Noble wrote the music and lyrics for the picture. Robert Florey directed.

"Half Angel" Laughter freezes on your lips as mystery mingles with romance and comedy blends with suspense in "Half Angel," the Darryl F. Zanuck Twentieth Century production now at the King's Theatre with Frances Dee, Brian Donlevy and Charles Butterworth in the feature roles. "Half Angel" is a combination of mystery, romance and suspense, intermingled with gay humour, hilarious comedy situations, and sparkling dialogue. Frances Dee is an innocent victim of circumstances which point to her as a poison murderer. Brian Donlevy, as irrepressible reporter, falls in love with her at first sight and refuses to believe the manufactured evidence. When the jury returns an unexpected verdict of acquittal while she is on trial for the first murder, Donlevy follows Miss Dee, hoping to hear first-hand her life-story. The newly-freed girl departs at once with Weston, a philanthropic woman whose hobby is aiding those in trouble. Miss Dee goes to Miss Weston's home, a strange household peopled by a weird assortment of

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, July 29. —Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Dow Jones summary of yesterday's market:—Stocks today fluctuated nervously throughout the day, due to sporadic drives by professional traders. At the close, prices were irregularly lower. The performance of the market, however, is excellent considering the extent of the break. Steel shares led, especially United States Steel issues, due to the fact that the Company's report failed to equal what Wall Street had anticipated. Motor stocks met with realising. Utility securities were fairly steady. Railroad shares improved early in the session. The Aviation bonds were irregularly higher. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were irregularly lower. S. C. & F. New York office called: Stocks: The market today again met with profit-taking and a further period of moderate irregularity is likely. The following Company earnings are for the quarter ended June 30. The United States Steel Corporation 75 cents per common share as against a deficit of $72,400 during the June quarter of last year. The Republic Steel Company 50 cents per common share as against 1 cent last year. The Continental Oil Company 48 cents per share as compared with 47 cents last year. The Flying Airplane Company 25 cents per share, against a deficit of $24,550 last year. Standard Brands 28 cents per share as against 21 cents last year.

Cotton: The weekly Government report indicates favourable weather conditions, except in Oklahoma. Yesterday's large estimate of the crop continues to affect the market. Wheat: Canadian crop reports are very bullish. Export sales to-day were reported to total 5,000,000 bushels. The United States Government weekly report is bullish. Mill demand was heavy and large hedges were easily absorbed.

Corn: Continued rapid deterioration is reported. Some estimates place the crop at half of the average yield.

Rubber: Quiet and with any special feature. S. C. & F. Wall Street Journal morning comment:—"The American Smelter & Light Company, which doubled its quarterly preferred dividend at the Company's last meeting, is expected again to double its dividend at the next meeting. The International Business Machines Corporation reported the largest half-yearly turnover in the Corporation's history. The turnover amounted to $3,382,000, which is equal to $5.18 per share. Prospects of substantial earnings by the New York Central Railroad Company for the last half of 1936 are seen in increased passenger numbers, due to low fares. This company's earnings are expected to average $2,500,000 a month, enabling it to earn about $2.50 per share."

ex-criminals, and Donlevy follows. The reporter climbs a trellis and enters Miss Dee's room through a window. The terrified girl promises to meet him at the front gate and relate her story to him. Returning to the house, Miss Dee is horrified to find Miss Westley dead and her husband, Henry Stephenson, apparently dying—both of poison. The police immediately arrest the girl again and it appears that she will certainly be convicted. Donlevy, however, never loses faith in her innocence and in a series of exciting episodes the daring news-hawk unmasks the real murderer. "Half Angel" was adapted to the screen by Bess Meredith and Gene Fowler. Sidney Lanfield directed with Kenneth Macgowan associate producer.

QUEEN'S THEATRE PLANS

BRIGHT PICTURES AND COOL AIR

It is announced by Mr. C. S. Rossetti, manager of General Amusement Company, who control the Alhambra Theatre, that the lease of the Queen's Theatre has been taken over by his Company, and that the theatre will re-open on Saturday next at 2.30 p.m., the daily sessions being as previously.

Warner's super-musical production "The Singing Kid" has been secured for the opening, featuring Al Jolson, Sybil Jason, Edward Everett Horton, the Yacht Club Boys and Gab Gallovy and his famous band.

Arrangements are being made for the early release of Paramount's "The Longest Day" directed by Henry Hathaway who directed "Lives of a Bengal Lancer." This is an all-colour production showing an entirely new process which has been received enthusiastically wherever shown.

Mr. Rossetti states that the theatre will be air-conditioned, and every effort made to study the comfort of patrons. It is intended to provide the best pictures obtainable, and cinema-goers will doubtless welcome this announcement.

A DILEMMA AND
ITS UPSHOT

Many people will, we imagine, quarrel with the decision of a Kowloon Magistrate on Tuesday in imposing a fine of $5, with the alternative of imprisonment for two weeks, on a ricksha coolie "for failing to complete a journey in which he was engaged." The case, unimportant in some respects, touches a point of considerable public interest. The facts, briefly, as related in the Police Court, were that the ricksha was engaged in Yau-mat by a fare who agreed to pay thirty cents to be taken to the Sam Lee Boat Building Yard, and, whilst on the journey, the coolie, noticing that the passenger was in a fainting condition, dropped the shafts of the vehicle and lifted the fare on to the road. It was stated that the coolie so acted because of a fear that the passenger might die in the ricksha. Apparently, the coolie was then making off, when he was held up by a passer-by, who tried to persuade him to take the sick man to the police station. The coolie at first refused to go, but eventually, the unconscious man was lifted back into the ricksha and, under the escort of the passer-by, the coolie, with his sick passenger, was taken to the police station. When the case came into Court, the passer-by was, quite rightly, commended for having intervened, and, also quite rightly, the coolie was reprimanded for having left the passenger on the road. But in a case of this type account should surely be taken of the dilemma in which the coolie found himself. Ricksha coolies are not usually over-blessed with intelligence, and in this instance the man was obviously puzzled as to what he should do in the circumstances. Actually, he was informed by the Magistrate that his duty was to have taken the passenger to hospital. That, clearly, would have been the most sensible course, but, incidentally, if the coolie had so acted he would still have been guilty of the offence of "failing to complete a journey in which he was engaged." That journey was from the point at which the ricksha was engaged to the Sam Lee Boat Building Yard; and it is quite conceivable that if the journey had been completed, the passenger would have died before reaching his destination. If the conviction was based on the failure of the coolie to take his sick passenger to hospital, then it was wrong in law. On the other hand, strict compliance with the law might easily have endangered the passenger's life. In our view, the case would have been adequately met if the coolie had been reprimanded and been instructed what to do in the event of a similar circumstance arising in the future. Indeed, general instructions of this kind might with advantage be passed

MANY PEOPLE, ESPECIALLY in recent times, have attacked the examination system. As a non-educationist, I have never been much impressed by these attacks, believing that in an imperfect world every-thing, whether the examination system or democracy, is bound to be imperfect, and that the proposed substitutes are likely to be more imperfect still. I never realised quite how imperfect the examination system is, however, till I read a shilling pamphlet entitled "An Examination of Examinations," written by Sir Philip Hartog and Dr.

E. C. Rhodes and published last year by Messrs. Macmillan.

Talk of the glorious uncertainty of the Turf! The facts revealed in this pamphlet—a report of an expert inquiry into the working of the examination system—suggest that a boy or girl in the examination room needs almost as much luck as a horse on the racecourse in order to pull through.

After reading this report I feel that, if I were a schoolboy again and were ploughed in an examination, I should demand a recount.

Here is an example of how 210—210 being the number of verdicts given on 15 scripts by 14 examiners. We are told that of the 14 examiners there was only one who "was exceptionally steady and whose numerical mark never varied by more than seven out of a hundred." Of the others, one in the second examination moved eight of the fifteen candidates down a class lower than that in which he had originally placed them, and another moved seven down a class.

A further experiment was tried and these 14 examiners

NOTES OF THE DAY

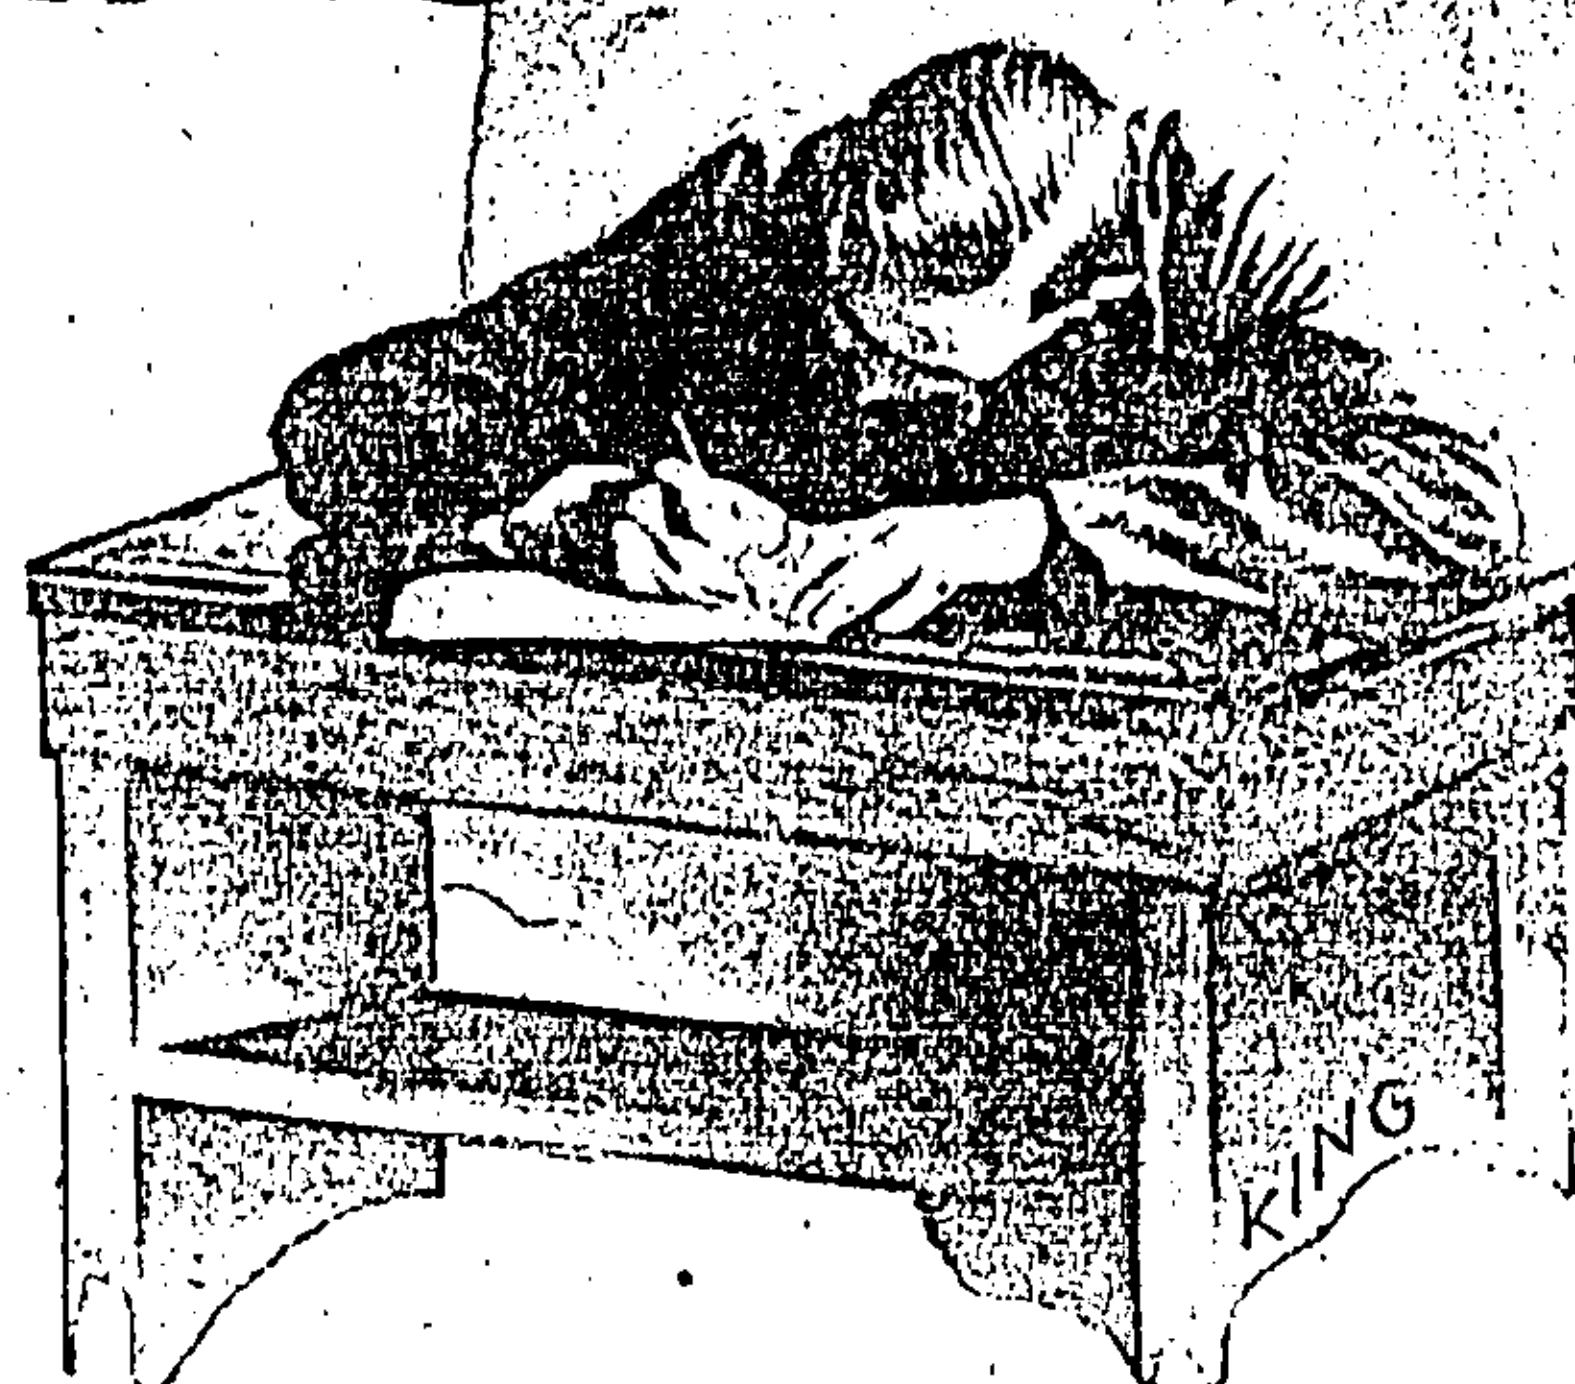

Canada's Minister of Defence has made the naive admission that his Department has only ten up-to-date airplanes. The Dominion has pilots of high standing, but officially comparatively little has been done to encourage aviation, either civil or military. The Government has been preoccupied with matters of lesser moment. There is no trans-Canada air mail, though this subject is to be discussed shortly. Even now there is no decision as to whether such a service will be engaged in by private enterprise or by Army pilots. If it is decided that the Government will undertake the trans-Canada air mail it will have to have the necessary machines constructed. Such an investment would probably mean that no machines would be purchased for defensive purposes, and this country would continue to lag behind in comparison with other parts of the Empire. It would seem the part of wisdom to encourage commercial aviation companies to undertake the trans-Canada service, which could be arranged if sufficient subsidies were given for the carriage of mails.

Civil and military air services should be kept apart. The Government could do its part in promoting the former through the trans-Canada service. The development of a defensive air force should be kept a separate department. There should be a decision as to the number of Army planes needed, where they should be stationed, and what should be the personnel of a military air force. The Minister of Defence is enthusiastic enough in favour of Canada doing what is commensurate with her responsibilities for her own and Imperial defence. It is time that the country played its part in aviation. With the great distances in the Dominion and its sparsely-settled areas there is a demand for air services which is as yet far from being fulfilled.

on to all ricksha coolies for their guidance. To fine an ignorant man who is a substantial sum for people of his type, merely because he acted unwisely in a most unusual dilemma, seems to us an instance of unduly harsh punishment, to say nothing of the point whether, under the circumstances, the right charge was brought.

were invited a year or so later to re-judge the same scripts with all marks erased. It was found in the result that they differed widely from their own previous judgments as they had changed their minds as to the verdict of Pass, Fail and Credit in 92 cases out of the total of

of the others awarded scarcely any.

We are told in regard to one of the papers set on this occasion that the nearest approach to unanimity on the part of the examiners "was in the case of one candidate who was ploughed by six examiners, but was awarded a Credit by the seventh!"

Mr. A. P. Herbert has recently reproved journalists for their excessive use of the epithet "amazing." But I think Mr. Herbert would admit that the use of the word "amazing" about some of these facts is thoroughly justified.

The verdicts of these expert examiners seem to be almost as capricious and irrational as the verdicts of some of the old benches of magistrates.

Possibly the system works well as a whole; but if one failed after this in a Civil Service examination, one would certainly be inclined to doubt whether the failure was due to one's own mistakes or to the incompetence of the examiners.

In the course of these experiments a test examination was held of candidates suitable for the higher Civil Service. Two boards of examiners were appointed, and the 16 candidates came before each of them in succession for a viva voce examination. Each board afterwards drew up a separate list of the candidates in order of merit.

Here, as in the other tests, the examiners showed an extraordinary incapacity for agreement. The candidate who was placed first by Board I. was placed thirteenth (out of 16) by Board II. The candidate who was placed first by Board II, was awarded only the eleventh place by Board I.

There was not a single candidate about whom the two boards were in complete agreement.

In the opinion of the authors of the report these astonishing divergences between the examining boards "point to the unreliability of the interview test, and indicate the great influence that this test might have in the final placing of a candidate in a Civil Service examination."

It was only after reading this report that I began to realise how it came about that at school I was once given a prize in mathematics. It is clear that, in certain moods, examiners are capable of anything. In my case, I think the examiner must have confused my "script" with somebody else's.

On the whole, however, during many years' slavery to examinations, I noticed few cases of injustice in the results. The candidates whom one expected to come out top usually came out top and it was very seldom that one was shocked by finding a first-rate scholar ploughed.

Still, the facts given in this report suggest that there are people, examining to-day who are not really fit to be examiners, and that examiners should undergo as strict a training as doctors.

On the other hand, the verdicts even of doctors differ; and in an imperfect world we shall always, no doubt, have the imperfect examiner.

Luckily, the later careers of only a comparatively few people depend upon the places they once took in an examination. If these were not so, the present pamphlet would cause a world-wide sensation.

NOT SO SUPERFICIAL

Interest in the
Serious Side of Life

It has been suggested that this is a superficial age, and that modern youth in particular lives only on the surface of things.

Entertainments, it is said, must be light to be popular; in the world of books the best sellers are often on the verge of being immoral; church attendance and membership is falling off, and so on.

Men and women are concerned mainly with things that do not matter; they are pleasure-loving and ever in search of some new amusement. As one writer has put it, there is a new and popular occupation, the chase of the thrill.

All this is what we see if we take only a casual glance at life to-day, and if we deduce therefrom that the modern age is living only on the surface of things, then we ourselves are guilty of being superficial.

If we probe a little deeper, make a closer study of present tendencies, we find that there is much evidence to prove that this age is far from being superficial.

Men and women of to-day are interested not only in their pleasures and in what amusement life can offer them. They may enjoy these to the full, but they do not forget the more serious things and they are well aware of the responsibilities of citizenship.

FORCE OF PUBLIC OPINION

This has been fully demonstrated on several occasions recently. In our political and social life we hear a good deal nowadays of the phrase, public opinion. Some months ago, at the time of the Hoare-Laval plan to settle the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, public opinion in England was so strong that it compelled the British Government, which had a very comfortable majority in the House of Commons, to reverse its policy. Nearer home, public opinion helped materially to alter Government's decision regarding tents at Repulse Bay.

Public opinion is a very powerful factor in this Colony, perhaps more so now than ever before. The man in the street thinks things out for himself. There is not much superficiality here.

Then, turning to the question of entertainment, it is true that a great many trashy books are read, but librarians also tell us that there is an increasing demand for non-fiction, for autobiographies, and for scientific works.

When Mr. H. G. Wells wrote his "Outline of History" and, with the help of his son, G. P. Wells, and Professor Julian Huxley, produced "The Science of Life," he little thought that these books would become best sellers. But so it proved.

And let us remember the amazing popularity of the scientific works of Sir James Jeans, the astronomer. These books are bought in hundreds of thousands. Can it be said that the taste of the reading public is entirely superficial?

BETTER FILMS

The films, the most popular form of entertainment, have often been condemned, and it is true that a great many poor films have been shown, but in this case, too, it is clear that there is a good demand for the better-class film.

To appreciate the improvement that has taken place in the public taste in the cinema, we need only to cast back our minds twenty years or so and recall the kind of films that delighted audiences at that time.

And modern youth is superficial. We are often told that the youth of to-day are pleasure-loving, lazy, and irresponsible, that they are not interested in their work, and that they rush from it to spend the evening in pleasure.

How, then, are we to account for the fact that the habit of study was never so general as it is to-day? Apart from our University one need only consider the thousands of Chinese and Europeans who are attending evening classes and technical schools to realise how eager young people are to learn and to equip themselves for their work.

Coming now to the question of the decline in church attendance, which is also taken as indication of the superficiality of the age, we find that, whatever may be said of the modern attitude to religion, it is not superficial. It was our fathers and grandfathers who were superficial in their religion. Did they not accept blindly the doctrines and theories which were put before them? The modern mind is not content with this. It examines and criticises; it tries to get beneath the surface.

The conclusions reached may clash with the old accepted principles, but that is another matter. It cannot be said that the modern attitude is superficial. The very reverse is the case.

RUSSIA ABOLISHES EASY DIVORCE

Bonus For Large Families: Birth Control Forbidden

3,000 Per Cent.
Increase In Cost
Of Divorces

ALIMONY FOR CHILDREN TO BE ENFORCED

Moscow, July 21.

A REVOLUTION in personal relationships is being effected by a decree issued to-night and becoming effective throughout Soviet Russia immediately.

THE DECREE ENDS THE SYSTEM OF EASY DIVORCE AND ABOLISHES THE ONLY WIDELY-KNOWN METHOD OF BIRTH CONTROL. IT FORBIDS ABORTIONS EXCEPT TO SAVE THE LIFE OF THE MOTHER OR IN CASES OF HEREDITARY DISEASE.

It sets up bonuses for large families, enforces alimony payments for the support of children, and raises the cost of divorce. In some cases as much as 3,000 per cent.

It also forbids divorces on the petition and appearance of one party only.

Vast increases are made in the budget for the assistance of mothers and children.

Under the present birth rate of 32 per 1,000, the increase of the population to 300,000,000 by 1971 is assured.

POPULATION INCREASE
The present population is 170,000,000, and the increased use of the tremendous natural resources will make the nation capable of supporting many times the present population.

The decree was foreshadowed a month ago, and is signed by M. Kallinin and M. Molotov, the Soviet "Premier."

The expenditure on hospitals, nursing, maternity homes, creches and clinics is greatly increased under the 1936 Budget, which provides largely increased bonuses for big families.

Divorces used to cost three roubles (approximately 2s. 4d.). Henceforth they will cost 50 roubles (£1 19s.) on the first petition, 150 roubles (£5 17s.) for a second divorce, and 300 roubles (£11 14s.) for a third.

Killer's Guilty Plea Is Refused

Allegation for death Albert Walter Jr. confessed slayer of Blanche Carter, 16th Falls girl in San Francisco, pleaded guilty to first degree murder charges and saw his plea turned into one of not guilty by reason of insanity. This paradox in court procedure was brought about by Gerald Kenny, public defender, right, who changed the plea against Walter's wishes.

Police Chief Trained By Own Men

Ottawa, July 21.

General Sir James MacBrien, Commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, has had a narrow escape from being arrested by his own men.

Sir James is a keen airman, and often flies over part of his enormous "beat."

One day, in poor flying weather, he took off from Ottawa on an unannounced flight over Quebec Province.

At Montreal the police were keeping a sharp look-out for a bootlegger from the United States, who sometimes uses an airplane.

"No one could be up in the air for any good purpose on a day like this," decided the police when the general's machine was sighted.

For hours the wires hummed with the news, and all the way to Montreal and past Quebec the police trailed their man.

It was not until Sir James was near the end of his trip that his airplane was recognised. Reuter.

FISH STORY

—About A Whale

Gloucester, Mass., July 20.

Coast fishermen worked hard several hours to tow the carcass of a 75-foot, 60-ton whale from Bass Rock Beach seven miles out to sea. They were very happy.

Imagine their chagrin the next morning to find, floating in Gloucester harbour, a half mile from where they started their long tow, was the same whale, towed in by a helpful yachtsman who thought it was a menace to navigation. United Press.

Aviation In Orient

CHINA LIFTS BAN ON CIVILIAN FLYING

Shanghai, July 21.

A ban on civilian flying in China, in force since the establishment of the Nationalist government in 1927, has been removed, and the training of civilian pilots is now under way with the blessing of the authorities.

The removal of restrictions on civilian aviation is regarded as another indication that China is feverishly preparing for "der tag"—eventual resistance against Japan.

Foreigners are still forbidden to take to the air in China unless employed by the military authorities or the semi-official companies which operate the air-mail and passenger lines. Chinese, however, are not only permitted to fly, but are being encouraged to do so.

The first step in the promotion of a nation-wide programme of civilian aviation was the opening of a flying school in Shanghai by the China Aviation League, a non-profit group with official connections. The League has been granted the use of the Langhwa airfield as a training field, and class work is also held there.

Three Fleet Trainers, Standard Model No. 10 planes have been obtained by the League. They are powered with 125 horse-power 8-5 engines, and two of the machines were assembled entirely in China.

The courses, including ground work and actual flight, are designed to give graduates the qualifications required for an "A" licence in European countries. No announcement has been made as to whether the League school will require students to pass attitude and cross country flying tests.

The first class is already proceeding with courses. Applicants must not only pass necessary physical tests but must pass examinations in Chinese, one foreign language, mathematics, physics and general information. Subsequent classes are expected to be graduated with regularity, so that in the course of a few years the nation will have a trained reserve force of competent civilian pilots.

VALENTINO'S FUR COAT AND CORSET FOR SALE

Turin, July 15.

SOME relics of Rudolph Valentino, the film actor, will be sold by public auction to-morrow in Turin. They are the contents of three trunks which the actor left with a local shipping agent in 1927 and never claimed. The agent became tired of paying insurance and storage, and decided to sell the goods.

He asked permission of Valentino's sister-in-law in Hollywood, and this permission arrived yesterday.

An inventory of the contents of the trunks revealed that they contained 48 pieces, including a woolen suit, three fly switches, 12 bed sheets, 24 table napkins, 13 kitchen towels, a woman's pyjamas, a worn-out corset and a woman's cheap fur coat.

LOW PRICES
Considering the former fame of Valentino, the reserve prices placed on the objects are very low. Here are some of them:

A pair of well-worn riding breeches, one lira (34d.); a grey-blue flannel suit, rather worn, 15 lire; a bath mat, five lire; two evening dress white waistcoats, one lira each; 30 towels, one lira each.

Big Guns Built Into Heligoland Rocks

Copenhagen, July 20.

Further reports that Heligoland is being strongly re-fortified on the West Coast, and that forts armed with big guns have been built into the rock, come from an authoritative source in Copenhagen.

It is impossible to re-fortify the East coast, it is stated, because the rocks there were blown up after the war, when artillery emplacements and other fortifications were destroyed.

The East coast is, however, armed with anti-aircraft guns. Reuter.

Fortifications on Heligoland, a triangular island commanding the entrance to Kiel Canal, were destroyed by an inter-Allied submarine commission under Peace Treaty terms. Re-fortification would be contrary to the terms of the Versailles Treaty (Article 115).

WHEN A MAN DIED

London, July 27.

The question of what time a man died was raised at the inquest on Cyril Henry White, aged 32, who was revived after his heart stopped beating and lived for another seven hours.

He underwent an operation for tonsillitis in Dorset County Hospital, Dr. Vaughan, house surgeon, said that the breathing stopped suddenly at 7 p.m., and they then gave White artificial respiration and oxygen, injected drugs into the heart and opened the abdomen and massaged the heart.

The heart started after 20 minutes and they gave him adrenalin. Artificial respiration was then given until 2.10 a.m. the next day, when the man died.

Dr. Salkeld who performed the operation did not agree with the Coroner that although the man's heart started to beat it did not mean that life was still there.

He thought that for legal purposes one would say death took place on Wednesday morning and not on Tuesday night; this was recorded on the certificate with the verdict of misadventure.

CHESS CONGRESS AT NOTTINGHAM WORLD MASTERS TO MEET

Nottingham, July 15.

One of the most important meetings of chess experts ever held in this country will take place at Nottingham in August when fifteen of the world's greatest players will contend for the international chess championship and 125 other noted players will take part.

The world champion and three former world champions are among the masters who will attend.

The tournament is being held by the British Chess Federation, and the President of the Nottinghamshire Chess Association, Alderman J. N. Derbyshire, a leading Nottingham accountant, has subscribed £1,250, exactly half of the cost of the meeting.

The games will begin on Monday, August 10, and will be spread over three weeks. All the fifteen masters will meet each other and will play on every day, except Wednesdays and Sundays, for the whole three weeks, each day being devoted to one game.

The fifteen masters who will take part are Dr. Euwe, the present world champion, Dr. Alekhine, Senior Capablanca and Dr. Emanuel Lasker, former champions, Herr Bogoljubow, Dr. Vidmar, Dr. Tartakower, Mr. S. Recheyevsky, of U.S., Mr. R. Fine, of U.S., M. Botvinnik, Herr Flohr, Sir George Thomas, Mr. W. Winter, Mr. T. H. Tylor.

The women competitors will include Miss Menchik, of London, one of the greatest living women players. The tournament will be held at University College, and the public will be admitted.

MASTIFFS TRACED TO 2200 B.C.

London, July 21.

In the course of a copyright case concerning the history of mastiffs, it was stated that the plaintiff's researches had gone back to the earliest days of which there were records, and he concluded that the dogs he found mentioned there were mastiffs—in 2200 B.C.

He had explored Babylonian and Assyrian records and the literature of ancient Greece and Rome.

He had also traced the history of the mastiff in English literature from Chaucer to the end of the 17th century when the so-called sport of bear baiting was stopped—and with it the breeding of mastiffs began to decline.

Worthington (Derbyshire)
Copson (Derbyshire)
Fagg (Kent)

It was further stated to-day that the M.C.C. would issue no more invitations before August 9. Reuter.
Eleven players are thus on the books for the Australian Test match tour. G. O. Allen will lead the side and expects to have the following at his disposal: R. W. V. Robins, Hammond, Leyland, Verity, Fiddlock, Hardstaff as well as the four players mentioned above.

Copson and Fagg are essentially batsmen, while Duckworth is a magnificent wicket-keeper who has considerably improved his batting. Worthington is a useful all-rounder, though chiefly known for his batting. His form this summer has been exceptionally good, as has that of Fagg, the young Kent professional.

The selectors have clearly issued these new invitations as a result of performances in the second Test match against India which concluded on Tuesday. Worthington signalled the occasion by scoring 67, while Fagg played faultless cricket for his 39.

Kay Stammers Going To America

SEEKING TENNIS HONOURS

London, July 29.
Miss Kay Stammers, this year's winner of the English hardcourt championship, and who reached the quarter-finals of the women's singles at Wimbledon, has been nominated by the Lawn Tennis Association to compete in the American Championships at Forest Hills in September. British Wireless.

Fred Perry, world's champion, has already indicated his intention to participate in the men's championship. He will endeavour to win the title for the third time which will give him the right of permanently retaining the cup.

LEAGUE TENNIS BIG PROGRAMME TO-DAY

LEADING TEAMS WILL NOT BE THREATENED

Although there is a full programme of "C" Division tennis league matches this afternoon, it is not likely to make any contribution towards solving the struggle for the championship. Both Kowloon Indians and Club de Recreation have comparatively easy matches, and the winning of the title depends entirely on their match. It is believed that this encounter will not take place until Kowloon Indians have met South China, so that the championship will probably be in the balance until the last match of the season.

Thanks to a big win over Indian Recreation Club on Tuesday the Recreio go to the top of the table with the maximum number of points from eight matches. To-day's list of matches contains nothing of particular interest. K.C.C. (1) cannot hope to take a point from the K.I.T.C., and although C.C.C. are on their own courts, and have been showing somewhat better form of late, they appear to be doomed to defeat at the hands of Recreio.

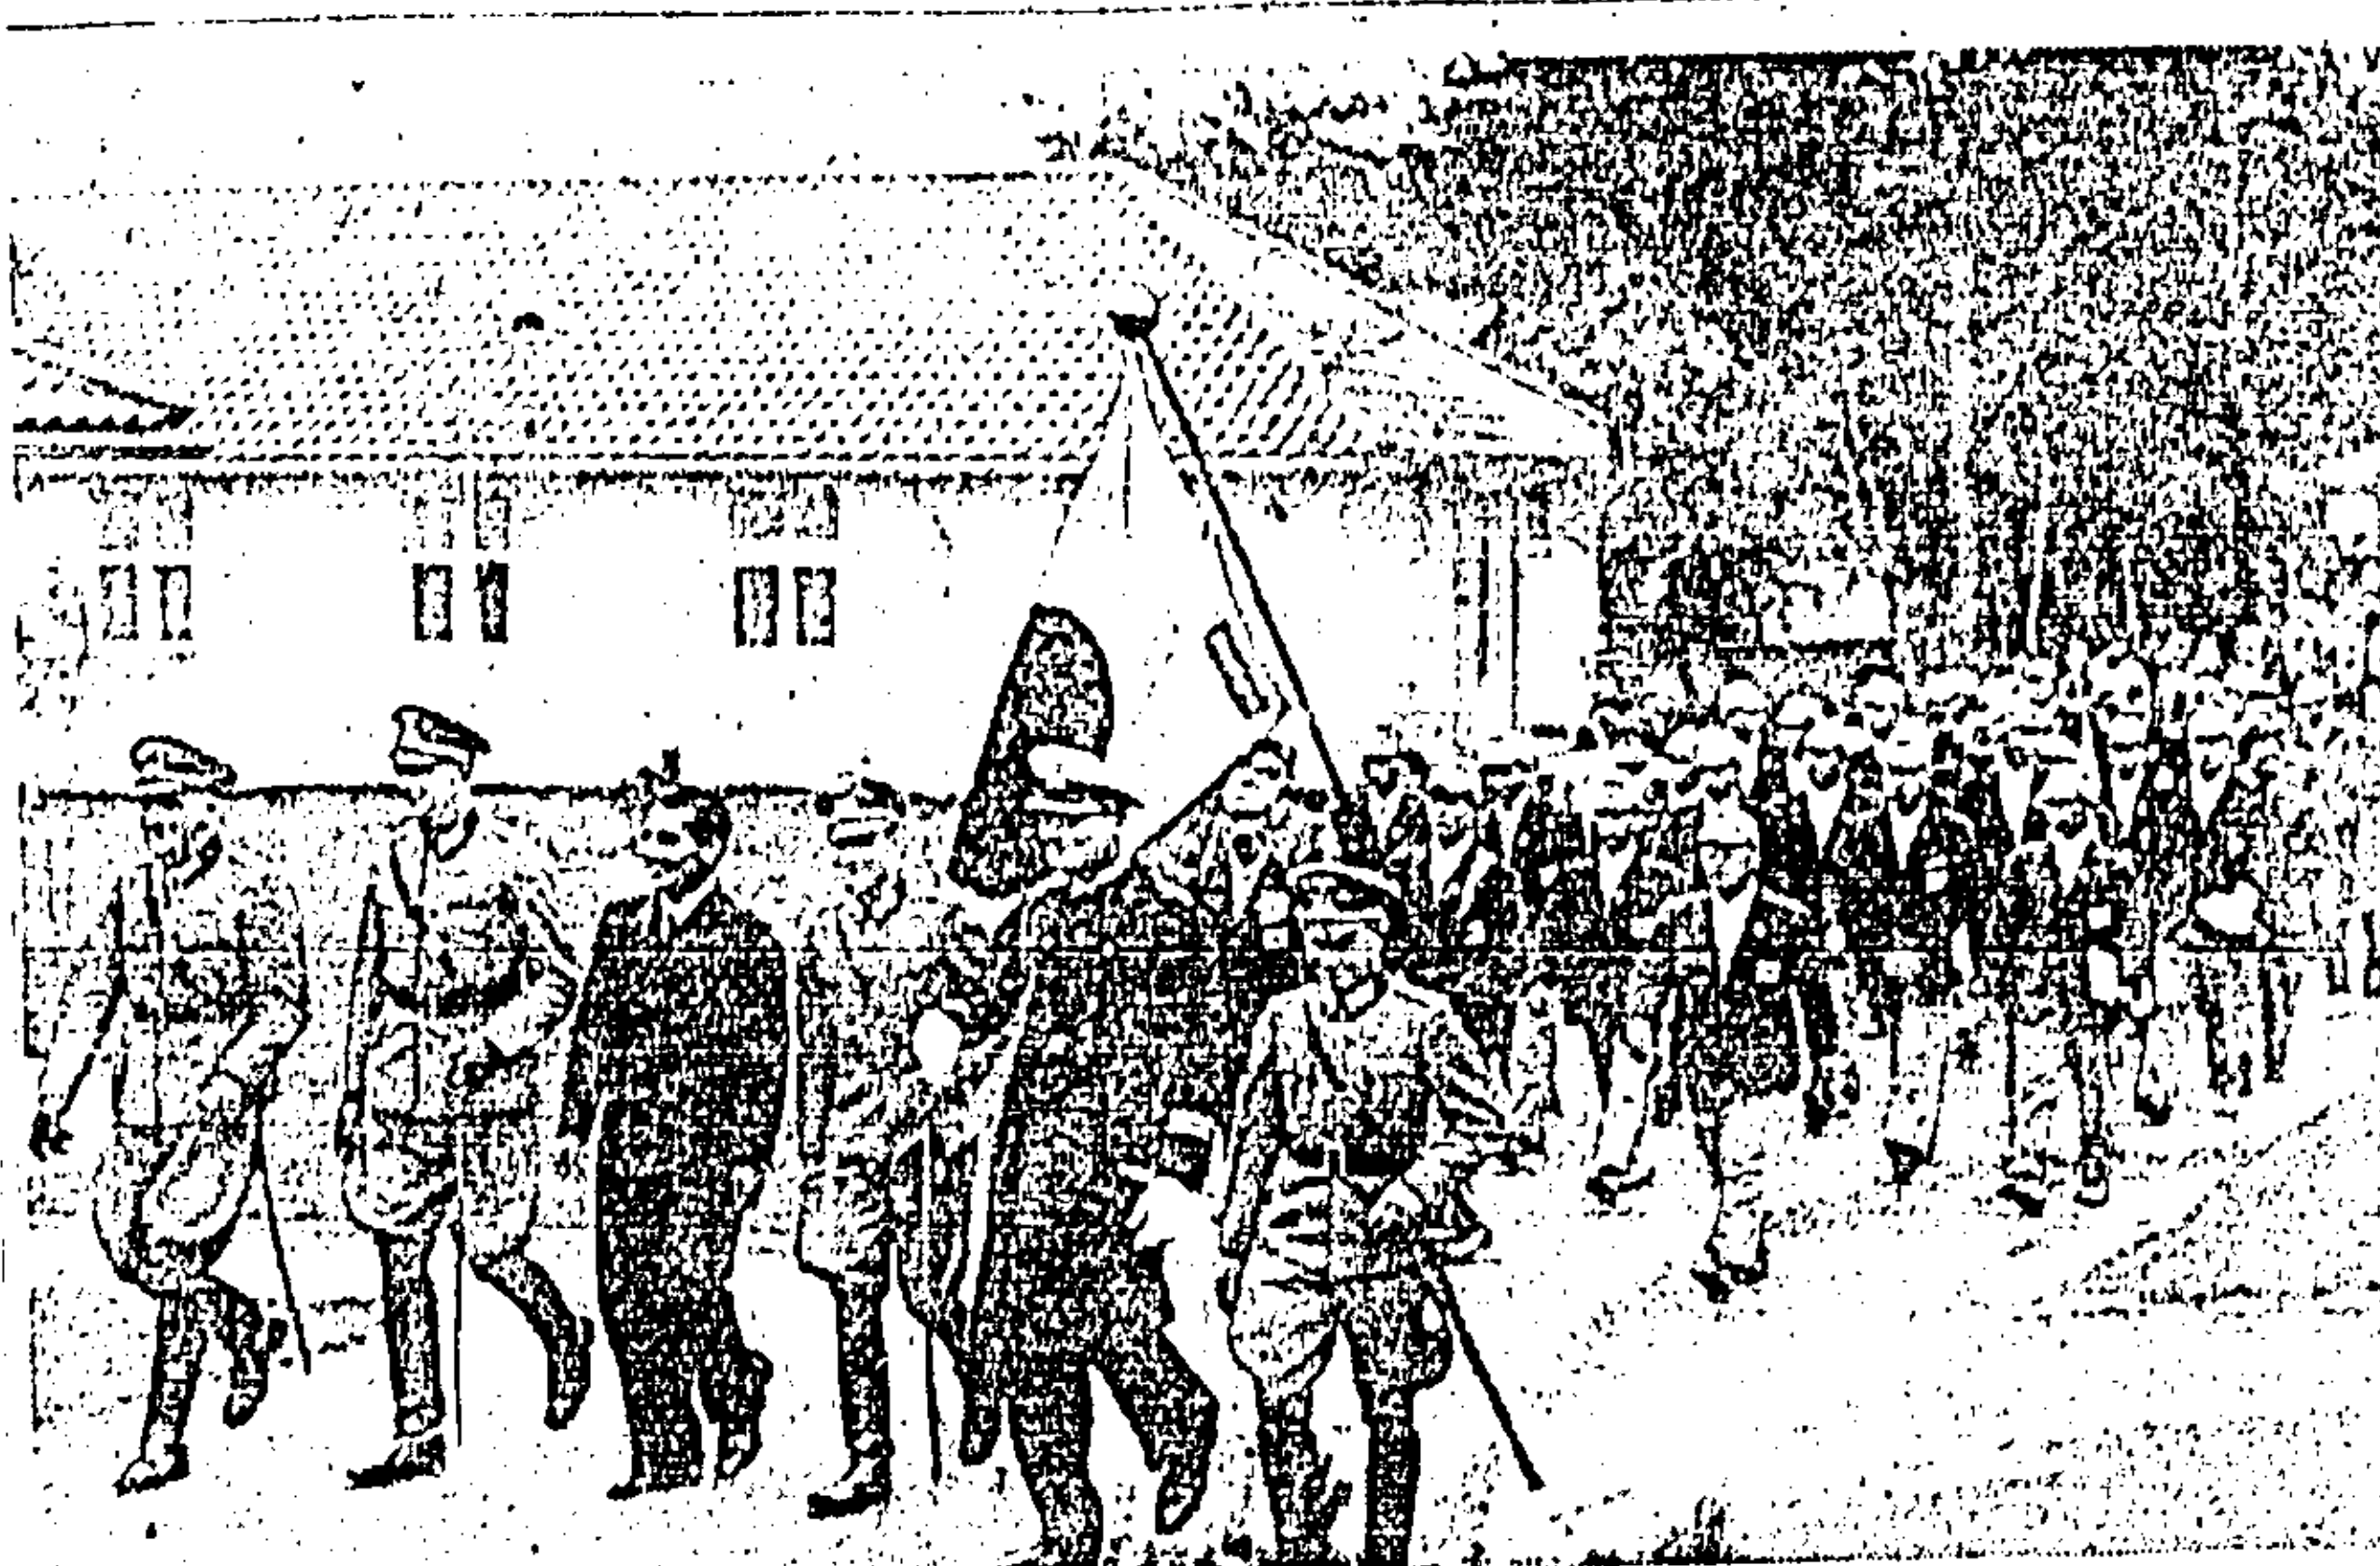

The programme follows:
K.I.T.C. v. K.C.C. (1)
Kowloon T.C. v. I.R.C.
University v. S.C.A.A.
C.R.C. v. Recreio

ANOTHER WORLD'S RECORD GOES

New Time For 1,000 Metres Walk

London, July 29.
Competing in the London Athletic Meeting to-day, the Latvian Bernhard broke the world's record 1,000 metres walk when he returned the brilliant time of 3 minutes 49 5/10 seconds.
The old record of 3 minutes 51 6/10 seconds was established by Altman of Italy as long ago as 1913. Reuter.

Foot-Faulting At Lawn Bowls And How To Avoid It

(By H. S. Burrows)
News-Chronicle

An instruction has gone forth from the L.T.A. to all its affiliated members that in important finals, watchmen must be appointed to sit behind players and to look closely for foot-faulting.

These "spotters" have been informed that ere they take action they must clearly warn the men, as a whole, that the penalty for foot-faulting—i.e., for delivering a bowl with both feet off the mat—is that the bowl shall be stopped either by the reeve marking the stiles or by a second "spotter" sitting at the other hand.

In a most important singles event decided in London recently, one of four semi-finalists foot-faulted on several occasions, and a stern voice came across the green "No bowl." As a penalty each bowl so declared was lifted on to the bank by the reeve.

Notices should always take a quick look down at the position of their toes in the process of making ready on the mat for their delivery.

FOUR-ESSENTIAL MOVEMENTS

It should be an automatic process to:

- (1) Look at the Jack and the lay out of the obstructing woods or of your own that need slightly pushing up;
- (2) Look on the green for a spot at which you believe your bias will be at its fullest, and make the bowl pass over that spot;
- (3) Look at your bowl to see that you have the bias side right, and
- (4) In this downward look carry the eyes still further to the mat, you are in the middle of the mat.

If you are too far forward on the rubber, it follows that when you stride forward with your loose leg the toe of the firm foot comes up off the mat and is piercing the green just over the edge of the mat.

As well as damaging the green by this "nipping" process of the sharp toe just beyond the mat edge, you are breaking law 7, section 3 which stipulates that one foot at the point of delivery must remain entirely on the mat.

The International Board recommends that mats with ridged edges should be used in match play and these are gradually replacing the entirely flat sort which encourages variety, a trifle awkward to fall into at first, you gradually find yourself "feeling" with your toe for the raised edge, and automatically move away from it when the ridge is encountered.

I have been asked why greenkeepers do not fulfil the spirit of Law 1, which demands that rinks shall be so laid out that their boundaries are made clear by the aid of white painted markers laid into the banks.

I agree that these markers are helpful to keep in your eye when the green is full of bias and running and you are compelled to put the wood out to the string. It is then that one should have a mark wide out to look at, and if there were more whitened rink boundary marks in existence we should see better drawing work.

Only when greens are fast, however, are any marks on banks useful. When the turf is thick, or spongy, you must look for a mark on the green.

MORE U.S. Olympians SUSPENDED

Two Boxers Are Sent Back

Berlin, July 29.
More trouble in the American Olympic camp was reported to-day. Boxer King and Joe Church, two of the United States Olympic boxing team, have been sent back to America owing to indiscipline.

This incident, following hard on the heels of the suspension of Mrs. Eleanor Helen Jurek, which culminated in the famous American swimmer being turned out of the American squad indicates that all is not well with the American contingent. It is also clear that officials in charge of the squad are going to tolerate no insubordination.

PROS. BANNED FROM TENNIS TOURNAMENT

(By Ulysses Rogers)

London, July 27.
Four English professional tennis players have been compelled by the L.T.A. to withdraw from the second International Championships, which open at Southport, Lancashire, to-day.

The Southport Corporation have entered into five years' undertaking with "Big Bill" Tilden to organize an annual tournament. Last year the event was a great success. The entries, previously limited to the great and outstanding pros, have been extended to include four outstanding British players—Jeffery, Poulson, Pierce, and Roberts. These four were officially advised that it would not be to their advantage to play.

Mr. Wolstenholme, Southport's general manager of publicity and amusements, has been to London and interviewed Mr. Sabelli, the secretary of the L.T.A.

The nominal objection raised was that the professional lawn tennis championships of Great Britain are held at Eastbourne in August.

Mr. Sabelli pointed out that Southport's championships are an international affair. Mr. Sabelli referred the matter to his committee. The result was the same.

No English pro. may enter for the International tournament under threat of disqualification.

ENGLISH CREWS FOR BERLIN

Leander's crew, runners-up to Zurich in the Grand Challenge Cup final at Henley, have been chosen to represent Great Britain in the eights at the Berlin Olympics.

W. G. R. M. Laurie, who stroked the crew at Henley, is conferring with his advisers regarding the possibility of changes in the eight, and has received permission to invite men from other clubs to take part in trials. It is understood that J. H. T. Wilson, last season's Cambridge president, who rowed in the Boat Race at No. 7 behind Laurie, was not in the Leander boat at Henley, will be unable to spare the time.

Britain's representatives in the coxswainless fours will be the Leander Rowing Club crew, stroked by Edgar Howitt, which gave Zurich a hard race in the Stewards' Cup. A hard race is to be held between R. F. and J. S. (Oxford) Kingston R.C. and T. S. C. and D. W. Burnford (Jesus College, Cambridge) to decide who shall row in the coxswainless pairs.

T. H. Tyler (Thames R.C.), runner-up to Ratti (Switzerland) in the Diamond Sculls, is to join W. E. C. Horwood, the N.A.R.A. nominee, and H. L. Warren (Crinly Hall, Cambridge) in a 2,000 metres trial at Henley. The winner will probably be chosen to row in the Olympic single sculls.

Britain's double scullers will probably be Jack Hersford and Dick Southwood (Thames R.C.). It has been decided not to send representatives for the coxed fours and pairs.

Mr. C. M. Morrell (Thames R.C.) will manage the British team in Berlin, and he will be accompanied by Mrs. General Gibbon.

BILLIONS-TO-ONE CRICKET CHANCE

THREE MEN END INNINGS AT 163

London, July 7.
Three county cricketers made not out centuries on Saturday. Yesterday they went on batting and—

Each of them ended his innings with precisely the same total.

Here are the scores at close of play Saturday:—

Hutton (Yorks v Surrey)	154
Leyland (Yorks v Surrey)	101
Worthington (Derby v Warwick)	114
And yesterday:—
Hutton b Watts	163
Leyland not out	163
Worthington c Collin b Hollies	163

The odds against such a thing happening are literally infinite. It is just "one of the things that happen" at cricket.

BOXERS WANT £100,000 GUARANTEES

Schmeling v. Braddock Difficulties

(By Trevor Wignall)
Daily Express.

New York.

Joe Louis, young negro heavy-weight whose pugilistic star fell from the sky when he was so sensationally knocked out by the German, Max Schmeling, has disgusted certain people in this country by refusing to claim that, before the contest, he was doped, injured, poisoned or otherwise rendered unfit to fight.

Silly stories have been going the rounds ever since Louis, so unexpectedly betrayed the clinks in his belt. This country is seemingly full of men who made fortunes on the result, but prior to the contest there was not a single person I met who gave Schmeling an outside chance of winning.

To the intense surprise of the American newspapers Louis declines to talk to anybody or to attempt to explain his crushing defeat. His managers have declared that the only poison administered to him was that contained in Schmeling's right glove.

For some days after the contest Louis talked about retiring with the fortune he has collected. That phase has passed. Now he wants to meet Schmeling again. He will not do that until next summer at the earliest.

Conferences are being held every day in New York in an attempt to match Schmeling with Jimmy Braddock for the championship. Braddock is under contract to Madison Square Garden, and Schmeling to the Twentieth Century Sporting Club.

RIVALS MAY JOIN FORCES

Offers have been made by both to buy out the other, but the probability is that when the arguments are over the two parties will join forces to stage the fight in September.

Difficulties at the moment appear insuperable, the chief being Braddock's demand for a guarantee of £150,000. Another snag is that Schmeling definitely refuses to fight at Long Island Bowl, owned by Madison Square Garden, as he considers the place unlucky.

It was there he lost his title when so badly punished by Max Baer. He too, talks of a guarantee of £100,000 which is absurd.

Jewish antagonism to Schmeling is more bitter than ever, especially since his luncheons and meetings with Hitler were made known. It was chiefly Jews that caused the receipts of Schmeling's contest with Louis to be disappointing, but the boycott will be greater still if he is matched with Braddock.

Only laughter was evoked when it was reported that offers for the championship fight had been sent from Germany, and one thing certain is that Braddock would not consent to go there. He might agree to fight in England, but he wisely asks where his purse is to come from.

There have been two other upsets since Schmeling astonished everybody at Philadelphia. He watched Leroy Haynes, the heavily-touted negro, soundly outpointed by the American-Italian Al Ettore.

REPUTATION ON BEATING CARNERA

Haynes gained his reputation by scoring two knock-outs over paraded Primo Carnera, but the most interesting part of him was that he is a fair second-rater.

At Boston a San Francisco heavy-weight, Phil Brubaker, who had been spoken of as the best white youngster in the world, was easily beaten by veteran Jack Sharkey, who in the past has always went better than he has fought. Sharkey is engaged in a come-back, and his defeat of Brubaker pegs the newcomer so far back that now he can scarcely be seen.

Efforts I have made to get promoters interested in Jack Petersen have met with no success. Nobody seems to want him, even for a preliminary bout, and the only answer I receive is that he must prove himself before travelling to this side.

The only thing remembered of him is that he was twice stopped by

H. A. ALVES PLAYS GUTIERREZ TO-DAY

CHAMPIONSHIP BOWLS GAME

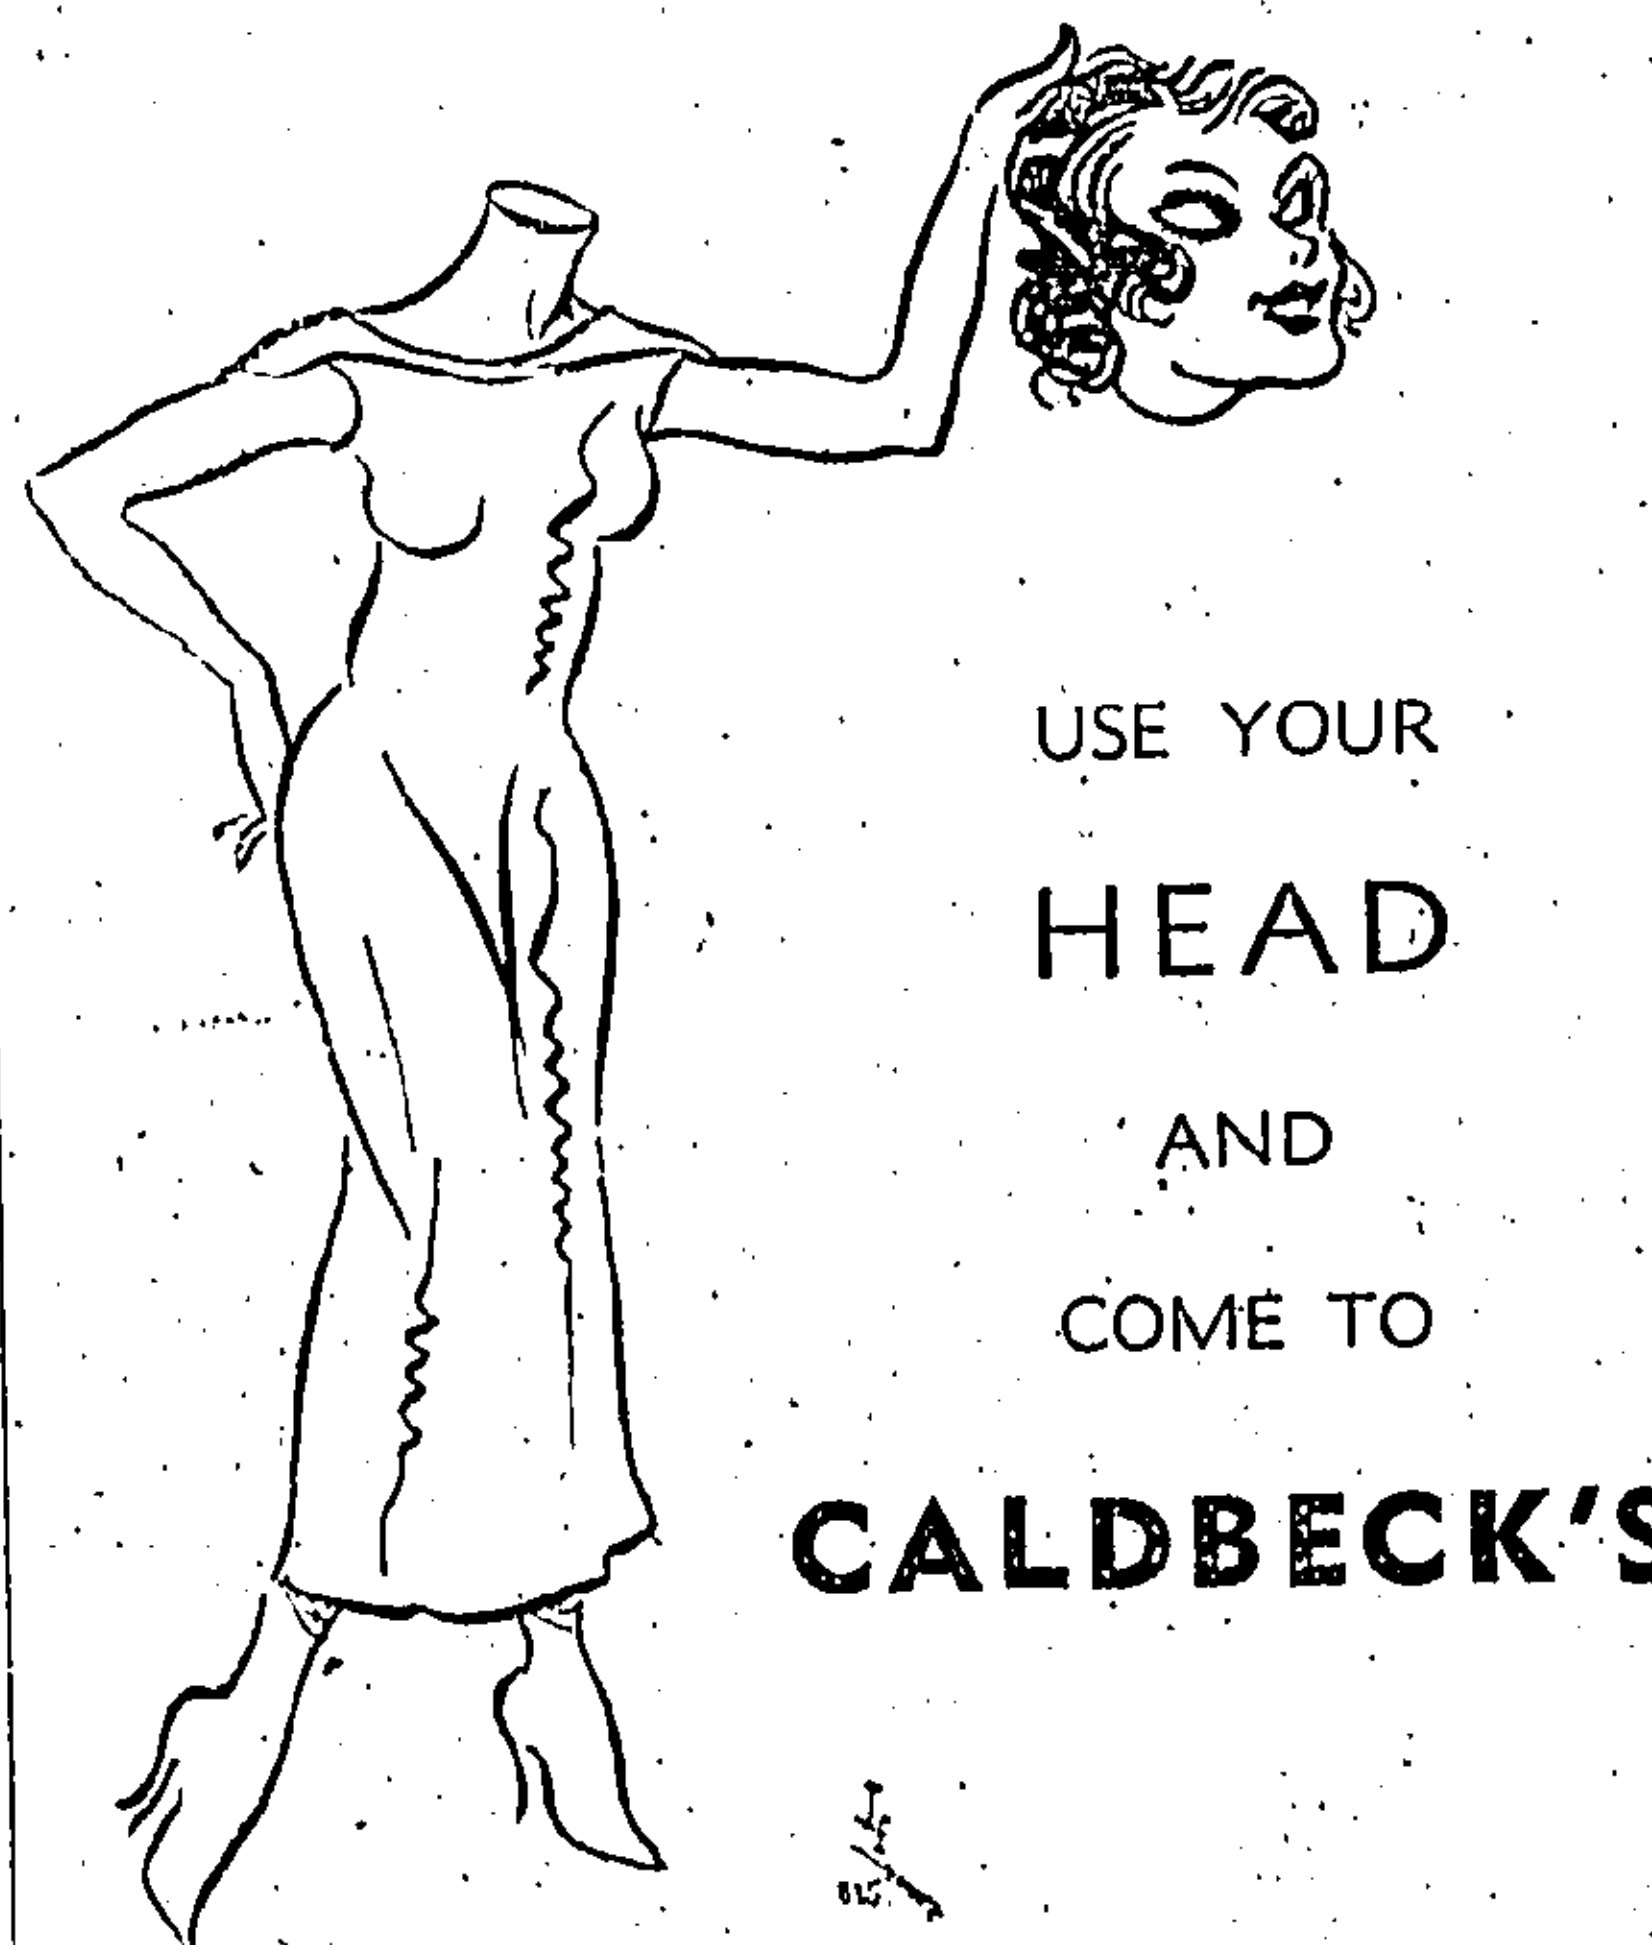

H. A. ("Dick") Alves, one of the most promising of the younger school of Hongkong lawn bowlers, will this afternoon make his big effort to reach the final of the open singles championship when he meets L. A. Gutierrez on the Kowloon Dock green.

Both players are members of the Club de Recreio and the winner plays A. E. Condes of Craigengower in the final.

Gutierrez is up against stiff opposition, and will need to be at his very best to prevail. Gutierrez is not only a seasoned bowler, but has previously won the title. Furthermore Gutierrez has been playing consistently well in the tournament.

If both players touch true form and do not allow the occasion to get the better of them, there should be seen one of the best matches of the championship with only a shot or two in it at the end.

Alves is not a quick starter, but he cannot afford to allow Gutierrez to take too long a lead. On the other hand, unless Gutierrez can establish a big advantage in the early stages, he is most likely to be beaten.

RECORD SCORE BY CAMBRIDGE ON FIRST DAY OF UNIVERSITY MATCH

(By R. C. Robertson-Glasgow)

For the benefit of those who do not eternally walk round the purchase of Lord's, in short, for those who count cricket above conversation, Cambridge University made 432 for nine wickets on the first day of their match against Oxford University. This is the highest score ever made by Cambridge in the University match, but it has been exceeded twice by Oxford.

The pitch was easy. Once more Oxford had the infidelity to lose the toss, and the happiness to see one really beautiful innings, by N. W. D. Yardley.

That Yardley missed his century was just the whimsicality of fate. He produced, time and again, those strokes that make cover-point wonder whether those few steps were quite worth while. His deflections, too, his occasional cross-bat strokes, his mid-on were admirably timed.

It was beautiful batting, in spite of the now inevitable question from the more social seats: "Who is that man in the Light-Blue Cap?"

Nelson, too, who just missed his century, played an important and valuable part. Stubborn, quiet, determined, he had been asked to wear down the Oxford bowling. He did it. He was lucky before lunch, especially to Singleton. He does not swing the bat through Nature's full force. Against, he is a jabber, almost he became a Mowat, clenching the incomparable and almost fighting brilliance of a Woolley.

But Nelson, after White had played an imperfect and fallible part, laid a sound foundation upon which Cambridge built to advantage.

SINGLETON'S BOWLING

The best bowler on the Oxford side was Singleton. From the Pavilion end, possibly disturbed, even helped, by the uneasy movements of those who seek to injure the truth, he bowled most magnificently, and most unluckily. Even the Cambridge batsmen do not understand the ball that is bowled with an off-break action and doesn't break.

Now, as to the play. Darwall-Smith (Pavilion end) and Mitchell-Innes began the bowling. It is impossible to think of Mitchell-Innes in the morning the Cambridge batting was indifferent. Both Nelson and White missed the ball and remained. White, particularly, stayed in his crease to the outwinger and missed it.

At 24 Singleton relieved Darwall-Smith, and at noon 28 runs had been made, mostly by chance. At 26 Dyson came on at the Nursery end, and somehow forced the tentative White on to his wicket—27—1—19.

Tindall was nearly bowled first ball by Dyson. Then Nelson sneaked Singleton between the wicket-keeper and first slip. Forty-two appeared on the telegraph at the end of the first hour. Cambridge struggled.

At 51 Murray-Wood came on for Dyson, and 31 runs later he caught and bowled Tindall, who had been at ease, off a full toss. It was a grand catch. Nelson reached his 50 with a single to leg. He had been batting for 100 minutes. Yardley twice hit Murray-Wood for four, once to leg and a drive past extra-cover.

Just before the interval Seamer had an over from the Nursery end. With three full pitches and a long hop he ushered in the lunch interval, when Cambridge had scored 112 for 2. Nelson 62.

At lunch, when others were adjusting their ideas, it occurred to me that: (1) Nelson was still there. Like Rhodes, only right-handed. Oxford had fielded well and Singleton had bowled well.

Then Yardley reached his 50, after a couple of two appeals from Dyson for lbw. Then twice he hit Murray-Wood to the boundary, a hook for four, and an extra-cover drive. Yardley was out, playing Darwall-Smith into the hands of extra short-leg. At tea the total was 273 for 8.

After tea Gibb and Pawle batted. At 221 Gibb was caught at the wicket and Jahangir Khan twice nearly killed the batsman at the other end. In the end he made a false stroke, and Brocklebank, as the sun declined, was left with Cameron, each wondering whether the other would make a stroke worthy of record.

Canton Swimmers Victors

BEAT S.C.A.A. IN INTER-CLUB CONTEST

Several of Canton's leading swimmers took part in a gala at South China Athletic Association bathing club yesterday when the Chui Chui Club met S. C. A. A. representatives in a keen contest.

The visitors won the meeting by a single point, but only after a fascinating contest which was greatly enjoyed by a large gathering.

All depended on the 400 metres race. To win the whole match South China had to win both first and second places. Norman Lee was sure of the first place, but Tsui Fai-lam at the turn of the third hundred partially gave up. He thus allowed the Canton man to gain a lead of about ten yards. Tsui was persuaded to carry on and in doing so came third, being beaten by less than ten yards. Had he not stopped and then continued, he would have gained second place.

RESULTS

200 Metres Relay:—1. South China (Wong Chi-hing, Kwok Hon-ming, Yip Hon-chuen and Norman Lee). Time: 2 mins. 0.4/5 secs.; 2. Chui Chui Club, Canton (Leung Ho, Ng Kit-man, Koen Ping-man and Ng Chun-man).

100 Metres Backstroke:—1. Ng Lin (Canton); 2. Tin Mo (Canton); 3. Kwok Hon-ming (South China). Time: 28.1/5 secs.

200 Metres Breaststroke:—1. Suen Pao-shun (South China); 2. Chui Sin-chung (Canton); 3. Lo Kwok-yung (Canton). Time: 3 mins. 21 secs.

100 Metres Freestyle:—1. Norman Lee (South China); 2. Ng Chun-man (Canton); 3. Wong Chi-hung (South China). Time: 68.3/5 secs.

50 Metres Freestyle:—1. Leung Ho (Canton); 2. Ng Chun-man (Canton); 3. Wong Chi-hung (South China). Time: 32.3/5 secs.

400 Metres Freestyle:—1. Norman Lee (South China); 2. Ng Kit-man (Canton); 3. Tsui Fai-lam (South China). Time: 6 mins. 12 secs.

FINAL STANDINGS

Canton 17 points; South China 16 points.

SPEEDWAY STAR DISQUALIFIED

PROTESTS AFTER A CRASH

London, July 7. Bill Kitchen, famous England and Belle Vue, Manchester, speedway rider, protested to officials at Wimbledon last night against disqualification in the second heat of the handicap race.

He rushed off the track, borrowing £1 from his mechanic (deposit for lodging a protest), went to the office still in his oily leathers and crash hat.

It is the first time he has been disqualified in nearly three years' riding.

Kitchen was the victim of an accident when another rider caught his wheel. He fell off, was pinned to the track by his machine, dragged clear in the nick of time.

The other rider was disqualified. Then came the re-race of the heat. This time Rogers came off, with Kitchen close behind.

It was thought Bill had been disqualified for boring Rogers. But it was announced he had been pulled up for not stopping in time when the red light warned him.

Heat ten of the programme was a sensation. Three of the four riders crashed, leaving Harrison, of Belle Vue, to finish the race alone.

Trouble started when Charles crashed in a broadside. Palmer slung himself clear to avoid a collision and the rider behind did likewise to avert what might have been a triple tragedy.

Grid Hero Turns to Swat Game

George Theodorakis won All-Coast honors and All America mention while playing football at Washington State College, heaved the shot 53 feet 6 inches in track, and went places in collegiate boxing. Now he's decided to be a fighter, and he's shown with his manager, Paddy Ryan, who has developed a lot of stars. That powerful left arm floored Ray Impeller, heavyweight contender, in a gym workout recently.

ZERO HOUR IN FIGHTS HERE

Professional boxing is practically at a dead stop since the defeat of Louis, and interest will not be resumed until Braddock defends his title. He has been out of action for more than twelve months, and although he trains almost every day and looks fit I fear the long lay-off will handicap him when next he takes the ring.

Schmeling will be back here in August, and the indications are that he will face Braddock at Yankee Stadium in the second week in September. It is believed that if the couple share between them sixty thousand pounds they will be lucky.

Professor Hau Ti-shan will present the prizes at the graduation function of the Chun-Shing Institute of Commerce, to be held at the Hongkong Hotel roof garden to-morrow at 5 p.m. Dr. S. P. Lam will preside.

FOUR YEARS WITH ULCERATED STOMACH

Now feels "different altogether"

If you endure the terrible agony of ulcerated stomach—or if you have suffered from the pain of other gastric ills, flatulence, wind, indigestion—you will understand the joy with which Mr. W. H. H. wrote this amazing letter:

"For nearly four years I have suffered from ulcerated stomach. I am a waiter, so you can understand how I have suffered—on the go for 12 to 14 hours each day. Sometimes I could have screamed with pain whilst waiting on the guests. Each year I have had to leave my work as I could not carry on. Not long ago I got a bottle of your Powder and since taking it I feel different altogether."

This is typical of the letters continually being received by Maclean's. Sufferers who had given up all hope, whom even operations had failed to cure, left of the marvelous results they have experienced even from the very first dose of Maclean's Brand Stomach Powder.

Follow their example, and be absolutely certain to ask for Maclean's Brand Stomach Powder, the one with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. There are inferior substitutes at lower prices, but they are not worth the risk to your health. Get the genuine Maclean's Brand. It is never sold loose. Also in tablet form. BOOK REVIEWS

Edited by Roger Pippett

Brass Hat declines to Bath Chair

THERE are not many novelists who, in the American editor's phrase, could write "a whole of a year about a pump-handle." But C. S. Forester is surely among them. He gave us one of the finest thrillers of our time in Payment Deferred, and he followed it up with a dozen other rattling good tales.

Now comes his most ambitious novel yet, The General (Michael Joseph, 7s. 6d.), which records the life, decline and fall of a Brass Hat during the World War. At the top of his form, the author has given us a fast, exciting, extremely readable book. Its sensations are always authentic and its irony never degenerates into caricature.

Lieutenant-General Sir Herbert Curzon, K.C.M.G., C.B., D.S.O., who will probably die in bed, may be seen riding in his chair on the Bournemouth coast, with Lady Emily, tall, raw-boned, sweet-skinned, riding behind. He has a large, rough-skinned face; he is the son-in-law of a Duke, now and then he purses up his lips in the queerest old-fashioned smile.

And what a story lies behind him, from that blustering but lucky South African day when he led his squadron against the Boers to the day when he was captured by the Germans.

AN obstinate, courageous, hard-driving bonehead, he came to command a hundred thousand men, flinging them needlessly to death because "a sense of movement" was the only way to the prize. He delighted in deceiving the public as to the real state of his troops. His one terror was the fear of being "mucked" by the "guy" at HQ.

Watch him sitting at a round-table conference at Headquarters, after a champagne "push."

In some ways it was like the debate of a group of savages as to how to extract a screw from a piece of wood. Accustomed only to nails, they had made one effort to pull out the screw by main force and, now that had failed, they were devising more efficient methods of applying more force still.

"They could hardly be blamed for not guessing that, if they rotated the screw, it would come out after the exertion of far less effort. That was a notion so different from anything they had ever encountered that they would laugh at the man who suggested it."

In such passages, Mr. Forester's irony is overwhelming. All the more so since it comes too late to save the millions who died under such leadership in a thousand battlefields. But it is the quiet, relentless exposure which, to me, sets The General apart, giving it an urgent and terrible quality of warning.

GEORGETTE Heyer is an engagingly deceptive author. When I started to read her new mystery story, Behold, Here's Tomorrow (Fisher and Son, 6s.), I thought, "I've met most of these people before." But I was wrong.

For, in the twinkling of a detective's eye, the author sets her characters alive and kicking. Scotland Yard may retire baffled, but you will read on to the end, a skillful, entertaining, rewarding tale.

IN The Grand Old Man (Methuen, 10s. 6d.), George Edinger and E. J. C. Neep have not been content to paint a full-length portrait of the Liberal leader. With vivid, impressionistic strokes they have evoked the century which Gladstone almost spanned. Distressed at the exotic success which has pursued Disraeli beyond the grave and installed him as the darling of biographers, playwrights and Hollywood big shots, the authors have set out to interpret the "profounder genius" of the Grand Old Man. They have made an attractive and, above all, lively study of him and his times.

I have learned far more from them than I did in the classroom—and Gladstone was not exactly neglected there. Their analysis of his early days at Oxford and his career as a Tory M.P. is acute. And they have worked their way home fully through that gleaming jungle of Imperialism which almost swallowed the G.O.M. "Socialism will not be in my day, but it is alarming," Gladstone once remarked. A characteristic confession that the authors might have explored with advantage to a post-war audience. Despite which, they have written a stimulating book.

THAT odd mixture of irritability and self-complacency which has symbolised Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's political pilgrimage in recent years is not absent from his second volume of travel essays, At Home and Abroad (Cape, 7s. 6d.).

When the mood is on him he can even write that "no one is better equipped for doing homage to the past than one who as a craftsman creates in moulding human affairs so that the generations and he may be able to survey his work and feel that it is good and is evolving according to a desirable plan."

"That is the Lord President of the Council at his worst. He is more tolerant when he is visiting Niagara, sitting towards the Arctic from Vancouver, standing in the sunlight at Annapolis or sitting the dust of dead empires in North Africa."

But then the mood descends on him again. When debates are held on the Benches at Westminster, I can close my eyes and ears and return to the Open Road, the Green Road, the Golden Road, the Road that leads up the hill from the inn door over the hills to the stars.

Shall we leave him at that?

Percy Proton and Elsie Electron

ANY day now we can expect "Einstein for the Teeny Weenies," and then our children will be having relativity nightmares.

The popularising of science is carried one stage nearer the nursery by Proton and Elsie, by Paul Karlson (Allen and Unwin, 12s. 6d.), and I am sure there must be a Professor Hans Andersen lurking somewhere who will write:

"Once upon a time, Percy, the Proton, and Elsie, the Electron, lived happily with their brothers and sisters in the little village of Nucleus in the country of Lithium. But a great evil, Lord Rutherford, was jealous of the unity of this happy family. With a thunderbolt he separated Percy and Elsie from the rest, and changed them into an Alpha Particle and Lithium into Aluminium."

Why not? None of us need be ashamed of admitting that we are more children in the study of physics and the universe.

And there will be many university professors who will be grateful to Dr. Karlson for giving them such graphic and light-hearted word-pictures to explain the mysteries of space and time, Relativity, the Quantum Theory, the nature of electricity and light, the structure of matter and the modern theories of the atom. The physicist who can explain the elements by an argument over whilst "The George and Dragon," and the structure of the atom by presenting Lord Rutherford with two parcels of protons and electrons, deserves well of his fellows. He is helped out by skilful sketches by W. Peterson.

PROFESSOR W. L. BRAGG, F.R.S., the Nobel Prize winner, however, shows in Electricity (Bell, 8s. 6d.), that without Dr. Karlson's elaborate artifices, science can be made simple and lucid.

He has fabricated the genius of his father, Sir William Bragg, President of the Royal Society, for making the most complicated theories seem as easy as ABC.

His book is based on his Christmas lectures at the Royal Institution, where schoolboys fought with grey-bearded, high-domed professors for seats. And I was content to sit on the knees of a twelve-year-old in order to get a close-up of the demonstrations which electricity, a delightful much-hall turn, and the ponderous complexities of the grid, wireless, telephone and so on, seem like a kindergarten game.

This is an admirable volume which will be equally appreciated by your grandfather or your grandniece, not forgetting yourself.

BY ROCKET SHIP ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

TO most people the idea of inter-planetary travel in a rocket ship is a fascinating conception of improbable fiction.

Yet there are a number of experimenters in the world to-day who believe so strongly that the rocket ship will one day traverse space that they are devoting their lives to making such travel possible.

Already there are no less than ten societies in America, in Great Britain and on the Continent, which concern themselves with rocket research. The comparatively young British Society has members in Germany, France, Austria, the U.S.S.R., the Irish Free State, Canada, India, New Zealand and South Africa. One German society reached the record of nearly 1,000 members. In Moscow men are busy preparing rocket-driven airplanes for stratosphere travel. In America there is great activity in rocket research.

ROCKET THAT WILL NOT RETURN

In "Rockets Through Space" (Allen and Unwin, 7s. 6s.), Mr. P. E. Cleator, President of the British Interplanetary Society, has traced the growth of rocket experiments up to the position to-day, and has outlined the possibilities for the future.

The point he emphasises is that rockets are only adaptable to journeys through interplanetary space. To attempt to harness them to road cars, or even to airplanes designed for low-level flying, he considers, experimenting in the wrong direction.

"As yet, the highest altitude attained by a rocket (and it burned powder fuel) is about three miles," he writes. "That this record, admittedly insignificant, will soon be broken there cannot be the slightest doubt. To-morrow, with the aid of the more powerful liquid fuels, attempts are being made to shoot a rocket to heights of 25 miles and over. To-morrow, 50 miles will be the height aimed at, and then a hundred. It may be safely assumed that miniature rocket ships, loaded with recording instruments, will soon be reaching heights unattainable by other means. And ultimately there will soar spaceways a rocket that will not return. And on that day the earth will acquire a new satellite—a tiny, man-made moon which, shot into an orbit, will ceaselessly encircle the earth until the end of the world."

"Few will care to maintain, I think, that any of these anticipated results can be labelled fantastic or even improbable. The idealism provided by rocket research to date are too concrete. Already mail rockets shoot from point to point with their cargo of letters, and airplanes have taken to the air with rockets for their motive power. So, gradually, the stage is being prepared for the next act—an act that will be set on the fringe of space itself."

PASSENGER SHIP

"The transatlantic passenger-carrying rocket-ship is already fully planned," the vessel will take off from a metal runway shooting skywards at an angle of some 60 deg. When over mid-Atlantic it will have ascended to a height of 600 miles, and its speed will be in the neighbourhood of 10,000 miles an hour. Thereafter, like some huge projectile, it will curve earthwards. At this point retractable wings will be extended from its hull. By this means the fall of the now lightened vessel (its heavy load of fuel having been consumed) will assume the nature of a protracted glide, enabling a safe landing to be made, preferably on the surface of the ocean. It has been estimated that a journey to New York from London, Berlin or Paris, could be accomplished by rocket-ship in less than an hour.

From that point Mr. Cleator launches into even more astonishing prophecies, including a permanent station, "a huge, air-tight metallic globe, containing living quarters for the crew, and tanks for the storage of rocket fuel," located 600 miles above the earth's surface, and rotating in a perpetual orbit at a speed of 4½ miles a second. A stepping-stone to space, a new satellite for the earth, constructed in space itself, by men in "space-suits," so as to avoid the necessity of towing such a huge bulk from the earth's surface.

CHICAGO LOSES TO NEW YORK

ST. LOUIS SPLITS
DOUBLE-HEADER.
YANKEES IN FINE FORM

New York, July 29.

St. Louis Cardinals won and lost today and Chicago, leading the National League a jump ahead of the Cards, went down before the onslaught of the New York Giants.
St. Louis lost the first game of a double-header with Brooklyn by one of the most decisive margins on the season's records. The Dodgers hit twenty-one times and scored twenty-two runs, while the Cardinals hit seven and scored the same number.

In the second game the tables were turned, St. Louis scoring five runs when Medwick homered twice and holding the Dodgers to four on seven hits. In the first game St. Louis had three errors, but in the nightcap they were airtight.

The Cubs failed against New York.
Their eight hits yielded only two runs, including a homer by Allen, and the Giants ran twelve hits into seven runs, assisted by Whitehead's circuit blow.
Cubs had two of the three errors.

Pittsburgh was also engaged in a double-header, with Boston supplying the opposition. They split the honours. Boston won the first four to one, with ten hits to nine, and both had a pair of blunders. Pittsburgh hit sixteen in the closing influx and scored ten runs to four.
The Braves' tally coming out of nine hits. Boston had two of the three errors.

The Cincinnati-Philadelphia game was postponed on account of rain.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York Yankees blasted last year's champion Tigers out of their road to the pennant when they scored thirteen runs on fifteen hits and hitting his usual home run, and the Tigers were held to nine hits and a trio of errors. Each had two errors.

St. Louis Browns upset the calculations of Boston's Red Sox, hitting fourteen times and scoring nine runs, assisted by the Bottoms' hit which drove out a homer, when the Sox entertained. Boston hit nine for three runs.

Cleveland, visiting Washington, won both ends of a double-header, the first eleven to six, the second six to five. The Reds hit ten times in the opener, but Truesky and Campbell gave them homers and brought a walker home. Kuehl homered for the Senators. Averill hit a circuit in the nightcap for the Reds, whose hit total was eleven, and Washington hit ten.
Chicago White Sox defeated Philadelphia by a score of seven to five, hitting eleven to ten, and each had two errors.—Reuter.

CANADIANS

London, July 29.

Six thousand Canadian pilgrims were entertained at a garden party at which the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester acted as host and hostess on behalf of the King.

Halfway through the proceedings,
His Majesty himself appeared among his guests, who gave him an overwhelming reception, and he was surrounded by singing, cheering crowds until both hosts and guests were forced to seek shelter from a heavy downpour of rain.

Afterwards, His Majesty spoke a few words to the pilgrims from the balcony of the Palace.—*British Wire-

12-Year-Old Boy Baffles Medicoes

Los Angeles, July 21.

Twelve year old Pat Marquis, whose uncanny ability to see through blindfolds has baffled hard-shelled medicoes in these parts, has announced plans to leave for London this summer and subject himself to a "psychic test" by Sir Oliver Lodge.

The chunky boy, whose dark, soulful eyes possess "psychic sight" according to Dr. Cecil Reynolds, British surgeon who has interested himself in young Marquis, has made a series of tests before groups of medical men.

No satisfactory explanation of his uncanny "blindfold vision" has been found, according to those who covered with taped goggles. In one demonstration, while supposedly in a "trance" that he is "Napier," a Persian mystic of the eleventh century.

His first attracted attention by his ability to read passages from books, opened at random, with his eyes covered with taped goggles. In one demonstration at a Hollywood hospital, three eye specialists strapped the goggles over his eyes and testified no light could come through.

Pat—or "Napier"—glibly spelled out passages in the book, counted fingers and picked out words on sheets of paper.

His latest feat—which baffled even the most sceptical—was a duel with Fred Cayens, crack film fencer who directs most of the swordplay scenes in pictures and is internationally known as a duellist. Young Pat an-experienced in fencing, parried and thrust with skill, his eyes again plastered with adhesive tape.

"His gifts are so unusual that a man who is accepted as an authority on such matters should have an opportunity to witness the boy's demonstrations," Dr. Reynolds said.
He have commented with Sir Oliver Lodge, world-known student of psychic phenomena, and will take the boy to London, probably this summer.

SOVIET BOOSTS WORLD OUTPUT OF HELIUM GAS

New Production Method
Developed; State Funds
Aid Experiments

Moscow, July 25.

Prof. P. L. Kapitza, Soviet citizen who developed a new method of producing helium during 14 years at Cambridge University, England, is preparing to extend his experiments in a laboratory of the Soviet Academy of Science, with almost unlimited backing from the government.

Visiting Russia a year ago,
Kapitza remained in the Soviet Union under promise that his work would receive full support, and his Cambridge laboratory be moved to Russia. Some of his most valuable assistants were employed to assist him here, a home was built for him and he was honoured as a Soviet scientist.

He is head of the Institute of Physical Problems, construction of which has been completed by the Academy, and in the buildings of which his Cambridge equipment has been installed.

SPARK LIKE CANNON SHOT

Electrical equipment of the laboratory includes a special electrical generator producing 20,000 amperes, and a spark as loud as a cannon shot.
Exceptionally massive foundations and ceilings have been installed in the laboratory. The X-ray department's walls were covered with barium putty 30 inches thick, and the doors with a thick layer of lead.

Whether the scientist was persuaded to remain in Russia through extensive offers of co-operation and financial reward, or whether his services were commanded by the simple process of refusing him an exit visa, his friends have been unable to ascertain.

However, his work here has aroused intense interest in the Soviet daily and periodical press, which comments on the immediately practical as well as the fantastic possibilities of his experiments.

With the discovery of an important supply of natural gas, suitable for production of helium, in the Caucasus and Middle Volga regions, the Soviet Union expects to wrest from the United States the position of leading producer of helium in liquid form.

Kapitza's method, involving temperatures of 273 degrees below zero centigrade, is designed to yield itself to industrial production at moderate cost.

The extreme cold produced also will be used to liquify air, in the cracking of oil, production of artificial rubber and artificial silk.

Soviet writers have expressed several fantastic plans for the use of such intense cold. One proposes to create artificial ice islands in the Atlantic Ocean to facilitate air travel to America.

FREE POWER ENVISIONED

This would be done by passing cold liquid through tubes dropped from the sky into the sea. Then, when an icefield was created, a special freezing apparatus would be placed upon it to work on "free power" obtained through the difference of temperatures between the surface and the depth of the sea.

Thus, according to the plan, ice would be accumulated until a suf-

THE POPE "FEELS" DEATH COMING"

Rome, July 21.

THE Pope, who is taking his annual holiday a month earlier this year on account of his health, arrived at the Papal villa at Castel-gandolfo this evening and was given a great reception by the villagers, whom he blessed.

He will have a complete rest.
Audiences will be cut down to a minimum.

Recently the Pope's asthma has been troubling him. To prelates visiting him he has said he feels that death is approaching.

"I will die in my beloved Castel-gandolfo," he says time and again.

CARRIED IN CHAIR

In addition to asthma the Pope is suffering from arterio sclerosis and general weakness. Although the Pope's doctors admit he is in a weak state of health, it is stated that his heart is good.

He hardly walks now, but is transported from one room to another in a chair used by Leo XIII.

Londoners May One Day Live in the Sky

THE London of the future may be a city of people living in the sky.
This was the suggestion of Mr. G.
A. Jellicoe in a talk on the architecture of to-morrow at the conference of the Royal Institute of British Architects at Southampton.

So far, he said, it had been accepted that all buildings belonged to the soil on which they were built, either resting upon it strongly, as in classic architecture, or growing from it like flowers as in Gothic architecture.

The landscape of the future might be formed of buildings descended, as it were, from the skies.

Men might be housed in buildings containing 10,000 or 20,000 persons.

Mr. Percy E. Thomas in his presidential address spoke of the "terrible areas" that were found in London.

"If anyone thinks I exaggerate," he said, "I invite him to approach London from Kent and drive slowly through South London to Waterloo.
Then let him enter from the Essex side and drive to Liverpool-street.
He will have traversed areas terrible in their senseless ugliness, their hopeless confusion and congestion, their meanness and squalor. He will have passed miles and miles of houses that have been slums ever since they were first built.

"They are not decent housing that have become slum property. They have been hopeless from the start."

Heligoland Fortification Discussed

AWKWARD PROBLEM FOR DIPLOMACY

London, July 29.

Replying to a House of Commons question on the re-fortification of Heligoland, Mr. Anthony Eden said:
"The action of the German Government in this matter is unilateral, and if the matter were to be dealt with separately, His Majesty's Government would require to formulate most extensive reserves with regard to that action. The House will, however, be aware from what I said in the course of last Monday's debate, that negotiations have been set on foot which it is hoped may lead to a fresh effort at a European settlement in which Germany would play her full part."

"I hope, therefore, that my honourable friend will agree with His Majesty's Government in feeling that individual matters of this kind, though they cannot pass unobserved, should not be raised at the moment and in a manner which might react unfavourably on the negotiations to which I have referred and thus prejudice the general settlement which we all hope may be reached."

AMBASSADOR RESIGNS

The Spanish Ambassador at Berlin

Scient area was available for the construction of buildings, hangars, after a layer of earth had been laid

Another writer envisages the construction of huge ice dams across rivers.

Whether Kapitza's methods are capable of such results, he will have great possibilities for experiment in his institute on the Lena Hills near Moscow, where 1,200 acres of land have been devoted to projected buildings of the Soviet Academy of Science.—United Press.

REBEL ARMY SUCCESSSES Victorious Advance From South COMMUNIST LEADERS EXECUTED

Lisbon, July 30.
The Spanish rebels are reported to have made considerable headway from the south, having captured the towns of Huelva and Avamonte, near the Portuguese border.
Twelve Communist leaders were shot as soon as the rebels occupied the towns.
It is stated that the populations of both Huelva and Avamonte welcomed the entry of the rebel forces with enthusiasm. Red flags were torn down, factory whistles sounded and church bells pealed.
Portuguese trade with Valencia has been suspended.—Reuter.

AT DEATH GRIPS
With Northern Rebel Army, July 29.
Forty thousand rebels and even more loyalists are locked in a death battle in the vicinity of Buitrago, from which Madrid would be easily accessible.
Tons of bombs and grenades, killing hundreds on both sides, are being rained from the Guadarrama heights.

Following my arrival at the rebel headquarters, I was arrested and gaoled on suspicion of espionage, but I was released in four hours after proving I was not from Madrid. Thereafter I saw an intensive aerial action. Five loyalist planes bombed a bridge and killed one wounded thirty.
Rebel aircraft downed two of the loyalist machines, however, and the loyalists shot down one of the rebel machines, the occupants of which escaped death despite a rain of bombs from their adversaries. Camouflaged rebel artillery attacked the hostile planes throughout the engagement.
A General Staff spokesman said the rebel forces are better supplied and equipped.
"As soon as General Franco and General Mola move simultaneously the war will be over," he said.
He admitted the loyalists had greater mobility, due to the superior motorisation of this force, but he pointed out, also, that the loyalist fleet was handicapped by the shortage of fuel. The Saragossa rebels possessed the army's sole tank unit, he added. "Despite everything, we are sure of victory," he declared.—United Press Special Correspondent.

Successes Claimed
London, July 29.
The Spanish Government claims that all Mediterranean and Atlantic ports are now in Government hands, with the exception of Cadix, and declares the surrender of Gran Canaria imminent. The Government reports the capture of Villavieja and several other small towns.
Loyal troops are preparing to march on Saragossa and Cordoba.
An official decree authorises the War Minister to declare those parts of Spain affected by military operation "war zones".
Government forces' celebration of a victory at San Sebastian yesterday were apparently premature, as fighting broke out there again today. However, truces have started running between San Sebastian and Bilbao and the road is clear between San Sebastian and Irun.—Reuter Special.

Tide Of War

A sort of bird's eye view of affairs in Spain can be obtained from Gibraltar. The rebel broadcasts announce their commander, General Franco, has arrived by aeroplane at Seville and has assumed personal direction of the rebellion.
It is announced that loyalists at Huelva have surrendered.
Meanwhile, it is apparent that a strong Government offensive is imminent near Malaga. The loyalists are enlarging their aerodrome there, preparing for operations against the southern rebels.
It is simultaneously announced that Carabincers at Foratella defeated

Paris, July 29.
The rebels in Morocco are apparently planning a great aerial invasion of Spain.
According to a special correspondent of L'Intransigeant, a Paris newspaper, calling from Tetuan, a three-engine Junker plane has arrived at that city and nineteen more of the same type, as well as twenty big bombers and transport planes, are expected to arrive next week.—Reuter.

Planes Bomb Subs
Gibraltar, July 29.
The Spanish submarine, C-3, one of the group guarding the straits of Gibraltar and preventing rebel forces from crossing from Morocco was bombed and sunk by a seaplane six miles south of Europa Point lighthouse, according to the lightkeepers who watched the encounter. They are convinced from the way the submarine disappeared when she was bombed that she was lost.—Reuter.

Bathers Watch
Gibraltar, July 29.
Hundreds of bathers this afternoon watched an exciting combat in which a Spanish insurgent flying boat bombed two Government submarines, which answered the attack with their guns without damaging the aircraft.

Eye-witnesses are positive the bombs hit and sank this vessel.—Reuter Special.

FEARS OF TANGIER TROUBLE COMPLICATIONS IN MOROCCAN CITY INTERNATIONAL POLICING

Tangier, July 29.
The International Committee of Control has decided to establish a commission, composed of the commanders of naval units sent to Tangier by the powers. The task of the commission will be to police the port and the international zone.
The International Committee is of the opinion that the presence of Spanish warships in Tangier, against which the Spanish rebels have protested, may provoke acts of war in the Tangier zone and menace the good relations between Britain, France, Italy and Spain, who jointly govern this city.—Reuter.

FRANCO'S AIM
Tangier, July 29.
It is not merely a national question which is involved in the revolt in Spain; it is international, declared General Franco, the rebel commander-in-chief, interviewed by Reuter just before he left his former headquarters in Tetuan.
He emphasised that his real aim was to help Spain by stamping out Communism. Surely, he remarked, Britain, Germany and Italy must sympathise with his cause.
General Franco appeared confident. He said the ability of the Spanish Government to hold out depended on the amount of help that might be given it from Moscow and the Popular Front Government of France.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

SOLICITOR SUSPENDED FOR YEAR ON LAW SOCIETY MOTION TWO CHARGES NOT PROVED

Mr. Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ was suspended from practising as a solicitor for 12 months by the Full Court this morning, on a motion brought by the Incorporated Law Society of Hong Kong, asking that his name be struck off the rolls of the Court for "disgraceful and dishonourable conduct."
The motion was brought on three grounds, two of which were found not proved. On the other the Court found that Mr. Russ had been guilty of "reckless disregard for the ethics of his profession."
The motion had been earlier heard by the Full Court, comprising the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, and the acting Puisne Judge, Mr. J. J. Hayden.
Mr. H. G. Sheldon, K.C., instructed by Mr. D. L. Strellett, Secretary of the Incorporated Law Society of Hong Kong, appeared in support of the motion, while the respondent was represented by Mr. Leo D'Almada, Jnr., instructed by Mr. P. M. Hodgson.

COURT'S DECISION

Well-dressed Dishes

make your food lovely to look at

A GARNISH is the final touch. It should please the eye and tempt the appetite. No right-minded person would send a piece of boiled beef to table without its attractive surroundings of carrots, onions, and dumplings, but other dishes might be denied even that little green sprig of parsley, watercress, or endive, or that neat slice of lemon, any of which can give an air of freshness and distinction to the plainest dish.

Brighten up the dull Meals

Then there are those triangles of toast which relieve the flatness of a hash, those neat and golden cubes of fried bread which seem to be indispensable with a thick soup, and those forcemeat balls which lessen the tedium of such things as veal and rabbit for those who find them ordinarily dull.

There are fish quenelles, shrimps and prawns which ornament dishes of fish, to say nothing of the sliced cucumber which almost too persistently flirts with the salmon.

There are the infant sausages which cling to the skirts of poultry, the thin curled bacon and the small croquettes of ham and tongue.

All dumplings, forcemeat balls, and the like should be small and shapely.

The amount of vegetables should be in proportion to the size of the dish. Their colour should form a pleasing contrast to the main theme.

The cooking or garnishes must be done to perfection. So must their draining.

Bread used for dice or fried croquettes should be two days old. Cut it into the required shapes and plunge them into deep, boiling fat. When they are cooked to a golden colour take them and drain them thoroughly. A greasy garnish is one of cooking's major crimes.

Overcooking is Fatal

For dumplings you season a quarter of a pound of flour with a little pepper and salt, and mix it with two ounces of finely chopped suet. The whole is then mixed into a paste with a little water, and it should be stiff rather than sloppy.

Shape it into little balls and put them into boiling water, where they should simmer until cooked, which will be in ten minutes to a quarter of an hour. If they are overcooked they will "go back," and forcemeat balls can be made of all sorts of meat such as bacon, ham, tongue and veal.

Simple but Good

One of the simplest and at the same time most satisfying forms is made from sausage meat.

The main ingredients are a quarter of a pound of sausage meat mixed with half that quantity of breadcrumbs, bound together with the yolk of an egg.

The seasonings added will depend largely on the sausage meat.

If it is under-seasoned in the first place, chopped parsley or any other herbs which are like grated lemon rind, nutmeg, mace, or a touch of tomato sauce are some of the things which can be brought to the rescue, as well as pepper and salt.

WORM HOLES in your Furniture are made by beetles

and this is the way to cure them

YOU will not be surprised to hear that summer is the love-making time among beetles. Even furniture beetles start making love, so before they appear as fully fledged beetles have a look at the woodwork and furniture in your house and see if there are any worm holes in them.

It will soon be the time to treat your wood if it has been infected by the furniture beetle. Do not think that because a piece of wood has got worm holes in it the beetle is eating it all away. Quite possibly the wood has been treated.

Many people think that furniture beetles only attack old woodwork, antiques and church roofs. This is not so.

There are three common sorts of beetle found in woodwork. They are the Death Watch Beetle (Xestobium rufovillosum), the Common Furniture Beetle (Anobium punctatum), and Powder Post Beetles (differing species of Lycus).

This is what happens in the life of these beetles. In the early summer, when they arrive (either from the wood or from the window), they are little brown creatures that you would hardly notice, never more than a quarter of an inch long and capable of slithering dead by tucking their legs under them and lying still when you touch them.

The female beetle lays her eggs (rarely fewer than a dozen) in cracks in the wood and in the grain of coarser woods and sometimes in the old worm holes.

A month later tiny white larval appear, little maggots, which soon bore their way through the surface of the wood, eating all the time.

When the maggot feels it would like to become a beetle, it turns from its wanderings inside the wood and eats its way up towards the surface. A little short of the surface it hollows out a cell and waits. While it waits it turns into a chrysalis.

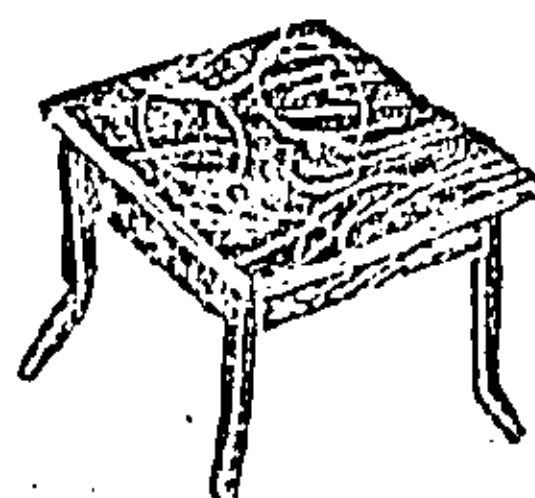

Then when the weather gets warm it emerges from the chrysalis as a fully grown beetle and eats its way out of the wood. After it has mated, it dies. Mrs. Beetle leaves a legacy of eggs to some suitable wood, and all the trouble starts again.

The Death Watch Beetle, or Clergyman's Curse, attacks old timber which is immovable, such as floorboards, rafters, joists and the roofs of churches. It likes wood which is damp and not ventilated.

The Common Furniture Beetle attacks almost any sort of wood, floorboards, pine and plywood, as well as furniture. You must treat the wood it attacks several times.

The Powder Post Beetle is not found in properly seasoned wood, and not in pine. It likes sapwood and the wood which is not heart wood. It also likes coarse grained wood. You may find its holes in quite new furniture.

There is no need to panic if the beetle is in your wood. But first let me tell you how to keep it away.

Dust your furniture regularly and polish where possible. A wax polished surface keeps the beetles off from egg laying in the summer months. There are various liquids obtainable for treating wood which may be applied either with a brush or spray.

Men Need Chaperons

THE modern girl can take care of herself. She has shouted it from the house tops for quite a long while. That is why the chaperon has been discarded.

But—where men are concerned? If we may judge by the many cases that have recently been reported, men would go through life much more fearlessly if, under some circumstances, they could indulge in a chaperon.

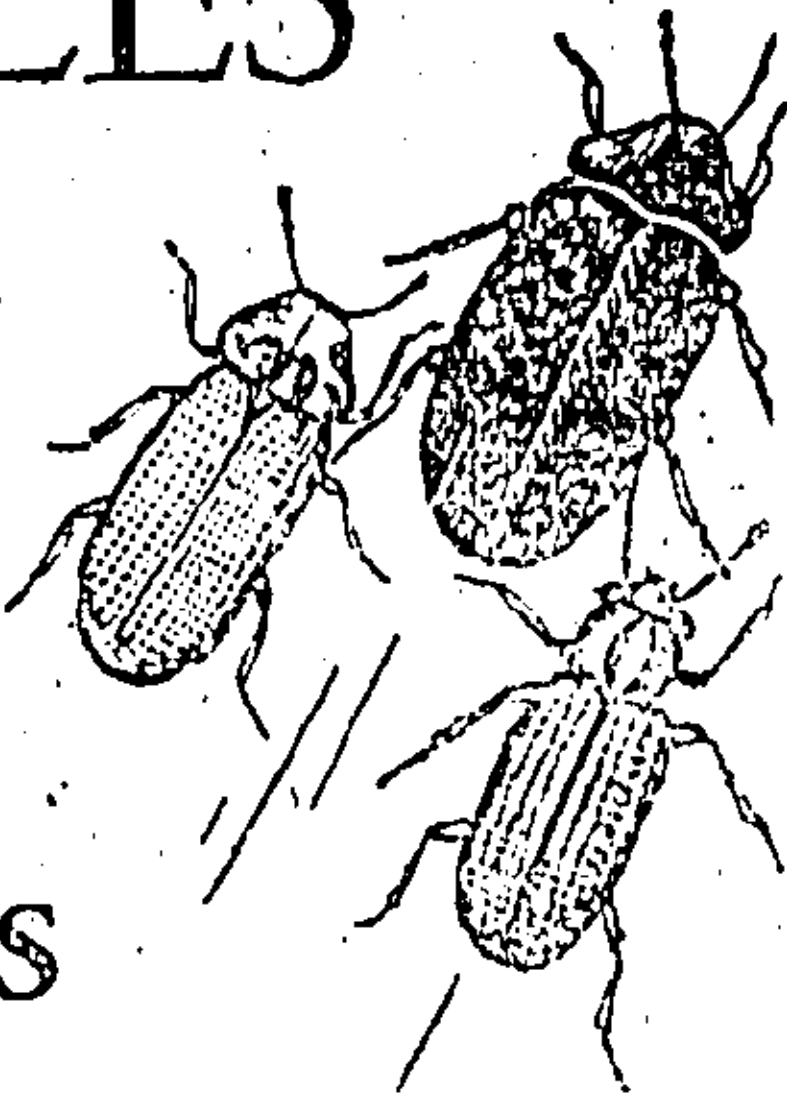

Man is over to a certain extent at the mercy of a designing woman. And now that the sexes mingle so much more freely in the working world, man's danger has become greatly enhanced. In this age, when domestic servants have been discarded in many homes, the doctor often finds it necessary to be guarded. Also, insurance agents, inspectors, or men in any calling that takes them into a home where there may be just one woman.

Naturally enough, all women are not to be feared. It is only the unscrupulous or neurotic type. Healthy-minded men and women are now so accustomed to mutual participation in everyday affairs that the matter of sex rarely enters their minds.

But should a man in the course of his duty come in contact with the wrong type of woman, his character can be torn to shreds, should she think it worth her while to tear it.

Imaginary Wrongs

Not long since, where in a case a woman made a charge against a professional man the solicitor conducting the defence stated that he thought we should soon need chaperons for men. The woman had no proof of the charge made, but in the same manner the professional man had no real way to refute the statement.

In the same way turpentine or paraffin may be applied to unpainted wood. Boiling water can do the trick if the appearance of the wood is not important.

If structural timber is affected, and badly affected, an expert must be called. He will probably try fumigation, or heat (the beetles die in a temperature of over 135 deg. F.).

Repine can be applied with a brush to unpainted surfaces (for instance, the underneath parts of old chairs). Be careful to keep kerosene away from any flame. A hypodermic syringe should be used for squirting it down the worm holes. Naturally any worm holes after this should be filled up with beeswax and turpentine, after syringing, so that no more eggs can be laid in them if any beetles survive the treatment till next year.

Treatment is advised at two periods, separated by about a month.

"Noblemen's Club" Tries to Keep Out Pretenders

Advice to Hostesses

"SO you're a prince, are you? Where's your nobleman's card?"

These and similar questions are ruffling the drawing-room calm of New York's upper circles, thanks to the activities of the Noblemen's Club, formed recently with the declared object of unmasking pretenders posing as titled Europeans. The club announces that it is ready "to give formal reception" to noblemen of unquestioned authenticity arriving in New York and to furnish them with honorary cards of membership, but to others who are being bowed to because of their supposed blue blood it is sending a series of diplomatically worded inquiries.

A GENTLE HINT

The first inquiry comes. This organisation having received inquiries about you, respectfully requests that you call at this office at your earliest convenience. Cordially yours, Noblemen's Club. If the recipient's earliest convenience is not within three days, the club, still respectful, but less cordial, sends a second letter giving three more days in which to communicate. If the addressee then continues the club despatches an ultimatum in a registered letter giving the alleged nobleman 24 hours in which to make a personal appearance.

PUBLICITY THREAT

If this fails to produce results the individual's title falls "under suspicion" with the threat that his name will be given to the Press and to society hostesses throughout New York. The club gives this advice to hostesses:

"If your guest says he is a baron and shows you card, he is a baron. If you know any noblemen who do not have cards, ask them why." Within the past fortnight the club has issued 15 cards. Its president, Baron Giorgio Suriani di Castelnuovo, declares that three "noblemen" are "under suspicion," but he refrains from publishing their names. His first disciplinary announcements are being awaited with a lively curiosity. The Noblemen's Club, however, is not having things all its own way.

AT A MONTH

It cannot hope to enjoy the co-operation of the Russian Nobility Association, for this was made clear by Prince Alexis Obolensky, the president of the latter organisation, whose 125 members pay dues of 4s. a year to be devoted to genealogical research. These members see no need to pay another £1 a month for a crown-studded card guaranteeing one's title.

Their inclination is lessened by the fact that Prince Guido Colonna, the Italian Vice-Consul in New York, told Prince Alexis that Italy's official list of recognised nobles does not contain any "Baron Giorgio Suriani di Castelnuovo."

Refuting the implication that his own title might not be genuine, he produced a scrapbook of newspaper cuttings one colourful item of which was a page from a New York Sunday newspaper which traced his title back to Philip II. of Spain.

It was an impressive family tree, which the baron contended "comes straight from the heraldic office in Rome."

The absence of his name from the Italian official list he was inclined to ascribe to his failure to answer the call to the colours in the Abyssinian war.

"BLACKLISTED ME"

"It is possible they may blacklist me," he said. "But I've been in the front pages of newspapers for years; they all know who I am," he added.

Numerous items have won him this notoriety, including his appearance in a dance Marathon, the announcement of his engagement to a millionaire, and an advertisement that he would marry any woman for £20,000.

Brunette Caused An Army Strike

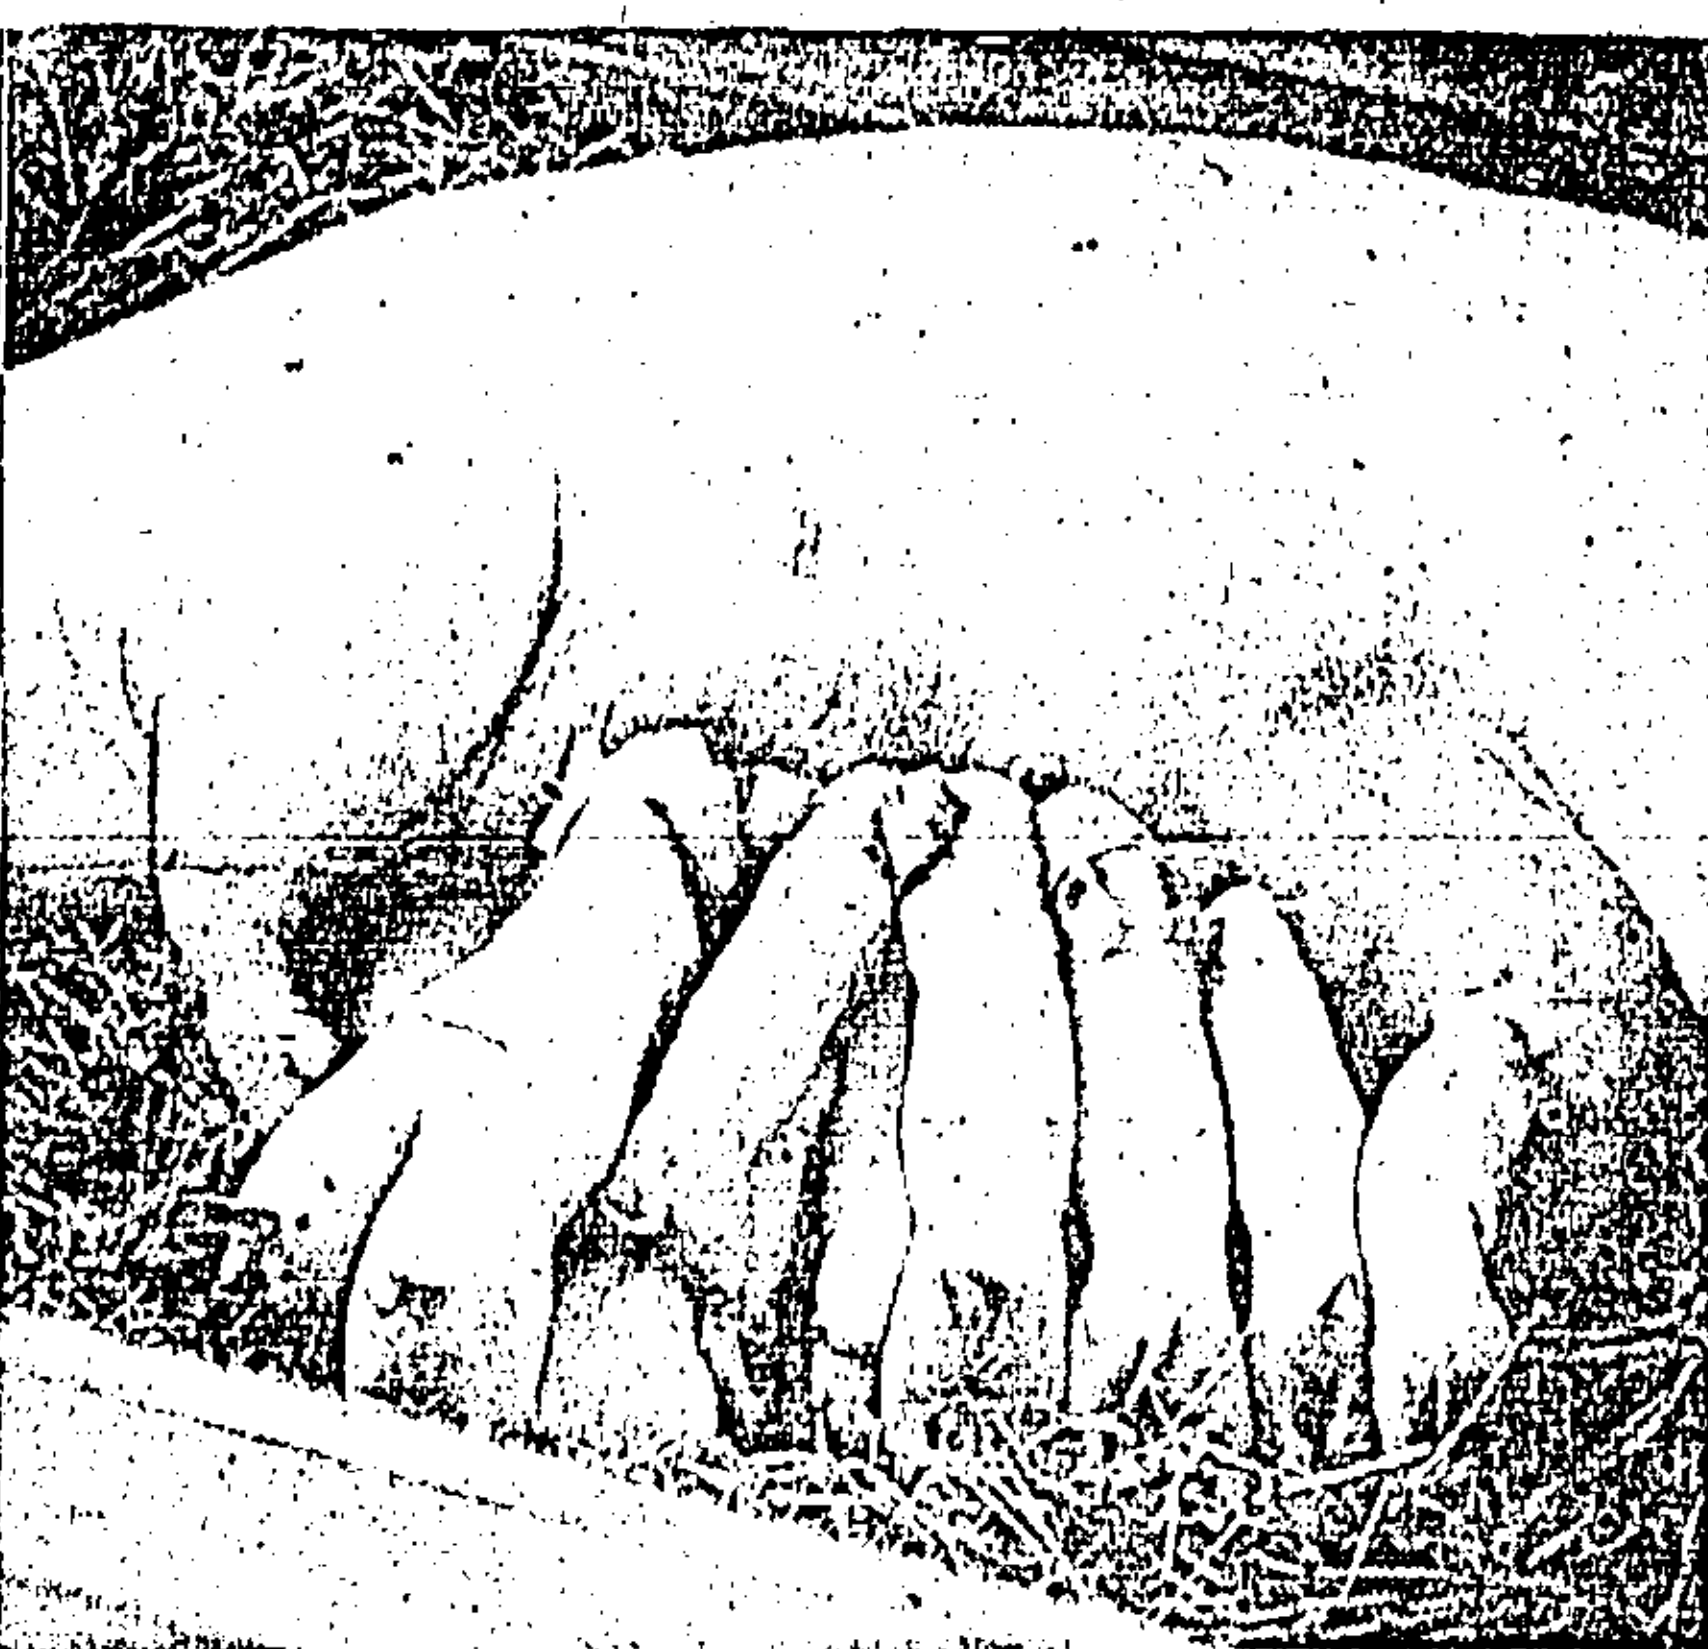

London, July 21.

Pretty sixteen-year-old brunette choir girl Winifred Butt, elected Queen of Northampton's shoe trade, it is said, caused a strike at the Salvation Army's "Articles of War" pledges not to go to dances or theatres.

As Queen she starts year of office in theatre on Friday, dance on Saturday. Salvation Army has suspended her from the choir. And the Salvation Army handmen are threatening to strike as a protest.

They are refusing to take part in carnival parade unless she is reinstated.

Lipstick Murder, Line-Up:

Chicago, July 21.

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD JIMMY, son of Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle, victim of the "Lipstick Murder," to-day stood before a line-up of suspects and lifted suspicion from every one present—except himself.

Detective had rounded up the men from the questionable night clubs of Chicago which Mrs. Castle loved to patronise. One by one Jimmy dismissed them. None of the men, he said, was the man with whom he had coolly discussed the murder of his mother.

The boy is mystifying the police. Police Captain William O'Brien said again to-day that he had not discarded the possibility of the precious, film-struck youngster having attempted to end the home life he hated.

Psychologists, frankly sceptical of the boy's story—that his mother was killed by a man in faceblack—stood over the boy at police headquarters to-day and studied his answers to their questions. They sought to find answers to why Jimmy, who said he questioned the murderer, then went back to sleep, dressed carefully, brushed his hair, and washed his face before reporting the crime.

STICKS TO HIS STORY

They asked questions designed to gain further details about his reactions to the butterfly life his mother led with seven sweethearts. But, Jimmy, who, they said, has the mind of a child of twelve and imagination stimulated by regular visits to gangster films, merely scowled at the psychologists and stuck to his story.

Meanwhile, handwriting experts examined the notepaper found in Jimmy's pocket, and compared it with the words, "Black Legion Game," found scrawled across Mrs. Castle's mirror with her lipstick. When Jimmy went back to his hotel he became the simple boy instead of the problem child. Piling up eight pillows on the floor, he explained he was getting into training "to beat up the guy that beat up my mamma."

One pile of pillows represented Joe Louis, he said, the second Max Schmeling, and the third Gene Tunney.

He knocked them all over and then turned to the policewoman beside him. "That's what I am going to do when I see that guy," he said.

Anti-T.B. Vaccine

For Babies

A NEW vaccine for treatment of tuberculosis—called B.C.G.—is being tested.

It is used to immunise babies and is given in the form of capsules which are swallowed.

So far it has been used only on the Continent. In Poland and France it has proved successful. An official of the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis said:

"Until the babies grow up it will be unable to prove whether it is quite successful."

"You must remember that the disease is not hereditary. Thirty-nine thousand people die from tuberculosis in this country every year."

"Although the figures have gone down, certain types of persons show a marked increase. The chief are among young girls and men, particularly the girls."

"One reason is undoubtedly the slimming habit. Slimming can be very dangerous. Care should also be taken in sun bathing."

Five-Day Maximum For Air Race To S. Africa

ROYAL AERO CLUB'S official regulations governing the £10,000 London-Johannesburg air race in September have been issued.

The course is 6,540 miles long. Any airplanes not completing it in five days are automatically disqualified.

Prize money, presented by Mr. I. W. Schestinger, South African millionaire, is split into £4,000 for the first airplane home, and four prizes of £3,000, £1,500, £1,000 and £500.

The race will probably start on the night of September 15.

Manila, July 28.

When Pan-American Clippers begin carrying passengers between San Francisco and Manila only one missing link will remain for the completion of air passenger and mail services all the way around the world, and there are two possibilities that the remaining gap across the South China Sea may be closed soon.

Royal Netherlands Indies Airways (KNILM) is seeking to connect Manila by air with Soerabaja, Java, present Far Eastern terminus of its line from Amsterdam to the Netherlands Indies.

If air field arrangements can be reached with the Philippine government, KNILM will put a fleet of airliners in operation from Soerabaja across the eastern fringe of Borneo to Jolo, Zamboanga, Ballo and Manila. Tentative plans call for stops in Bandung, Batak, Balikpapan and Tarakan.

Douglas DC-2 planes, similar to those on trans-continental routes in the United States, are to be used.

CONNECT WITH BRITISH

The service would also connect with Imperial Airways. British airline which passes through Soerabaja on the London-Australia mail and passenger route.

Pan-American's proposed extension of its trans-Pacific Clipper service to Macao, Portuguese settlement a few miles from Hongkong has been anticipated for some time.

Imperial Airways recently opened a spur airline from Hongkong to Bangkok, connecting at the latter city with the London-Australia route, and the transfer of passenger and mail between Pan-American in Macao and Imperial in Hongkong would be a simple matter.

MACAO READY

Pan-American has already installed landing facilities in Macao that could be put in readiness on a few hours notice. The reason for delaying the inauguration of service to Macao has not been disclosed, but apparently the international aspects of the question is causing the delay.

President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippines recently declared that he was interested in encouraging international airline communication between the Philippines and other Far-Eastern countries, but said the Philippines would co-operate fully with the state department in Washington on such questions. Quezon expressed the opinion that foreign lines would not require a franchise such as Pan-American Airways obtained, but could be authorised by the proper government authorities to land and engage in foreign airplane traffic, on much the same basis as foreign ships enjoy the privileges of Philippine ports.

He pointed out that permission to operate thus obtained, however, would be revocable, whereas Pan-American Airways has the advantage of a definite commitment with respect to its privileges for the duration of the franchise.—United Press.

Plan To Close St. Pancras Station

London, July 25.

According to the Daily Telegraph plans are being considered for closing St. Pancras as a passenger station, and transferring its traffic to Euston, when the £5,000,000 reconstruction scheme at Euston is completed.

Under the original scheme, announced last year, for rebuilding Euston, it was proposed that St. Pancras should still be used for passengers.

Since then further plans have been made. If it should be decided to pull down St. Pancras Station, a huge site in Central London would become available for development of immense commercial importance, since it is the gateway to the Midlands and the North. The station was opened 68 years ago.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF

Over Ordinary Buttermilk.

1. Preparation from fresh cows' milk from selected and controlled sources.
2. The fat content is standardised to a definite percentage, sufficient to fulfil nutritional requirements.
3. The protein is in the form of fine flakes on which the gastric juices act more easily, and the stomach evacuates more rapidly than is the case with ordinary buttermilk.
4. The mineral salts, especially the calcium salts, are more soluble than is the case with ordinary buttermilk, and this facilitates their absorption.
5. The acidity is maintained at a constant degree.
6. The ability to vary the dilution when mixing is a decided advantage as the strength of the liquid can be made to suit individual requirements.
7. Many infants cannot tolerate whole milk acidified by the addition of lactic acid, and yet are able to tolerate Eledon.
8. The entire process of manufacture is subject to full scientific control.

AWKWARD PROBLEM FOR DIPLOMACY

London, July 29. Replying to a House of Commons question on the fortification of Heligoland, Mr. Austrey Eden said: "The action of the German Government in this matter is unilateral, and if the matter were to be dealt with separately, His Majesty's Government would require to formulate most exact press reserves with regard to that action. The House will, however, be aware from what I said in the course of last Monday's debate, that negotiations have been set on foot which it is hoped may lead to a fresh effort at a European settlement, in which Germany would play her full part. I hope, therefore, that my honourable friend will agree with His Majesty's Government in feeling that, though they cannot pass unobserved, should not be raised at the moment and in a manner which might react unfavourably on the negotiations which I have referred to and thus prejudice the general settlement which we all hope may be reached."—British Wireless.

CHICAGO LOSES TO NEW YORK

ST. LOUIS SPLITS

DOUBLE-HEADER

YANKEES IN

FINE FORM

New York, July 29. St. Louis Cardinals won and lost today and Chicago, leading the National League a jump ahead of the Cards, went down before the onslaught of the New York Giants. St. Louis lost the first game of a double-header with Brooklyn by one of the most decisive margins on the season's records. The Dodgers hit twenty-one times and scored twenty-two runs, while the Cardinals hit seven and scored the same number.

In the second game the tables were turned, St. Louis scoring five runs when Medwick homered twice and holding the Dodgers to four on seven hits. In the first game St. Louis had three errors, but in the nightcap they were airtight.

The Cubs failed against New York. Their eight hits yielded only two runs, including a homer by Allen, and the Giants ran twelve hits into seven runs, assisted by Whitehead's circuit blow. Cubs had two of the three errors.

Pittsburgh was also engaged in a double-header, with Boston supplying the opposition. They split the honors. Boston won the first four to one, with ten hits to nine, and both had a pair of blunders. Pittsburgh hit sixteen in the closing fixture and scored ten runs to four, the Braves' tallies coming out of nine hits. Boston had two of the three errors.

The Cincinnati-Philadelphia game was postponed on account of rain.

New York Yankees blundered last year's champion Tigers out of their road to the pennant when they scored thirteen runs on fifteen hits, Gehrig hitting his usual home run, and the Tigers were held to nine hits and a trio of errors. Each had two errors.

St. Louis Browns upset the calculations of Boston's Red Sox, hitting fourteen times and scoring nine runs, assisted by the Bottomley bat which drove out a homer, when the Sox entertained. Boston hit nine for three runs.

Cleveland, visiting Washington, won both ends of a double-header, the first eleven to six, the second six to five. The Reds hit ten times in the opener, but Trasky and Campbell gave them homers and brought a walk home. Kubel homered for the Senators. Averill hit a circuit in the nightcap for the Reds, whose hit total was eleven, and Washington hit ten.

Chicago White Sox defeated Philadelphia by a score of seven to five, hitting eleven to ten, and each had two errors. —Reuter.

NEW YORK PRICES
SAG LOWER

New York, July 29. Prices were irregularly lower on the New York Stock Exchange today. The decline was due to professional selling. However, traders were encouraged by the market's resistance and also by good earloadings, slight gains in the steel and automobile outputs, and the strength of the copper market.

The Bond Market was irregularly higher while issues on the Curb Exchange were irregularly lower.

NO COLONIAL PLAN
BEFORE CABINET

London, July 29. In the House of Commons, Mr. Geoffrey Mander questioned the Prime Minister regarding the plan disclosed by Mr. Pirew, South African Minister of Defence, and placed by him before the British Government when in London, for European Powers with African possessions each to give up a portion in order to make room for Germany, and asked whether any of the Powers in question had been approached or had signified their willingness to enter into such arrangement under any circumstances.

Mr. Baldwin replied that no such plan as that described by Mr. Mander had been communicated to the Government, nor, so far as he was aware, to any other Government. The second part of the question did not therefore arise. —British Wireless.

BIRD CRUELTY CASE

SPARROW WITH STRING TIED TO LEG

A newspaper deliverer, Ho Fuk, was charged before Mr. C. B. Burgess at the Central Magistracy this morning with cruelty to a sparrow by attaching a string to its left leg at Pokfulam Road. He admitted the offence.

Sub-inspector A. Kirby, prosecuting, said that about 8.50 a.m. yesterday, Sergeant Sullivan saw defendant carrying the bird in Pokfulam Road. He was allowing the bird to fly, and then jerking it back by the piece of string attached to its leg. The bird was now dying.

Defendant stated he had picked the bird up in Babington Path, and it had then a string attached to it.

The Magistrate said that birds did not go around flying with string tied to their legs and said he did not believe defendant.

A fine of $25, or two weeks' hard labour, was inflicted. The bird was ordered to be released, and Sub-inspector Kirby said he would try to revive the bird.

A DILEMMA AND
ITS UPSHOT

Many people will, we imagine, quarrel with the decision of a Kowloon Magistrate on Tuesday in imposing a fine of $5, with the alternative of imprisonment for two weeks, on a ricksha coolie "for failing to complete a journey in which he was engaged." The case, unimportant in some respects, touches a point of considerable public interest. The facts, briefly, as related in the Police Court, were that the ricksha was engaged in Yau-mat by a fare who agreed to pay thirty cents to be taken to the Sam Lee Boat Building Yard, and, whilst on the journey, the coolie, noticing that the passenger was in a fainting condition, dropped the shafts of the vehicle and lifted the fare on to the road. It was stated that the coolie so acted because of a fear that the passenger might die in the ricksha. Apparently, the coolie was then making off, when he was held up by a passer-by, who tried to persuade him to take the sick man to the police station. The coolie at first refused to go, but eventually, the unconscious man was lifted back into the ricksha and, under the escort of the passer-by, the coolie, with his sick passenger, was taken to the police station. When the case came into Court, the passer-by was, quite rightly, commended for having intervened, and, also quite rightly, the coolie was reprimanded for having left the passenger on the road. But in a case of this type account should surely be taken of the dilemma in which the coolie found himself. Ricksha coolies are not usually over-blessed with intelligence, and in this instance the man was obviously puzzled as to what he should do in the circumstances. Actually, he was informed by the Magistrate that his duty was to have taken the passenger to hospital. That, clearly, would have been the most sensible course, but, incidentally, if the coolie had so acted he would still have been guilty of the offence of "failing to complete a journey in which he was engaged." That journey was from the point at which the ricksha was engaged to the Sam Lee Boat Building Yard; and it is quite conceivable that if the journey had been completed, the passenger would have died before reaching his destination. If the conviction was based on the failure of the coolie to take his sick passenger to hospital, then it was wrong in law. On the other hand, strict compliance with the law might easily have endangered the passenger's life. In our view, the case would have been adequately met if the coolie had been reprimanded and been instructed what to do in the event of a similar circumstance arising in the future. Indeed, general instructions of this kind might with advantage be passed

MANY PEOPLE, ESPECIALLY in recent times, have attacked the examination system. As a non-educationist, I have never been much impressed by these attacks, believing that in an imperfect world every system, whether the examination system or democracy, is bound to be imperfect, and that the proposed substitutes are likely to be more imperfect still. I never realised quite how imperfect the examination system is, however, till I read a shilling pamphlet entitled "An Examination of Examinations," written by Sir Philip Hartog and Dr. E. C. Rhodes and published last year by Messrs. Macmillan. Talk of the glorious uncertainty of the Turf! The facts revealed in this pamphlet—a report of an expert inquiry into the working of the examination system—suggest that a boy or girl in the examination room needs almost as much luck as a horse on the racecourse in order to pull through. After reading this report I feel that, if I were a schoolboy again and were ploughed in an examination, I should demand a revolt.

Here is an example of how 210—210 being the number of examiners differ from each other in marking the same papers, fifteen papers, or "scripts," which had already been given equal marks in a school certificate history examination were submitted, with all marks erased, to a new body of 14 examiners; and the new examiners differed so widely from their predecessors' opinions that, among them, they allotted "over 40 different marks to the several scripts."

A further experiment was tried and these 14 examiners

Other experiments were made and much the same results were found. The tests varied, but, whatever tests were applied, the examiners usually made an equally poor show.

Seven examiners were invited to award Failures, Passes, Credits or Special Credits to 48 candidates in School Certificate English. When they had done so it was discovered that there was only one candidate out of the 48 about whom they could agree as to the class in which he should be placed.

One examiner ploughed 19 of the candidates, while two of them—decent fellows!—ploughed none. One of them awarded 12 Special Credits, while most

It has been suggested that this is a superficial age, and that modern youth in particular lives only on the surface of things. Entertainments, it is said, must be light to be popular; in the world of books the best sellers are often on the verge of being immoral; church attendance and membership is falling off, and so on.

Men and women are concerned mainly with things that do not matter; they are pleasure-loving and ever in search of some new amusement. As one writer has put it, there is a new and popular occupation, the chase of the thrill.

All this is what we see if we take only a casual glance at life to-day, and if we deduce therefore that the modern age is living only on the surface of things, then we ourselves are guilty of being superficial.

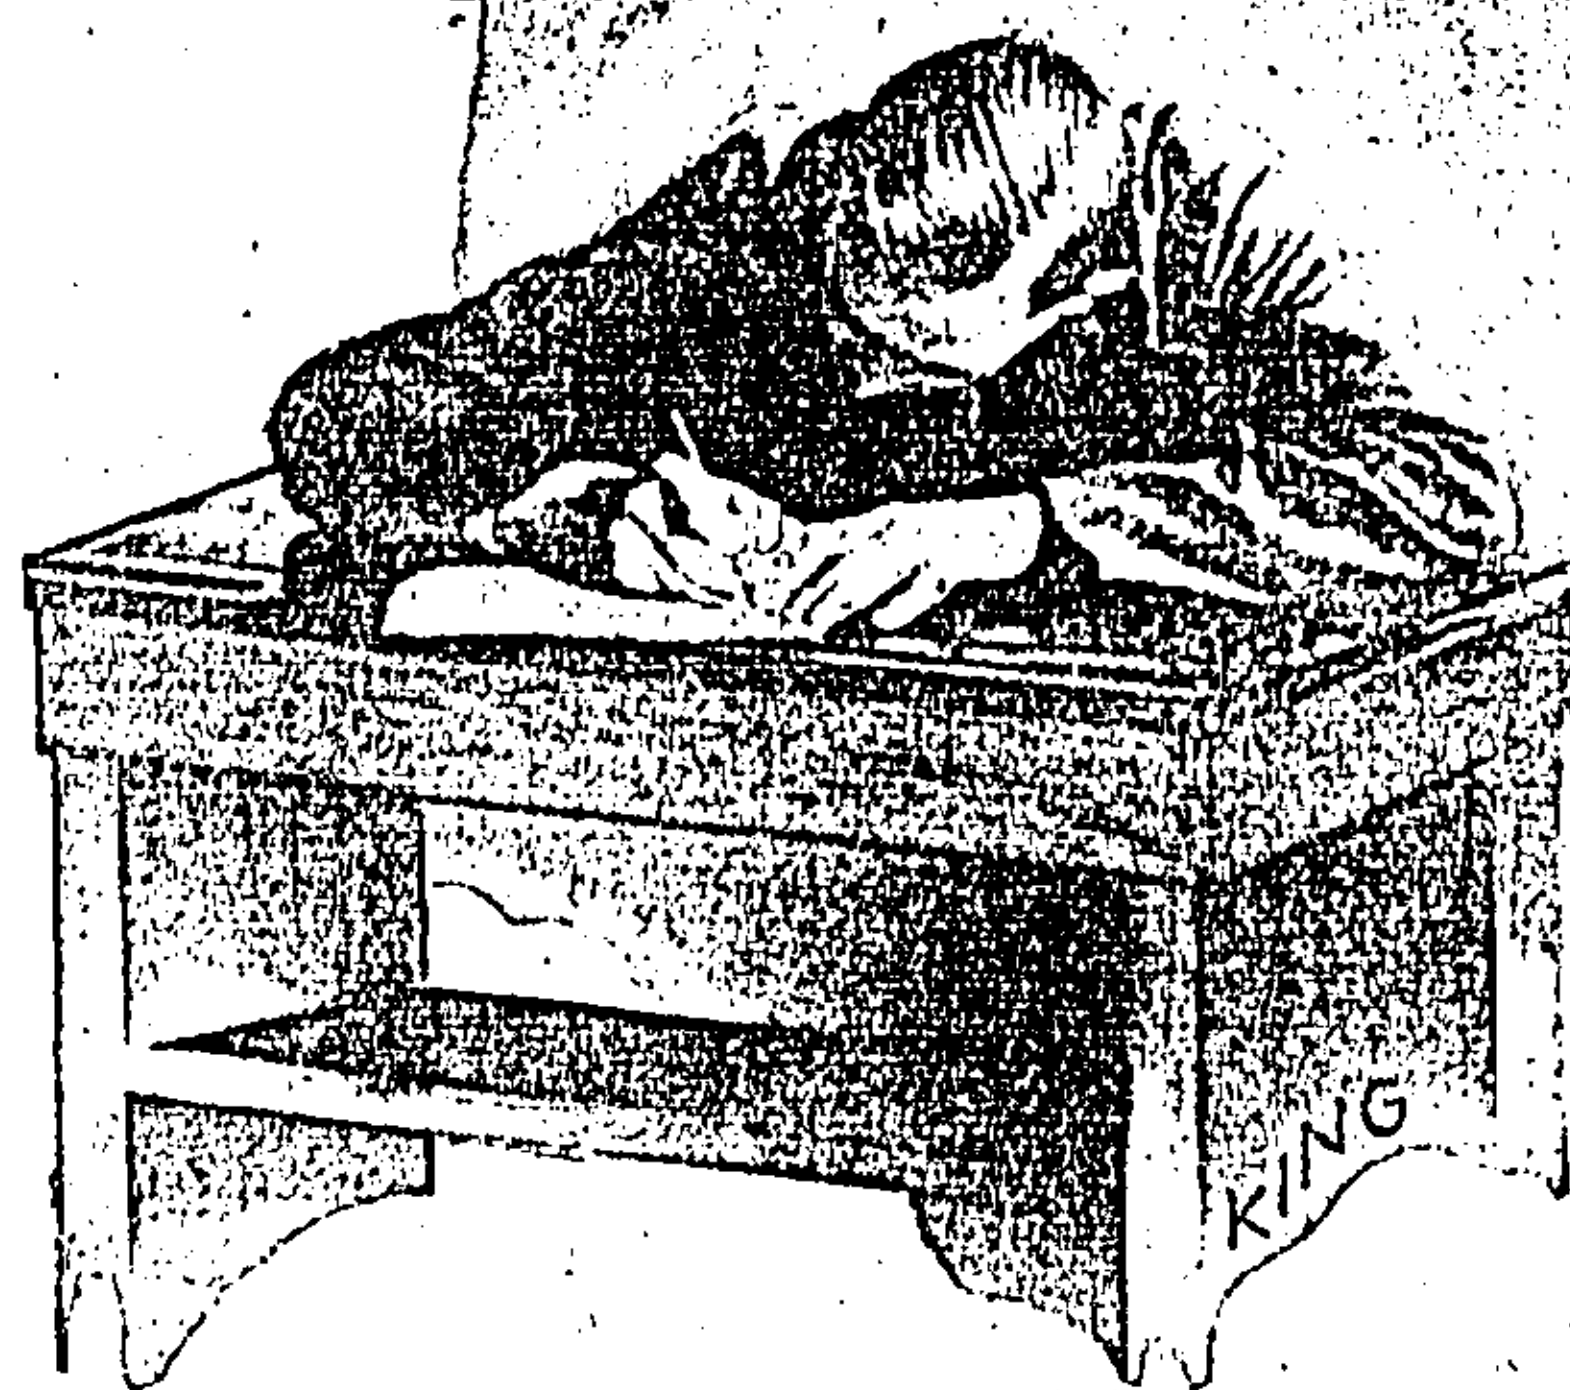

If we probe a little deeper, make a closer study of present tendencies, we find that there is much evidence to prove that this age is far from being superficial.

Men and women of to-day are interested not only in their pleasures and in what amusement life can offer them. They may enjoy these to the full, but they do not forget the more serious things, and they are well aware of the responsibilities of citizenship.

FORCE OF PUBLIC OPINION

This has been fully demonstrated on several occasions recently. In our political and social life we hear a good deal nowadays of the phrase, public opinion. Some months ago, at the time of the Hoare-Laval plan to settle the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, public opinion in England was so

EXAMS EXAMINED

By Robert Lynd

We are told that of the 14 examiners there was only one who "was exceptionally steady and whose numerical mark never varied by more than seven out of a hundred." Of the others, one in the second examination moved eight of the fifteen candidates down a class lower than that in which he had originally placed them, and another moved seven down a class.

Mr. A. P. Herbert has recently reproved journalists for their excessive use of the epithet "amazing." But I think Mr. Herbert would admit that the use of the word "amazing" about some of these facts is thoroughly justified.

The verdicts of these expert examiners seem to be almost as capricious and irrational as the verdicts of some of the old benches of magistrates. Possibly the system works well as a whole; but if one failed after this in a Civil Service examination, one would certainly be inclined to doubt whether the failure was due to one's own mistakes or to the incompetence of the examiners.

In the course of these experiments a test examination was held of candidates suitable for the higher Civil Service. Two boards of examiners were appointed, and the 16 candidates came before each of them in succession for a viva voce examination. Each board afterwards drew up a separate list of the candidates in order of merit. Here, as in the other tests, the examiners showed an extraordinary incapacity for agreement. The candidate who was placed first by Board I. was placed thirteenth (out of 16) by Board II. The candidate who was placed first by Board II. was awarded only the eleventh place by Board I.

There was not a single candidate about whom the two boards were in complete agreement.

In the opinion of the authors of the report these astonishing divergences between the examining boards "point to the unreliability of the interview test, and indicate the great influence that this test might have in the final placing of a candidate in a Civil Service examination."

It was only after reading this report that I began to realise how it came about that at school I was once given a prize in mathematics. It is clear that, in certain moods, examiners are capable of anything. In my case, I think the examiner must have confused my "script" with somebody else's.

On the whole, however, during many years' slavery to examinations, I noticed few cases of injustice in the results. The candidates whom one expected to come out top usually came out top and it was very seldom that one was shocked by finding a first-rate scholar ploughed.

Still, the facts given in this report suggest that there are people examining to-day who are not really fit to be examiners, and that examiners should undergo as strict a training as doctors.

On the other hand, the verdicts even of doctors differ; and in an imperfect world we shall always, no doubt, have the imperfect examiner.

Luckily, the later careers of only a comparatively few people depend upon the places they once took in an examination. If this were not so, the present pamphlet would cause a world-wide sensation.

NOT SO SUPERFICIAL

Interest in the
Serious Side of Life

It has been suggested that this is a superficial age, and that modern youth in particular lives only on the surface of things. Entertainments, it is said, must be light to be popular; in the world of books the best sellers are often on the verge of being immoral; church attendance and membership is falling off, and so on.

Men and women are concerned mainly with things that do not matter; they are pleasure-loving and ever in search of some new amusement. As one writer has put it, there is a new and popular occupation, the chase of the thrill.

All this is what we see if we take only a casual glance at life to-day, and if we deduce therefore that the modern age is living only on the surface of things, then we ourselves are guilty of being superficial.

If we probe a little deeper, make a closer study of present tendencies, we find that there is much evidence to prove that this age is far from being superficial.

Men and women of to-day are interested not only in their pleasures and in what amusement life can offer them. They may enjoy these to the full, but they do not forget the more serious things, and they are well aware of the responsibilities of citizenship.

This has been fully demonstrated on several occasions recently. In our political and social life we hear a good deal nowadays of the phrase, public opinion. Some months ago, at the time of the Hoare-Laval plan to settle the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, public opinion in England was so great many poor films have been shown, but in this case, too, it is clear that there is a good demand for the better-class film.

To appreciate the improvement that has taken place in the public taste in the cinema, we need only to cast back our minds twenty years or so and recall the kind of films that delighted audiences at that time.

And what of the charge that modern youth is superficial. We are often told that the youth of to-day are pleasure-loving, lazy, and irresponsible, that they are not interested in their work, and that they rush from it to spend the evening in pleasure. How, then, are we to account for the fact that the habit of study was never so general as it is to-day? Apart from our University one need only consider the thousands of Chinese and Europeans who are attending evening classes and technical schools to realise how eager young people are to learn and to equip themselves for their work.

Coming now to the question of the decline in church attendance, which is also taken as indication of the superficiality of the age, we find that, what may be said of the modern attitude to religion, it is not superficial. It was our fathers and grandfathers who were superficial in their religion. Did they not accept blindly the doctrines and theories which were put before them? The modern mind is not content with this. It examines and criticises; it tries to get beneath the surface.

The conclusions reached may clash with the old accepted principles, but that is another matter. It cannot be said that the modern attitude is superficial. The very reverse is the case.

Four More Australian Test Invitations

FAGG, COPSON

Three Excellent Batsmen

London, July 29.

Four additional players to the seven announced last week have received invitations to join the M.C.C. cricket team to tour Australia during the coming winter. They are:

Duckworth (Lancashire)
Worthington (Derbyshire)
Copson (Derbyshire)
Fagg (Kent)

It was further stated to-day that the M.C.C. would issue no more invitations before August 9. Reuter. Eleven players are thus on the books for the Australian Test match tour. G. O. Allen will lead the side and expects to have the following at his disposal, R. W. V. Robins, Hammond, Leyland, Verity, Fishlock, Hardstaff as well as the four players mentioned above.

Copson and Fagg are essentially batsmen, while Duckworth is a magnificent wicket-keeper who has considerably improved his batting, though chiefly known for his bowling. His form this summer has been exceptionally good, as has that of Fagg, the young Kent professional.

The selectors have clearly issued these new invitations as a result of performances in the second Test match against India which concluded on Tuesday. Worthington signalled the occasion by scoring 87, while Fagg played faultless cricket for his 59.

Kay Stammers Going To America

SEEKING TENNIS HONOURS

London, July 29. Miss Kay Stammers, this year's winner of the English hardcourt championship, and who reached the quarter-finals of the women's singles at Wimbledon, has been nominated by the Lawn Tennis Association to compete in the American Championships at Forest Hills in September. British Wireless.

Fred Perry, world's champion, has already indicated his intention to participate in the men's championship. He will endeavour to win the title for the third time which will give him the right of permanently retaining the cup.

LEAGUE TENNIS

BIG PROGRAMME TO-DAY

LEADING TEAMS WILL NOT BE THREATENED

Although there is a full programme of "C" Division tennis league matches this afternoon, it is not likely to make any contribution towards solving the struggle for the championship. Both Kowloon Indians and Club de Recreo have comparatively easy matches, and the winning of the title depends entirely on their match. It is believed that this encounter will not take place until Kowloon Indians have met South China, so that the championship will probably be in the balance until the last match of the season.

Thanks to a big win over Indian Recreation Club on Tuesday the Recreo go to the top of the table with the maximum number of points from eight matches. To-day's list of matches contains nothing of particular interest. K.C.C. (1) cannot hope to take a point from the K.I.T.C., and although C.R.C. are on their own courts, and have been showing somewhat better form of late, they appear to be doomed to defeat at the hands of Recreo.

The programme follows:
K.I.T.C. v. K.C.C. (1)
Kowloon Tong v. I.R.C.
University v. S.C.A.A.
C.R.C. v. Recreo
C.C.C. v. C.C.C.
K.C.C. (2) v. A.T.C.
In consequence of Tuesday's matches, in which Recreo beat I.R.C., and K.C.C. (2) drew with the University, the amended league table now reads as follows:

	P.	W.	D.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Recreo	8	8	0	0	59½	12½	16
K.I.T.C.	7	7	0	0	54	9	14
S.C.A.A.	7	6	0	1	49½	22½	12

Foot-Faulting At Lawn Bowls And How To Avoid It

(By H. S. Burrows)
News-Chronicle

An injunction has gone forth from the F.H.A. to all its affiliated members that in important finals, watchmen must be appointed to sit behind players and to look closely for foot-faulting.

These "spotters" have been informed that ere they take action they must clearly warn the men, as a whole, that the penalty for foot-faulting—i.e., for delivering a bowl with both feet off the mat—is that the bowl shall be stopped either by the scorer marking the singles or by a second "spotter" sitting at the other hand.

In a most important singles event decided in London recently, one of four semi-finalists foot-faulted on several occasions, and a stern voice rang across the green "No bowl." As a penalty each bowl so declared was lifted on to the bank by the scorer.

Novices should always take a quick look down at the position of their feet in the process of making ready on the mat for their delivery.

FOUR ESSENTIAL MOVEMENTS

It should be an automatic process to:

- (1) Look at the jack and the lay out of the obstructing woods or of your own that need slightly pushing up;
- (2) Look on the green for a spot at which you believe your ball will be at its fullest, and make the bowl pass over that spot;
- (3) Look at your wood to see that you have the bias side right, and
- (4) In this downward look carry the eyes still further to see that you are in the middle of the mat.

If you are too far forward on the rubber, it follows that when you stride forward with your loose leg the toe of the left foot comes up off the mat and is piercing the green just over the edge of the mat.

As well as damaging the green by this "popping" process of the sharp toe just beyond the mat edge, you are breaking law 7, section 3 which stipulates that one foot at the point of delivery must remain entirely on the mat.

The International Board recommends that mats with ridged edges should be used in match play and these are gradually replacing the entirely flat sort which encourages faulty work. On the ridged-edge variety, a trifle awkward to fall into at first, you gradually find yourself "feeling" with your toe for the raised edge, and automatically move away from it when the ridge is encountered.

I have been asked why greenkeepers do not fulfil the spirit of Law 1, which demands that rinks shall be so laid out that their boundaries are made clear by the aid of white painted markers laid into the banks.

I agree that these markers are helpful to keep in your eye when the green is full of bias and running and you are compelled to put the wood out to the string. It is then that one should have a mark wide out to look at, and if there were more whitened rink boundary markers in existence we should see better drawing work.

Only when greens are fast, however, are any marks on banks useful. When the turf is thick, or spongy, you must look for a mark on the green.

MORE U.S. OLYMPIANS SUSPENDED

Berlin, July 29.

More trouble in the American Olympic camp was reported to-day. Howell King and Joe Church, two of the United States Olympic boxing team have been sent back to America owing to misdemeanour, says Reuter.

This incident, following hard on the Mrs. Eleanor Hohn Jarrett affair, which culminated in the famous swimmer being turned out of the American squad indicates that all is not well with the American contingent. It is also clear that officials in charge of the squad are going to tolerate no insubordination.

PROS. BANNED FROM TENNIS TOURNAMENT

(By Ulysses Rogers)

London, July 7.

Four English professional tennis players have been compelled by the L.T.A. to withdraw from the second international championships, which open at Southampton, Lancashire, to-day.

The Southport Corporation have entered into a five years' undertaking with "Björk" Tilden to organise an annual tournament.

Last year the event was a great success. The entries, previously limited to the great and outstanding pros, have been extended to include four outstanding British players—Jeffery, Poulson, Pierce, and Roberts. These four were officially advised that it would not be to their advantage to play.

Mr. Wolstenholme, Southport's general manager of publicity and amusements, has been to London and interviewed Mr. Sabelli, the secretary of the L.T.A.

The nominal objection raised was that the professional lawn tennis championships of Great Britain are held at Eastbourne in August.

In vain did Mr. Wolstenholme point out that Southport's championships are an international affair. Mr. Sabelli referred the matter to his committee. The result was the same.

No English pro. may enter for the international tournament under threat of disqualification.

ENGLISH CREWS FOR BERLIN

Leander's crew, runners-up to Zurich in the Grand Challenge Cup final at Henley, have been chosen to represent Great Britain in the eights at the Berlin Olympic.

W. G. R. M. Laurie, who stroked the crew at Henley, is conferring with his advisers regarding the possibility of changes in the eight, and has received permission to invite men from other clubs to take part in trials. It is understood that J. H. T. Wilson, last season's Cambridge president, who rowed in the Boat Race at No. 7 behind Laurie, was not in the Leander boat at Henley, will be unable to spare the time.

Britain's representatives in the coxswainless fours will be the London Rowing Club crew, stroked by Edgar Howitt, which gave Zurich a narrow race in the Stewards' Cup. A race is to be held between R. F. and J. S. Otter (Kingston R.C. and T. S. Cree and D. W. Burnford (Jesus College, Cambridge) to decide who will row in the coxswainless pairs.

T. H. Tyler (Thames R.C.), runner-up to Ruffi (Switzerland) in the Diamond Sculls, is to join W. E. C. Horwood, the N.A.R.A. nominee and H. L. Warren (Trinity Hall, Cambridge) in a 2,000 metres trial at Henley. The winner will probably be chosen to row in the Olympic single sculls.

Britain's double scullers will probably be Jack Beresford and Dick Southwood (Thames R.C.). It has been decided not to send representatives for the coxed fours and pairs.

Mr. C. M. Morrell (Thames R.C.) will manage the British team in Berlin, and he will be accompanied by Mr. General Gibbon.

BILLIONS-TO-ONE CRICKET CHANCE

THREE MEN END INNINGS AT 163

London, July 7. Three county cricketers made not out centuries on Saturday. Yesterday they went on batting and—

Each of them ended his innings with precisely the same total.

Here are the scores at close of play Saturday:

Hutton (Yorks v Surrey)	164
Leyland (Yorks v Surrey)	161
Worthington (Derby v Warwick)	114
And yesterday:
Hutton b Watts	163
Leyland not out	163
Worthington c Collins b Hollies	163

The odds against such a thing happening are literally infinite. It is just "one of the things that happen" at cricket.

Schmeling v. Braddock Difficulties

(By Trevor Wignall)
Daily Express.

New York.

Joe Louis, young negro heavy-weight whose pugilistic star fell from the sky when he was so sensationally knocked out by the German, Max Schmeling, has disgusted certain people in this country by refusing to claim that, before the contest, he was doped, injured, poisoned or otherwise rendered unfit to fight.

Silly stories have been going the rounds ever since Louis so unexpectedly betrayed the clanks in his fistful armour. This country is seemingly full of men who made fortunes on the result, but prior to the contest there was not a single person I met who gave Schmeling an outside chance of winning.

To the intense surprise of the American newspapers Louis declines to talk to anybody or to attempt to explain his crushing defeat. His managers have declared that the only poison administered to him was that contained in Schmeling's right glove. For some days after the repulse Louis talked about retiring with the fortune he has collected. That phase has passed. Now he wants to meet Schmeling again. He will not do that until next summer at the earliest.

Conferences are being held every day in New York in an attempt to match Schmeling with Jimmy Braddock for the championship. Braddock is under contract to Madison Square Garden, and Schmeling to the Twentieth Century Sporting Club.

RIVALS MAY JOIN FORCES

Offers have been made by both to buy out the other, but the probability is that when the arguments are over the two parties will join forces to stage the fight in September.

Difficulties at the moment appear insuperable, the chief being Braddock's demand for a guarantee of £150,000. Another snag is that Schmeling definitely refuses to fight at Long Island Bowl, owned by Madison Square Garden, as he considers the place unlucky.

It was there he lost his title when so badly punished by Max Baer. He too, talks of a guarantee of £100,000 which is absurd.

Jewish antagonism to Schmeling is more bitter than ever, especially since his luncheons and meetings with Hitler were made known. It was chiefly Jews that caused the receipts of Schmeling's contest with Louis to be disappointing, but the boycott will be greater still, if he is matched with Braddock.

Only laughter was created when it was reported that offers for the championship fight had been sent from Germany, and one thing certain is that Braddock would not consent to go there. He might agree to fight in England, but he wisely asks where his purse is to come from.

There have been two other aspects since Schmeling astonished everybody at Philadelphia. I watched Leroy Haynes, the heavily-touted negro, soundly outpointed by the American-Italian Al Ettore.

REPUTATION ON BEATING CARNERA

Haynes gained his reputation by scoring two knock-outs over paralytic Primo Carnera, but the most I thought of him was that he is a fair second-rater.

At Boston a San Francisco heavy-weight, Phil Drubaker, who had been spoken of as the best white youngster in the world, was easily beaten by veteran Jack Sharkey, who, in the ring has always wept better than he has fought. Sharkey is engaged in a come-back, and his defeat of Drubaker pegs the newcomer so far back that now he can scarcely be seen.

Efforts I have made to get promoters interested in Jack Petersen have met with no success. Nobody seems to want him even for a preliminary bout, and the only answer I receive is that he must prove himself before travelling to this side.

The only thing I remembered of him is that he was twice stopped by

H. A. ALVES PLAYS GUTIERREZ TO-DAY

CHAMPIONSHIP BOWLS GAME

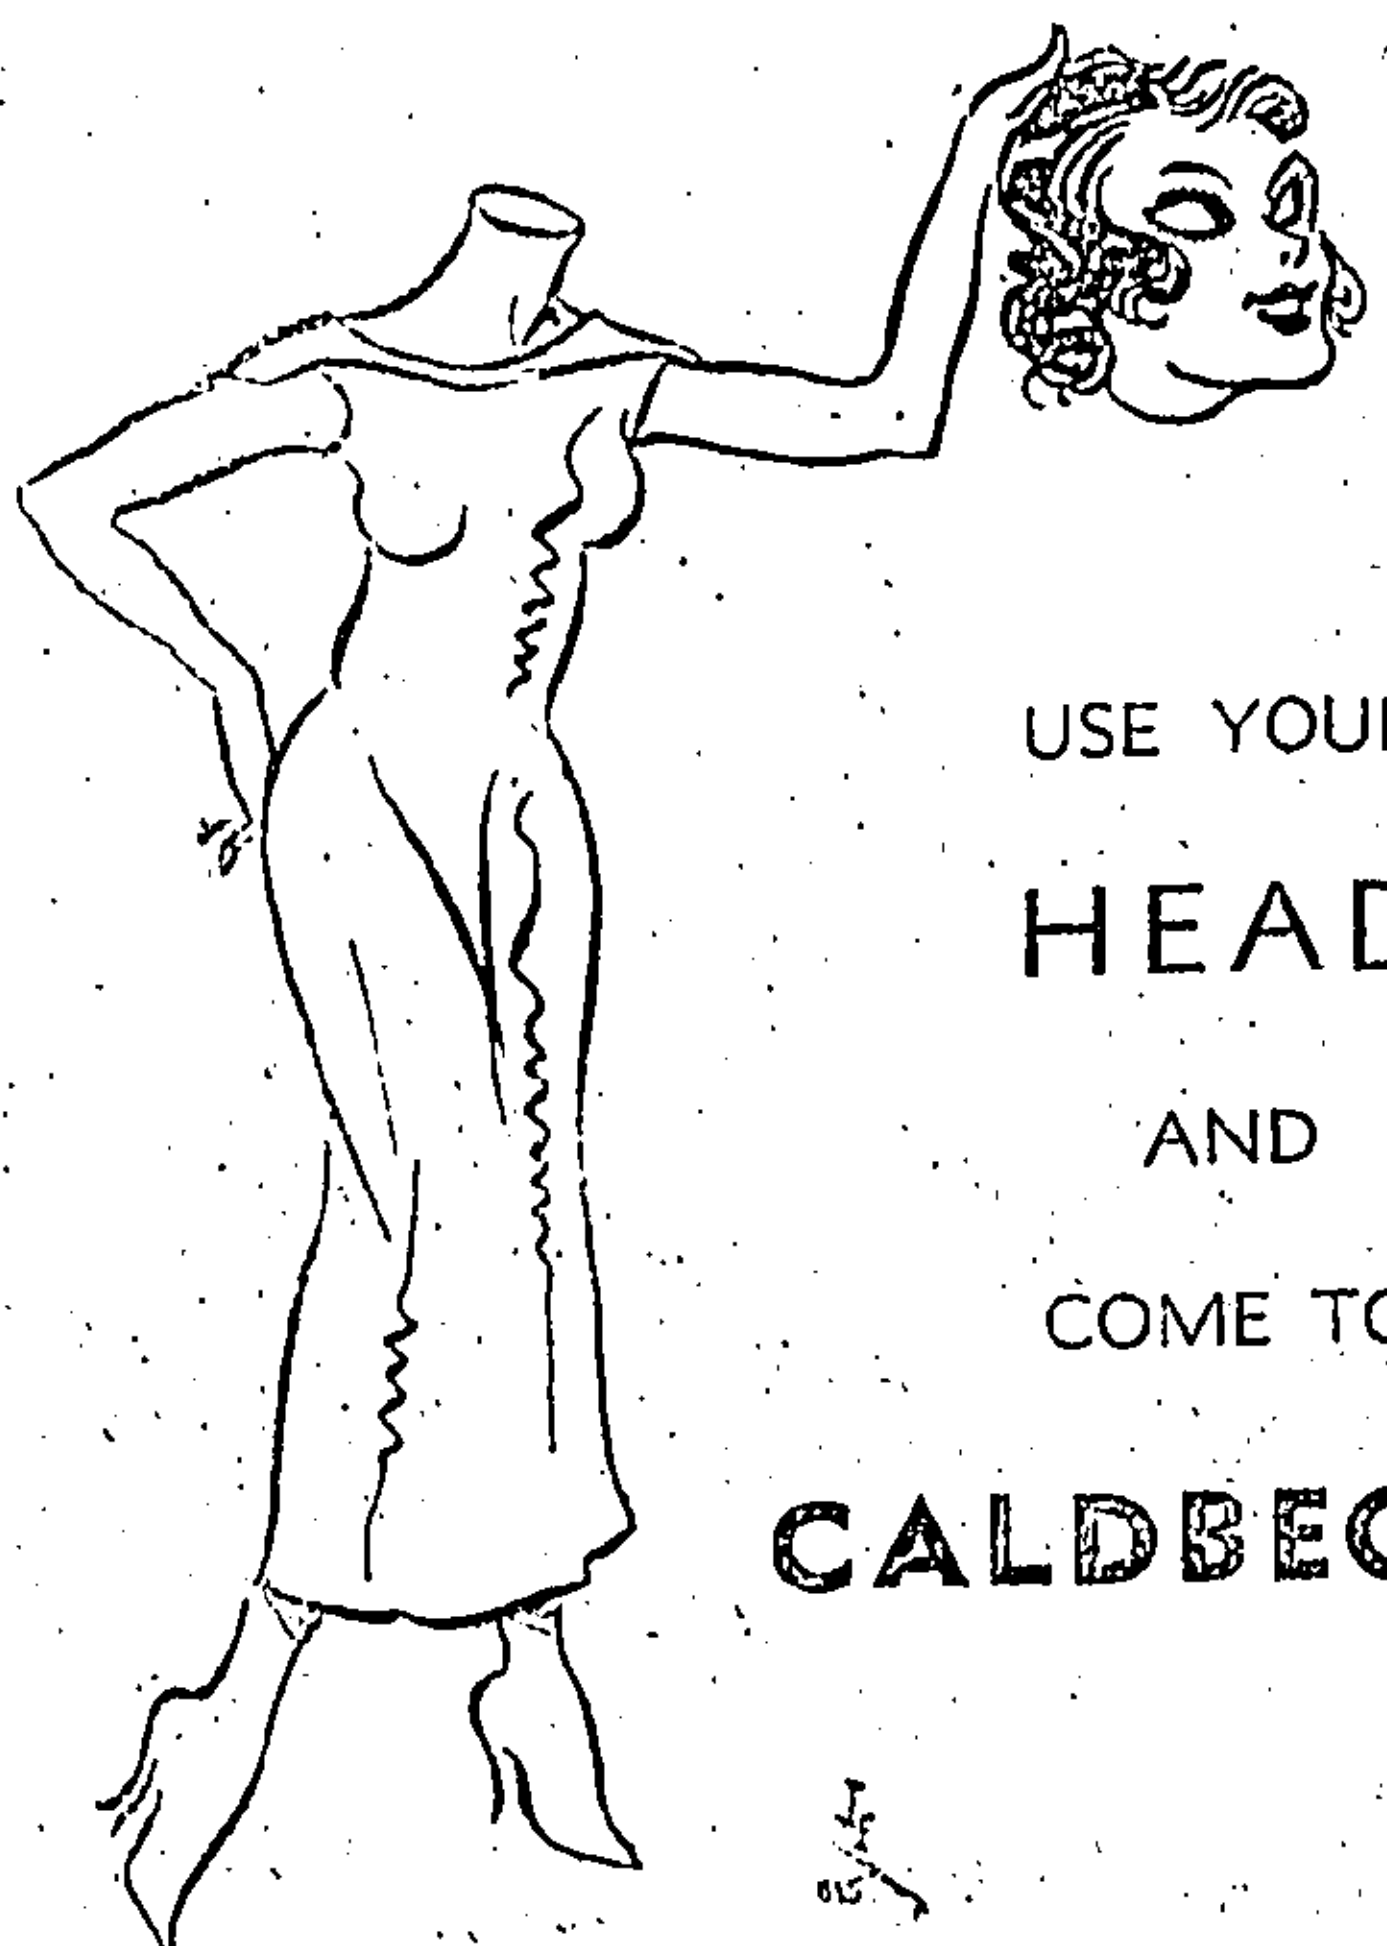

H. A. ("Dick") Alves, one of the most promising of the younger school of Hongkong lawn bowlers, will this afternoon make his big effort to reach the final of the open singles championship when he meets L. A. Gutierrez on the Kowloon Dock green.

Both players are members of the Club de Recreo and the winner plays A. E. Coates of Craigengower in the final.

Gutierrez is up against stiff opposition and will need to be at his very best to prevail. Gutierrez is not only a seasoned bowler, but has previously won the title. Furthermore Gutierrez has been playing consistently well in the tournament.

If both players touch true form and do not allow the occasion to get the better of them, there should be seen one of the best matches of the championship with only a shot or two in it at the end.

Alves is not a quick starter, but he cannot afford to allow Gutierrez to take too long a lead. On the other hand, unless Gutierrez can establish a big advantage in the early stages, he is most likely to be beaten.

RECORD SCORE BY CAMBRIDGE ON FIRST DAY OF UNIVERSITY MATCH

(By R. C. Robertson-Glasgow)

For the benefit of those who do not eternally walk round the purchase of Lord's, in short, for those who count cricket above conversation, Cambridge University made 432 for nine wickets on the first day of their match against Oxford University. This is the highest score ever made by Cambridge in the University match, but it has been exceeded twice by Oxford.

The pitch was easy. Once more Oxford had the infidelity to lose the toss, and the happiness to see one really beautiful innings, by N. W. D. Yardley.

That Yardley missed his century was just the whimsicality of fate. He produced, time and again, those strokes that make cover-point wonder whether those few steps were quite worth while. His deflections, to leg, his occasional cross-bat strokes past mid-on were admirably timed.

It was beautiful batting; in spite of the more social scene—Who is that man in the Light-Blue Cap?

Nelson, too, who just missed his century, played an important and valuable part. Stubborn, quiet, determined, he had been asked to wear down the Oxford bowling. He did it. He was lucky before lunch, especially to Singleton. He does not seem the bat through Nature's full are. Almost, he is a jabber; almost he became a Mead, disdaining the incomparable and almost lighting brilliance of a Woolley.

But Nelson, after White had played an imperfect and fallible part, laid a sound foundation upon which Cambridge built to advantage.

SINGLETON'S BOWLING
The best bowler on the Oxford side was Singleton. From the Pavilion end, possibly disturbed, even helped, by the uneasy movements of those who seek to injure the truth, he bowled most magnificently, and most unluckily. Even the Cambridge batsmen do not understand the ball that is bowled with an off-break action and doesn't break.

Now, as to the play. Darwall-Smith (Pavilion end) and Mitchell-Jones began the bowling. It is impossible to describe 400 odd runs. In the morning the Cambridge batting was indifferent. Both Nelson and White missed the ball and remained. White, particularly, stayed in his crease to the outswinger and missed it.

At 24 Singleton relieved Darwall-Smith, and at noon 26 runs had been made, mostly by chance. At 26 Dyson came on at the Nursery end, and somehow forced the tentative White on to his wicket—27—1—19.

Tindall was nearly bowled first ball by Dyson. Then Nelson snuck Singleton between the wicket-keeper and first slip. Forty-two appeared on the telegraph at the end of the first hour—Cambridge started.

At 51 Murray-Wood came on for Dyson, and 31 runs later he caught and bowled Tindall, who had never been at ease, off a full toss. It was a grand catch. Nelson reached his 50 with a single to leg. He had been batting for 120 minutes. Yardley twice hit Murray-Wood for four, once to leg and a drive past extra-cover.

Just before the interval Seamer had an over from the Nursery end. With three full pitches and a long hop he ushered in the lunch interval, when Cambridge had scored 112 for 2. Nelson 62.

At lunch, when others were adjusting their ideas, it occurred to me that: (1) Nelson was still there. Like Rhodes, only right-handed. Oxford had fielded well and Singleton had bowled well.

Then Yardley reached his 50, after surviving two appeals from Dyson for L.B.W. Then twice he hit Murray-Wood to the boundary, a hook for four, and an extra-cover drive. Yardley was out, playing Darwall-Smith into the hands of extra short-leg. At ten the total was 273 for 8.

After tea Gibb and Pawle batted. At 291 Gibb was caught at the wicket and Jahangir Khan twice nearly killed the batsman at the other end. In the end he made a fake stroke, and Brocklebank, as the can be detected, was left with Cameron, each wondering whether the other would make a stroke worthy of record.

Canton Swimmers Victors

BEAT S.C.A.A. IN INTER-CLUB CONTEST

Several of Canton's leading swimmers took part in a gala at South China Athletic Association bathing club yesterday when the Chui Chui Club met S. C. A. A. representatives in a keen contest.

The visitors won the meeting by a single point, but only after a fascinating contest which was greatly enjoyed by a large gathering.

All depended on the 400 metres race. To win the whole match South China had to win both first and second places. Norman Lee was sure of the first place, but Tsui Fai-lan at the turn of the third hundred partially gave up. He thus allowed the Canton man to gain a lead of about ten yards. Tsui was persuaded to carry on and in doing so came third, being beaten by less than ten yards. Had he not stopped and then continued, he would have gained second place.

RESULTS

200 Metres Relay:—1, South China (Wong Chi-hung, Kwok Hon-ming, Yip Hon-chun and Norman Lee). Time: 2 mins. 0-4/5 secs.; 2, Chui Chui Club, Canton (Leung Ho, Ng Kit-man, Koon Ping-man and Ng Chun-man).

100 Metres Backstroke:—1, Ng Lin (Canton); 2, Tin Mo (Canton); 3, Kwok Hon-ming (South China). Time: 18-1/5 secs.

200 Metres Breaststroke:—1, Sun Fa-chun (South China); 2, Chan Sin-chung (Canton); 3, Lo Kwok-yung (Canton). Time: 3 mins. 21 secs.

100 Metres Freestyle:—1, Norman Lee (South China); 2, Ng Chun-man (Canton); 3, Wong Chi-hung (South China). Time: 18-3/5 secs.

50 Metres Freestyle:—1, Leung Ho (Canton); 2, Ng Chun-man (Canton); 3, Wong Chi-hung (South China). Time: 12-3/5 secs.

400 Metres Freestyle:—1, Norman Lee (South China); 2, Ng Kit-man (Canton); 3, Tsui Fai-lan (South China). Time: 6 mins. 12 secs.

FINAL STANDINGS

Canton 17 points; South China 16 points.

SPEEDWAY STAR DISQUALIFIED

PROTESTS AFTER A CRASH

London, July 7. Bill Kitchen, famous English and Belle Vue, Manchester, speedway rider, protested to officials at Wimbledon last night against disqualification in the second heat of the handicap race.

He rushed off the track, borrowing £1 from his mechanic (deposit for lodging a protest), went to the office still in his oily leathers and crash hat.

It is the first time he has been disqualified in nearly three years' riding.

Kitchen was the victim of an accident when another rider caught his wheel. He fell off, was pinned to the track by his machine, dragged clear in the nick of time.

The other rider was disqualified. Then came the re-race of the heat. This time Rogers came off, with Kitchen close behind.

It was thought Bill had been disqualified for boring Rogers. But it was announced he had been pulled up for not stopping in time when the red light warned him.

"The red lights were dim, or I must have seen them," Bill said afterwards. "I have always ridden cleanly."

Heat ten of the programme was a sensation. Three of the four riders crashed, leaving Harrison, of Belle Vue, to finish the race alone.

Trouble started when Charles crashed in a broadside. Palmer slung himself clear to avoid a collision and the rider behind did likewise to invert what might have been a triple tragedy.

Grid Hero Turns to Swat Game

George Theodoratus won All-Const honors and All America mention while playing football at Washington State College, heard the shot 53 feet 6 inches in track, and went places in collegiate boxing. Now he's decided to be a fighter, and he's shown with his manager, Paddy Ryan, who has developed a lot of stars. That powerful left arm floored Ray Impeller, heavyweight contender, in a gym workout recently.

ZERO HOUR IN FIGHTS HERE

Professional boxing is practically at a dead stop since the defeat of Louis, and interest will not be resumed until Braddock defends his title. He has been out of action for more than twelve months, and although he trains almost every day and looks fit I fear the long lay-off will handicap him when next he takes the ring.

Schmeling will be back here in August, and the indications are that he will face Braddock at Yankee Stadium in the second week in September. It is believed that if the couple share between them sixty thousand pounds they will be lucky.

Professor Hsu Ti-shan will present the prizes at the graduation function of the Chun-Shing Institute of Commerce, to be held at the Hongkong Hotel, roof garden to-morrow at 6 p.m. Dr. S. F. Lam will preside.

FOUR YEARS WITH ULCERATED STOMACH

Now feels "different altogether"

If you endure the terrible agony of ulcerated stomach—or if you have suffered from the pain of other gastric ills, flatulence, wind, indigestion—you will understand the joy with which Mr. W. H. H. wrote this amazing letter:

"For nearly four years I have suffered from ulcerated stomach. I am a waiter, so you can understand how I have suffered—on the go for 12 to 14 hours each day. Sometimes I could have screamed with pain whilst waiting on the guests. Each year I have had to leave my work as I could not carry on. Not long ago I got a bottle of your Powder and since taking it I feel different altogether."

This is typical of the letters continually being received by Maclean's. Sufferers who had given up all hope, when even operations had failed to cure, tell of the marvellous results they have experienced even from the very first dose of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder.

Follow their example, and be absolutely certain to ask for Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, the one with the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. There are inferior substitutes at lower prices, but they are not worth the risk to your health. Get the genuine Maclean Brand. It is never sold loose. Also in tablet form. If any difficulty in obtaining, write to: Banker & Co., Ltd., P. O. Box 530, Hong Kong.

SOLICITOR SUSPENDED FOR YEAR

person's control of the business and practice of the said Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ and his management to persons not duly qualified to perform the same as mentioned in their successors.

(2) Two agreements dated respectively the 13th and 15th days of May 1926 made between the said Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ of the one part and Fung Kit-ling of the other part by which agreements and the joint effect thereof the said Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ binds himself so long as he shall practice as a solicitor in Hongkong to retain the services of the said Fung Kit-ling and gives the said Fung Kit-ling authority to agree to the amount of costs payable in respect of all work conducted by the said Fung Kit-ling.

OFFER OF ASSOCIATION

(3) An agreement made in or about the month of August 1926 between the said Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ of the one part and certain persons not duly qualified to act as solicitors or solicitors, namely Wong Kien-kee, Lo Kwok-min and Dai Sau-wan of the other part by which agreement the terms and conditions contained in the said agreement of 5th day of February 1925 were in effect applied to and for the benefit of the said Wong Kien-kee, Lo Kwok-min and Dai Sau-wan in place of the said Li Wing-chi and Fung Kit-ling.

(4) That the said Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ has been guilty of discreditable and dishonourable conduct as a Solicitor in that he wrote two several letters dated respectively the 24th and 30th days of May 1935 at Paignton, England addressed to the said Fung Kit-ling and Li Wing-chi in this Colony in that the said letters contain an offer by the said Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ to enter into an association to carry on the practice of a Solicitor with a person not duly qualified to act as an attorney or solicitor.

The respondent was admitted a Solicitor of the Supreme Court of Judicature in England in 1909 and was duly enrolled a Solicitor and Practitioner of this Court on 28th March, 1912.

FORMER PARTNERSHIP

In 1921 he made a second visit to the Colony and practised under the firm name of Lee and Russ with Mr. Lee Hon-chee, a Solicitor of this Court. In 1925, Mr. Lee Hon-chee retired from the partnership, and it became necessary for the respondent in order to buy him out, to raise the sum of $30,000. The respondent therefore approached Li Wing-chi and Fung Kit-ling, two unqualified persons then employed as interpreters in the firm of Lee and Russ, and obtained from them the sum of $30,000 on terms and conditions which are embodied in an agreement dated the 5th day of February, 1925.

The case for the Law Society so far as the first and second charges are concerned, depends on the respondent's admission that he was not a partner in the partnership of Lee and Russ, and that he was not a partner in the partnership of Lee and Russ, and that he was not a partner in the partnership of Lee and Russ.

These proceedings are in their essence disciplinary and penal and it is therefore essential that we be satisfied that the respondent is not a partner in the partnership of Lee and Russ, and that he was not a partner in the partnership of Lee and Russ, and that he was not a partner in the partnership of Lee and Russ.

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR

Viewed in the light of these facts and constraining the relevant agreement as a whole, we are not satisfied that its provisions are in any way inconsistent with the terms which might properly be imported into a loan agreement where the security for the considerable sum loaned is so personal in its nature, having regard to that conclusion as to the proper construction of the agreement it is unnecessary for us to consider and determine any of the several points made to us regarding the true meaning and intent of section 22 of the Solicitors Act of 1843 and the mischief aimed at by that section.

We have found that the relations between the respondent and the unqualified persons Li Wing-chi and Fung Kit-ling and subsequent to August, 1925, Wong Kien-kee, Lo Kwok-min and Dai Sau-wan, were those of debtor and creditor, and the first and second of the charges brought against the respondent therefore fail.

I turn now to a consideration of the third charge in which the respondent left the Colony in 1929 and resumed the practice of his profession in England in May, 1935, he received a cablegram from the respondent's solicitor in Hongkong, Wire expenses required. This cablegram was from one Wong Lo, and the respondent has stated that he assumed that it was sent by one K. K. Wong. Respondent replied "Wong Lo. Expenses $350." and received a reply "Cabling expenses 14 days. Book earliest steamer." It was after the passing of these cable communications that the respondent wrote the two letters dated 24th and 30th May, 1935, re-

Commission To Study in Palestine BUT ONLY WHEN PEACE RETURNS SEEKS CAUSE OF REVOLT

London, July 29. The membership of the Palestine Royal Commission was announced in the House of Commons by the Colonial Secretary to-day. The Commission is to ascertain the underlying causes of the disturbances which broke out in Palestine in the middle of April, to enquire into the manner in which the mandate of Palestine was being implemented in relation to the obligations of the mandatory power towards the Arabs and Jews respectively, and to ascertain whether, upon proper consideration of the terms of the mandate, either Arabs or Jews had any legitimate grievances on account of the way in which the mandate had been, or was being, implemented, and if the Commission is satisfied that any such grievances were well founded, to make recommendations for their removal and for the prevention of their recurrence.

The Chairman of the Commission is Lord Peel, former Secretary of State for India, member of the India Round Table Conference and Chairman of the Burma Round Table Conference. Other members are Sir Horace Rumbold (Vice-Chairman), formerly British Ambassador at Berlin; Sir Laurie Hammond, who recently presided over the Indian Delimitation Committee; Sir Morris Carter, former Chief Justice of Uganda and Tanganyika, and Chairman of the Kenya Land Commission; Sir Harold Morris, former President of the Indian Council; and Professor of Colonial History at Oxford.

The Colonial Secretary added that it was not yet possible to state the date on which the Commission would leave for Palestine, and it was not proposed that the Commission should begin work in Palestine until order had been restored. Asked why martial law had not yet been enforced in Palestine, Mr. Ormsby-Gore said martial law had not been proclaimed because, having regard to the extensive powers conferred on the High Commissioner by the Defence Order-in-Council, it had not up to now been thought necessary or desirable to do so.—British Wireless.

EXHIBIT F. 1

Stanley Richards & Co. Corner, Waycote's Corner, Paignton, 24th May, 1935.

Dear Mr. K. K. Wong, I duly received your cable and wired to-day "Expenses $350."

I should be pleased to return to Hongkong on some such terms as these.

Twelve years contract. Guaranteed $1,200 a month and 30 per cent. of net profits, payable yearly. First $1,200 to be paid on arrival in Colony. Seven months leave on full pay and 1st class passage 4th, 8th and 11th years, April to October. $20,000 Life policy to be taken out on arrival in trust for wife and paid her on death. I am to remain in Colony during the whole of my period in Hongkong. I have done this now for over 5 years and would not be otherwise.

If you think this worth considering, I shall have to give at least three months' notice before I can do so. In the circumstances, I have been enabled and sail on the first practicable date.

You will of course arrange for offices and a good staff, clerks &c. to be available on my arrival.

I can save 14 days on the voyage by sailing via Canada, but this would cost another £25.

I should rather relish an opportunity of returning and making good and showing what I really could do, so I have quite made up my mind to return, if you really want me to do so.

If you get this towards the end of June and the fares are cable'd at once, I could give my notice to expire at the end of September and sail early in October and if I went via Canada arrive at the end of October.

With kind regards to all, Yours sincerely, (Signed) C. A. S. Russ, Waycote's Corner, Paignton, 30th May, 1935.

Dear Mr. K. K. Wong, I have provisionally booked a passage on the N.D.L. s.s. Potsdam which leaves Southampton in September and arrives in Hongkong on the 5th November. The shipping company informed me that the ship was nearly booked up already, and that unless I booked early, I should be unable to get a passage until their next ship sailing in November.

I accordingly cabled to-day to you as follows:—"Booked Potsdam for return to Hongkong, please confirm." I have a receipt of the return of the Potsdam.

I have a receipt of the return of the Potsdam. I will give in my notice here, pay the passage money, and confirm the booking. I assume that we shall be able to agree to terms on my arrival, somewhat on the lines of those set out in my letter to you of the 24th instant.

I have a lease of my present house for three years, and a lot of furniture, which I shall have to dispose of somehow. I do not know what has happened out there. Whether Losby has died suddenly or what, but of course I shall hear in time. I hope the new arrangement will be most successful. I shall make a

HOTEL CAPITAL REDUCTION

COURT APPROVES PETITION

The reduction in capital, from $15,000,000 to $11,250,000, of the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., was confirmed by the Chief Justice, Sir Althell MacGregor, in the Supreme Court this morning.

Appearing for the petitioning company, Mr. Leo D'Almada, Jr., who was instructed by Mr. R. A. Wadson, said all the statutory requirements as well as those of practice had been complied with. There was no opposition.

His Lordship: I see in the draft of the petition that no advertisements had been inserted in the local vernacular papers, as ordered by my brother Haydon. Mr. D'Almada: The order was to the effect that notice of the petition be published in Shanghai as well as in Hongkong. But I don't think it is necessary to publish it in Shanghai. His Lordship: But the name of the firm is "Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd." and from this it seems that it has certain interests in Shanghai. I don't think there is really any need to publish advertisements in the Chinese papers, but I think publicity should be given in the North China Daily News, as well as in the Government Gazette and the South China Morning Post. The petition is granted, subject to this alteration.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

A woman, Ching Wo-yin, of 18 Gloucester Road, was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital, suffering from self-poisoning, believed to have been self-administered.

hobby of, my office work when I come out again. I have had five years wonderful experience down here, and learnt how important the office is. Really I was awfully bad before. I might have been good in Court and had a reputation, but for good solid work and hard thinking, I was thoroughly second rate. Kind regards to all, Yours sincerely, (Signed) C. A. S. Russ.

NO ENQUIRIES. Mr. K. K. Wong, to whom the letters were addressed, had been one of the three joint lenders of money to the respondent under the agreement of August 1925. He was in 1935 under articles to Mr. Losby of the firm of Russ & Co., and is an unqualified person.

The respondent's case is that on receipt of the first cablegram he assumed that Mr. Wong had been admitted as a solicitor, or would be so admitted before he, the respondent, could arrive in Hongkong, and that the offer was that the respondent should practice in partnership with Mr. Ronald and Mr. Wong, both duly qualified. The respondent adds that he had been informed and believed that Mr. Losby, who took over from him the firm of Russ & Co., was dead, a belief which is happily premature, and that in that belief he considered his prospects in Hongkong with congenial partners sufficiently bright to justify his giving up his employment in England.

The respondent does not appear to have made any proper enquiries, in fact he goes on to allege that he did so. He himself puts it no higher than that on receipt of the first cablegram he assumed that Wong was or shortly would be qualified, and that he was being offered a partnership. The new arrangements were clearly not to be in any way like the old ones: there is nothing to suggest the relations of debtor and creditor. In the plainest terms the letters indicate the respondent's readiness to join Wong either as a partner or as an employee who in addition to his salary is to receive a share in the profits. They constitute, in the words of the third charge, an offer by the said Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ to enter into an association to carry on the practice of a solicitor with a person not duly qualified to act as an attorney or solicitor.

ETHICS DISREGARDED

There have been, throughout the argument on this case, anything disclosed which would justify the respondent in believing that Mr. K. K. Wong was a qualified man and that the offer which he was making was one to which no taint of professional misconduct might attach? I have been unable to discover any matter of excuse. On the contrary the respondent's conduct in writing these letters displays such a lack of prudence and is inspired by such a determination to close with the offer at once and to resume practice in Hongkong regardless of the status of Wong, that I am forced to the conclusion that the respondent had no good ground for his assumption that Wong had qualified as a solicitor and cared not whether he was qualified or not.

Such a reckless disregard of the ethics of the profession to which he belongs constitutes, in my opinion, disgraceful and dishonourable conduct as a solicitor and I therefore find that the third charge has been proved against the respondent. The order of the Court is that Mr. Charles Andrew Sutherland Russ be suspended from the practice of his profession as a solicitor for the period of twelve months from to-day. Two of the three issues before the Court, and in my view justice will be met by an order that each party pay his own costs. I shall make a
